INFIRMARY PATIENTS Students registered in the infirmary at present are: George

Stephenson, Mary Graham, Gerald Good, Robert Stafford, William

Brenner, Francis Nickerson, Henry Beecher, Marjorie Kellogg, Adelaide Zweifel, Thomas Shea, Hen-

• The midget of them all! Streamlined bakelite cabinet measures only 71/8" wide by 43/8" high by 41/4" deep.

A full 5-tube "superhet" with tuning range 535 to 1730 KC. Has 4" clear

Admiral Radios can be purchased on easy terms. Over 30 Admiral models to chose from. 4 to 16

tubes . . . AC, AC-DC and battery operated . . . table and armchair models . . . priced from $9.95 and up. See them today.

JOHNSON

FURNITURE CO.

649 Willamette St.

Classified

Phone 3300 Local 354

SEE THE PACKARD Roto Shaver

at Keith Fennel's University

$10.75

tone dynamic speaker.

The Oregon Daily Emerald, official student publication of the University of Oregon, published daily during the college year except Sunday, Mondays, holidays and final examination periods. Subscription rates: $1.25 per term and $3.00 per year. Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice, Eugene, Oregon.

PAUL DEUTSCHMANN, Editor HAL HAENER, Manager BILL PENGRA, Managing Editor Associate Editor: Lloyd Tupling

Upper News Staff

Elbert Hawkins, Sports Editor Bud Jermain, News Editor Lyle Nelson, Asst. Managing Ed. Bernadine Bowman, Women's Ed. Charles Green, chief night editor

> Assistant Business Manager, Keith Osborne National Advertising Manager: Jean Farrens Circulation Manager, Clayton Ellis

Day Manager: Dick Litfin

Asst. Manager: Majeanne Glover. Frances Williams Martin Luther

No Doubt Need Remain

THERE is no doubt about it.

Oregon is going places! That message was shouted, blared, screamed, whistled, tooted, and burned all over town last night in the maddest, merriest and most magnificent Homecoming rally the campus has seen for years.

The crazy, jubilant spirit of Webfoot rooters was impossible to stem. The noise parade floats blew their whistles and beat their saws far beyond the regular route. The flaming O on Skinners butte flared across the valley and the frosh bonfire answered from out of the mud flats of the Amazon.

BEST feature of the rally in the opinion of many was the spiffy drum majoresses, borrowed by some inspired Webfoot from the American Legion. The girls twirled a couple of mean batons, all but outshining Oregon's own fire-stick artist. Les Harger. Rumor that the rally committee was making attempts to enroll them at Oregon could not be checked, but the story provoked thoughts in the minds of many.

The question of a drum majoress which came to such an untimely end last year, has been bruited about continuously, whenever people get together to talk about what's wrong with Oregon. In musing on things in general it would seem to be an opportune time to start something again.

GETTING back to the general spirit of Homecoming, the roaming reporter found a grand comradeship between alums and students. They were all good fellows together, and most important, all good Webfoots. The indescribable psychology of Homecoming broke down the reserves of old and young alike. From the deafened Eugeneans who lined Willamette street to the exuberant high school kids who waded in the mud around the bonfire, everyone was having a roaring time.

Yes indeed, Oregon is going places.

A Problem in the Midst of Fun

IN THE great festive furor that is Homecoming the more serious aspects of college life are all but forgotten. The fact that grave problems confront the University slip into the

The rapidly growing enrollment of Oregon which has brought almost 50 per cent of increase since 1933 is looked upon as just another indication of the revival in spirit, the materialization of the "going places" idea, much of which has been accomplished by the alumni themselves. However, with this enrollment increase has necessarily come a difficult situation brought about by lack of funds.

The lack is vividly portrayed by statistics which show that the cost per student at the University is nearly 10 per cent below the average of other leading universities. Understanding comes when it is shown that higher education in Oregon is limping along at 85 per cent of 1929 funds, while other state appropriations are 24 per cent above their level in the same year. It is indicated when people become aware of the fact that salary restorations from depression cuts for employees of the state system are in danger of disappearing unless supplementary funds are allotted.

THIS afternoon alumni gather in Johnson hall at 2 o'clock for their brief business session. We do not ask that they plan aggressive action or widespread campaigns. We merely ask them to note our plight, realize its seriousness, and leave this week-end of frolic with the intent to think about it.

And after they have thought about it, we ask them to talk about it-to let the people of Oregon know that this serious financial condition stands in the way of higher education and the University. We ask them in the name of education and the University. We ask them in the name of education and all it has meant to them and will mean to the University students of the future.

When they have helped us in carrying this message to those who have the power to aid, we will all be able to join in saying that Oregon is going places, with the added realization that accomplishment can continue.

Round n' About....

WITH WEN BROOKS

Sometimes wonder whether the returning grads and former students get as much kick out of Homecoming as the students do themselves. At any rate, it's an exciting weekend for all parties concerned.

Clayton Sheldon spent an uncomfortable two hours yesterday afternoon when fellow Sigma Chis put that boy in the "stocks" in front of the College

ing this most serious step . . but I don't think so.

Dick Peters is responsible for the "stocks" idea and that boy, incidentally, is reported at present trying to break down the reserve of a certain man-hater in the Alpha Phi house. I didn't know there were any. Ed Stanton joined Sheldon in front of the Side at one when brothers in the Phi Psi tong roped Lochinvar Ed to one of the posts . . . and all because of a Most great lovers have their troubles, I understand, and so it is with Tommy Williams. The boy manages to cover enough territory in a weekend . . . or should I say weak moment . . but is she worth it? Well, the one boy who should know seems to think so.

This 'n that: Alyce Rogers may no longer be a columnist but her name's still good copy · · · especially so when linked with a name such as Verdi Sederstrom. The two will be seen together at the dance tonight as will Emerald Editor Paul Deutschmann and his a . . . well, anyway . . . Elizabeth Ann Jones. Hubard Kuokka left last night for Madison, Wisconsin, where he will attend the national convention of Sigma Delta Chi, Journalism fraternity. Will be gone about two weeks.

Attracting considerable attention yesterday was the biplane parked by the ZTA house on University. The little yellow and red single cockpit job, thanks to Elmer Smith of Springfield, helped the ZTA girls really get into the swing of things . . . going places with, and for, OREGON!

One good reason Kenneth Larson, Delt, sees less and less of his car these days seems to be Venita Brous, AXO, who graduated last year and is now working in town . . . in more ways than one, evidently. And one dozen roses, I understand, squared things in the Tri Delt house for that Sig Ep.

SIDE SHOW.

One of the measures on the general election ballot will be the "Amendment Repealing the Double Liability of Stockholders in Banking Corporations."

By JIM BRINTON

Under the present provision of the state constitution each stockholder in a bank is liable to the depositors to the amount of the par value of his stock. The amendment seeks to remove this from the constitu-

Since depositors in banks are now protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation there is no need for carrying this provision in the constitution. The recommendations of the state banking commission and the insurance corporation are in favor of the amendment's passage.

Sponsored by a group called the Anti-Liquor League of Oregon, the "Bill Regulating Sale of Alcoholic Liquor for Beverage Purposes," would place retail sales of beer and wine in Oregon Liquor Control commission stores. Permits would be required for purchase of these.

The commission would be forbidden to issue a permit to an applicant if any of his immediate family protested. Anyone sustaining damage caused by a person under liquor influence would have .right of action against the commission. Driver's and liquor licenses could be revoked if an individual caused injury contributed to by liquor.

The question arises whether the present sale of beer and wine by private individuals has been satisfactory or not. There have been numerous abuses of retail licenses, such as selling beer or wine to intoxicated persons, selling after hours, or selling to minors.

However, it should be pointed out that such abuses are under the full control of the commission which can revoke a retail license at any time. Beer parlors and wine stores can be closed up in this manner if they do not toe the mark. This part of the present law needs no change; it is adequate to regulate sale of beer and wine.

Preventing the issuing of a license to an individual by mere protest of another member of the family doesn't seem wise. Any family quarrel might result in one party getting his liquor license revoked.

Now comes the part that is most obnoxious to those opposing the bill. The liquor commission would become the defendant in any number of civil suits. The drunken person should be wholly liable for his the liability to the seller. There part of the measure except to work a hardship on the com-Conditions under the Knox ence of liquor without shifting actions while under the influ- ry Byron.

law in Oregon are quite satis- 5-TUBE "SUPER" factory. It would be unwise to adopt a measure like the one proposed—one that would bring on new troubles without curing any of the old.

Wie geht's

By V. GATES

Roosevelt again says the country's budget is about to be balanced. And Corrigan still says he didn't fly the wrong

We're told a podestrian is born every minute. Which is a slight variation of P. T. Barnum's famed assertion.

The Oregon City Banner-Courier says they'll vote for any candidate with punch. Spiked?

There is more fiction than truth in the belief that the German dachshund may be the un-

The Fascist states once called the League of Nations the "garden of Eden"-but with An-IN GENUINE BAKELITE CABINETS thony Eden out of the picture Black-Red-Walnut-Ivory we wonder now who the serpent was.

The Homecoming slogan "Oregon is going places" looks a bit political following the last three football games.

One thing Mr. Oliver should remember today is that definition of Vandal: "wrecker; one who destroys," eyeglasses-when we can give you new lenses in just a few hours' time. You don't even need your prescription-a Registered Optometrist is here to examine your eyes.

Dr. ELLA C. MEADE Phone 330

COST AND CONTROL OF WATER AND LIGHT

to the Eugene Water Board.

YES

504

505 X NO

IN WATER BOARD:—Shall the cost and control of all public service of electricity and water facilities in the City of Eugene be turned over

Vote YES or NO

24 HOUR SERVICE ASSURED DON'T suffer the discomfort of broken Packard Roto

> Drug Store. Reduced from $18.75 to $12.50.

 Picture Framing PICTURE FRAMING for all kinds pictures and certificates. Oriental Art Shop, 122 E. Broadway.

 Brushes NEW FULLER Brushes. Phone

 Laundry Mrs. Scals, 1600 Moss. Shirts

10c. AGENT, Red Anderson,

Omega hall. Ph. 3300, ext. 275. Barber Shops

IT PAYS to look well. For your Barber Shop.

next hair cut try Eugene Hotel Dressmaking

DRESSMAKING, ladies' tailoring and alterations. Mrs. Skade, 1422 Ferry. Phone 3423-R.

Radio Repairs

MOVING!! Economy Radio Lab is moving to 678 E. 11th by the Mayflower theater on November 1.

 Student Service FELLOWS . . . Bring your car to Jim Smith's Richfield Station at 13th and Willamette for A-1

Expert Plumbing

CHASE COMPANY PLUMBERS. Repairs and installations of all kinds. Servicemen always ready. Phone 243. Inquire 936 Oak.

Lost

service.

LOST-a brown leather-bound zipper loose leaf notebook on the campus. Reward. Fred Vincent,

Car Storage

ORMISTON MOTOR CO. * your headquarters for used * cars. Come in and see our bar- *

837 Pearl

Miscellaneous

CAR STORAGE Keep your car out of the winter weather. Dead storage per * month, $3. Live, $5. QUALITY GARAGE 857 Pearl

YOU MUST VOTE

To keep your low

water and light rate

Vote 505 X No

Paid Advertisement Eugene Water Board.

Kemal Ataturk's Life Story in Anecdotes Graphic Review of Long, Colorful Career As Soldier, Bluffer, Teacher, Dictator Anecdotes are to biography what strawberry example to my men.' Lighting a cigarette ne

ticular relish the stories of George Washington and the cherry tree, Ben Franklin and his kite, covered with the dust of the shell bursts, Mustafa Abraham Lincoln and the pig caught in the fence, or James Watt and the tea kettle.

The career of Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, best of the present crop of dictators, is not without a number of anecdotes, and, as with most biographical subjects, they highlight the essential character of the man better than a formal description of his qualities can possibly do. For this third and last article on the dictator of Turkey, who spitfully refuses to die, though an AP correspondent wrote two weeks ago that he had at most a few hours to live, I shall attempt an anecdotal biography of Kemal. But first an introductory statement.

A Couple of Young Dictators

Kemal was born in Salonika, now a city of Greece, the son, like Hitler, of a petty government official. His father, like Hitler's, died when he was a youngster, and the boy loved his mother passionately, again like Hitler. The young Turk attended a military school, graduating as a captain from the General Staff college in Constantinople. This was in 1905, when Kemal was 24 years old. As a student, and later as an officer, he harangued his fellows to revolt against the Sultan, and to keep Turkey for the Turks. When police caught him leading a secret society, he was sent to Damascus to join his regiment and fight the Druses. He continued his work of incitation, and was pursued by police again. For a year he lay low in Salonika.

In 1911 the Turks became engaged in war with Italy over Tripoli, in North Africa. Mustafa Kemal, with two friends, went overland to reach the scene of battle, but they were stopped at the Egyptian frontier by English sentries, who had orders to keep them from crossing Egypt. Mustafa dressed himself as an Arab and approached the border. His disguise was easily penetrated, however, by the Egyptian guard. The sentry's sympathies were all with his fellow moslems, the Turks, against the English and Italians, but he could not completely ignore his orders to apprehend Mustafa, whose description had been sent him. So he arrested another passenger on the same train, who had blue eyes, and sent Kemal on his way

You Can't Scare a Kemal

Mustafa followed his North African experience with another war in the Balkans, and then, in 1915, became troop commander under General Liman von Sanders at the Dardanelles. There he made his reputation, as a dauntless leader and brilliant tactician.

"On one occasion," writes H. C. Armstrong in "Gray Wolf," "he was sitting outside a new trench. An English battery opened fire on it. As the guns found the range, the shells fell closer and closer; it was a mathematical certainty that he must be hit. His staff begged him to take cover. weaknesses and strengths.

jam is to a slice of bread. They heighten the smoked it steadily, talking calmly and unconcernenjoyment without detracting from the nourish- edly while the men from the safety of the trench ment of the whole. This, we remember with par- below looked up fascinated, watching him. The enemy guns switched to another target. Though Kemal was not touched." Kemal has been given most of the credit for holding the Dardanelles from the Australians. It was his genius that probably prolonged the war for two years.

I'll Be Seeing You

From 1919 to 1922 were a busy three years for Kemal, driving out the Allies and Greeks from Smyrna, Syria and Constantinople. In 1922, after the successful Turkish attack on Afyon-Karahissar, the foreign consuls in Smyrna had suggested to Mustafa Kemal a conference to arrange a suitable peace. His reply was that on a certain day he would meet them at Nif. This town was far behind the line of the retreating Greeks, so the consuls thought the Turkish reply was sheer nonsense. But Mustafa Kemal occupied Nif the exact day that he had predicted to the consuls. September 9. This sidelight on Kemal's self-confidence is taken from "A Year's Embassy to Mustafa Kemal," by Charles H. Sherrill.

At one time during the '20's, Mussolini coveted Smyrna. Kemal is supposed to have told him that Italy could have territroy in Anatolia if he would send an army there . . . "six feet of earth for every Italian soldier." This on the word of Henry C. Wolfe in "The German Octopus."

One of Kemal's greatest feats is described by H. E. Wortham in "Mustafa Kemal of Turkey." "When Kemal recounted the history of the Nationalist movement to the newly-elected deputies of the People's Party in 1927. There he made the longest speech of his career, probably the longest in the history of the world, for it lasted thirty-six hours and thirty-three minutes. During the whole of a workday week he spoke six hours a day."

Building a Sea to Scale As he grew older in dictatorship, Kemal lost some of his simplicity. Finding a shortage of water on his farm one day, he demanded a reservoir bebuilt on the place. What kind of reservoir? "A reservoir modeled to scale of the Sea of Marmora," he ordered, "and see that the scale is exactly

When Turkey adopted the Latin alphabet, Kemal himself travelled about the country as schoolmaster, with a blackboard and plentiful supply of chalk. He was the first man in Turkey to wear European hats instead of the fez. When he introduced the fox trot to Turkey, he staged a great ball, at which he instructed buxom Turkish ladies the technique of ballroom dancing. He was the first Turk to pose for a statue of himself, violating a sacred Mohammedan law. Mustafa

There you have Kemal Ataturk. Fearless, Proud, ingenious, passionate, confident, and durable. The anecdotes give you the man, with all his Kemal led the way.

Side. Clayton sat there, hands and feet protruding through the wooden boards until sweetheart Caroline Sturgeon came to the rescue with keys. Ironic were the words printed on the stocks: WHAT PRICE LOVE . . . which might cause some campus romees to think twice before tak-

And rumors have one coed on the campus continually changing the color of her locks. Naturally a brunette, the girl turned blonde overnight . . . now once again joins the ranks of the brunettes. And I can't help but feel sorry for any coed, physically quite O.K., who must resort to a taxi to get four blocks to class. In closing, what's this "smooch" club now organizing on the campus? Sounds sort of sticky to me . . . lip-sticky.