

DUCK TRACKS

By ELBERT HAWKINS

Worst basketball defeat for Frosh Coach Honest John Warren? Unfortunately there is a "worst defeat" for every coach, and the portly Oregon man is no exception.

It came when he was coaching Astoria high to Oregon prep supremacy with his Anets, Johansens, Palmbergs, and Sarpolas, to name only a few. The fishermen of those days were to basketball what the murderous New York Yankees are to baseball.

But on with the story. We'll take the words of Honest John himself: "My worst defeat . . . Salem high scored 47 points on us and we got about 17 . . . yes, 47 to 17. Glen Sanford got 17 points off Wally Palmberg." At this juncture in the yarn, the ex-Astoria headman paused to reflect, and then he remembered something more pleasant.

Those fishermen of Honest John's went out the very next night, he relates, and practically reversed the rout. Wally Palmberg got about 19 points right out of Sanford's zone. Coach Hollis Huntington of Salem, ex-Oregon Rose Bowl footballer, used a zone defense which John calls "about the toughest zone I ever faced. There's nothing like it. Hollis used three big boys out in front and two in under the basket."

By courtesy of Anse Cornell we'll reprint for the many friends of Colonel Bill Hayward, a letter he wrote Friday from Pasadena to the University's athletic mogul. Colonel Bill went South, you know, to recuperate in California sunshine from his heart attack.

Pasadena.

Dear "Pop"
Made it here in easy stages, staying two days in the following places—Oakland, King City, Santa Barbara and then here where I think I will stay till Sunday. Went to Long Beach today but it was so cold and windy I came back here. Am feeling much better than when I left home but have to be careful of . . . why they didn't think of that I hope this won't last much longer. It's hard for me to imagine that I must stop up. Doesn't seem natural for me but I suppose I have to.

I feel the trip has done me a lot of good—all I do is rest. Bertina (Mrs. Hayward) drove every bit of the way. I appreciate your letting me get away, and tell George (Mr. Stovel, who is handling track) to use his own judgment with the boys. I feel they are in good hands.
Remember me to every one.
Yours,
Bill.

Melvin Olson, the boy who made the all-Southwestern, Washington, conference prep team along with Matt Pavulunas, Ford Mullen, Rod Hansen, and Slim Wintermute, and then quit school here as a freshman, is winding up his eligibility this season with Eastern Oregon normal school at LaGrande . . . the Fox brothers, (Howard and Kenneth) who flunked out as freshmen this year at Oregon are right now going great guns for Oregon normal at Monmouth . . . Brother Howard has hit near the 20-point mark in several games . . . Hollis Huntington, the ex-Salem high coach, mentioned elsewhere in this column, is running The Man's Shop, men's clothing establishment, at Salem now . . . He earned his way at Oregon by carrying books up a couple of flights of stairs after practice . . . Hollis played in a couple of Rose Bowl games for Oregon and in one for the San Diego Marines.

Otis Hilton, sophomore center for the University of Idaho wears the largest pair of shoes on the coast . . . his size, 11s, had to be ordered specially . . . Idaho fans call him the tallest center on the coast too, but they are wrong . . . Oregon's Slim Wintermute is also a 6-foot-8er . . . Saturday's swimming meet between Oregon and Washington State was called off by the Cougars because they are right in the middle of final examinations, having only two terms . . . why didn't they think of that when scheduling the meet is a mystery.

WSC Swimmers Forced to Cancel Valley Journey
After scheduling a two-meet road trip into the Willamette valley, Coach Bill Bond's Washington State swimmers found to their disappointment that they couldn't swim and take semester finals at the same time. Word telling of definite cancellation of the Cougar jaunt reached Ned Johns and Jim Reed, coaches, yesterday.

The Oregon varsity was to have met the Washington Staters Saturday, January 28. The Cougars had planned a stop in Corvallis Friday, January 27, to match strokes with Coach Jack Hewitt's tribe of Beavers.

The Webfoot coaching staff negotiated with Beaver Coach Hewitt yesterday with the hopes of drumming up a match between the two varsities—but to no avail because three OSC swimmers had been dismissed for the weekend.

Anse Cornell, athletic manager, stated last night that he was trying to schedule a match with the Portland Aero club to fill in for the cancelled match Saturday.

Theta Chi's basketballers upset the dope bucket yesterday in the feature "A" league game by easing out a 19 to 15 victory over the defending champions, Alpha Tau Omega.

In two other "A" league games, Sigma Alpha Epsilon won a close tiff with Sigma Phi Epsilon, 12 to 9, while Sigma Alpha Mu garnered a 30 to 19 victory over the Yeomen.

Theta Chi held Alpha Tau Omega scoreless in the first period which closed with the Theta's on the long end of a 4 to 0 score. In the second period Theta Chi lengthened their lead to 12 to 2.

ATO rallied in the final half but were unable to overcome Theta's earlier lead. Willie Reynolds and Bill "Whizzer" White paced the Theta club to their victory, collecting 12 points and playing outstanding floor games. Starring for the hotelmen were Jay Graybeal and Wayne Scott.

Sigma Chi Handers Beat Phi Psis, 2 to 1

Winners Capture Singles, Doubles in First Triumph

Sigma Chi handballers defeated Phi Kappa Psi, 2 to 1, yesterday in a first round intramural match. Gale Smith, Sigma Chi, played steady ball to defeat Woody Slater, 21 to 10, 21 to 12, in a singles engagement.

Sweethearts Win Bradshaw and Art Hannifin outplayed Phi Psi's Lloyd Cummings and Marsh Hoffman, 21 to 5, 21 to 3, in the doubles tilt.
The remaining singles match was called off as it had no bearing on the final outcome. Jim Bennett, Phi Psi, had taken the first game from George Humphreys, 21 to 18, giving Phi Psi one point.

Coach Hobson Gives Regulars a Rest

Reserves Mullen, Hardy, Pavulunas, Sarpola, and McNeeley Work Against Picked Super Varsity Crew

By GEORGE PASERO

There is rest for the weary—at least the weary on Coach Hobby Hobson's Oregon ball club. But this is one time when the weary, or the "so-called weary," aren't too responsive.

Coach Hobson's edict, immediately upon the Ducks' return to their home port, called for complete rest for the regulars, those five Web-foot cagers who played the major part of four victorious Inland Empire contests.

Leonard Gard Paces Duckling Hoop Scorers

Hal Sarkela Shows Style on Warren's Regular Five

With the first game of the rook series over, John Warren worked his freshmen basketball squad overtime last night in preparation for their second encounter Saturday.

Leonard Gard, Big John's high scoring ace, added 10 more counters to his total Friday night making him 59 points in five games.

A High Scorer
Gard has been the high scorer in every team he has played on in the last two years. Last year he led University high to the state tourney where he set a new prep scoring record by making 80 points in four games.

Hal Sarkela, who worked his way up to a regular berth before the rook series, showed up well in last night's practice skirmish with the super-varsity. Sarkela was held to four free throws in the rook encounter.

Warren announced last night that there would be no change in the lineup for the game Saturday night against the "Aggies."

Maple Men....

On his way to becoming one of the best liked and best known athletes on the Oregon campus is Elliott Wilson, tall football and basketball center.

You have undoubtedly seen him meandering around through the buildings. He is usually wearing his numerals and a dark gray overcoat. Six feet four inches and 225 pounds describe his physical carriage.

Before fall term, Wilson was hitch-hiking his way from his home town, Alliance, Nebraska, to the Pacific coast in the general direction of Oregon State. He stopped off at Eugene to take a look at the football field and the campus. While looking around, he spied "Smokey" Whitfield, campus versatile man, lying on the grass and meditating on the busy, little bees.

Whitfield saw possibilities in the lanky pivot-man and promptly escorted him to see "Honest" John Warren. As a result Oregon has another very promising athlete.

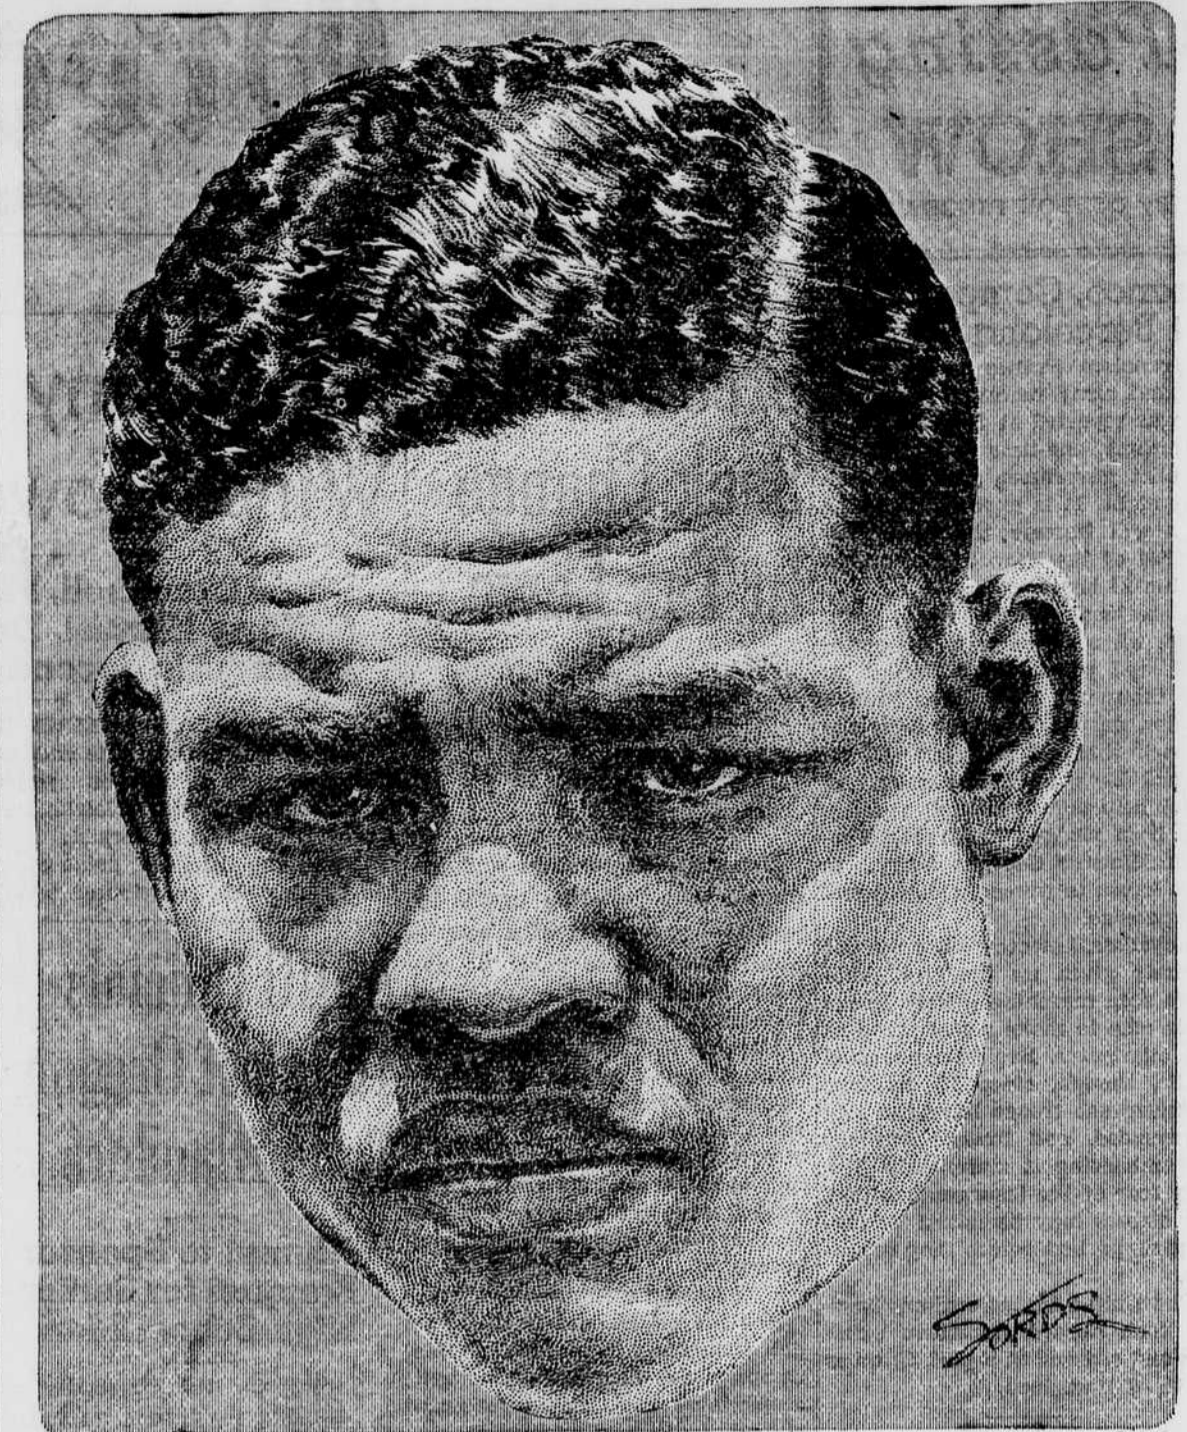

He Asks Why
"What the h—ll would anyone want to go to Oregon State for?" was one of Wilson's remarks when asked about the Orange campus lately.

At Alliance, Wilson played center and forward on the basketball team. His school team romped through with the Western Nebraska district record and went to the state play-off two times in Wilson's prep career.

Wilson garnered the all-star spot for two seasons at the center position and one year at tackle during the football season.

He played the majority of the minutes at the pivot spot on the grid squad and has seen most of the action at the center position on

Louis Over Lewis Tonight?

Odds favor Joe Louis (above) . . . 202-pound heavyweight champion of the world to stave off belt aspirations of John Henry Lewis, clever 187-pound light heavyweight from Phoenix, Arizona. Louis' last fight was with Schmeling last June.

Athletes Notice!

First-round matches in all-campus sports which were to have been finished last Saturday must be played off no later than today. This includes fencing, badminton, both singles and doubles; handball, both singles and doubles; and ping pong singles.

Coach Hobby Hobson and his Ducks are not taking Friday's Oregon State game lightly. The Duck mentor reasons that, playing percentage ball as they do, Oregon State is bound to win once in a while, and the prospects of an evening's engagement with a very "hot" Beaver crew is not the best entertainment an Oregon basketball team could choose.

In order to stay on the heels of the fast-traveling Washington Huskies, who have not been so much as pressed to date, Coach Hobson's hoppers must "take" the plow-jockeys from the Corvallis farm.

The Beavers have lost five games this season, but one victory over the Oreons would more than compensate for their poor showing.

Frosh Mermen Meet Salem YMCA Tonight

Comin' out tonight? You better because there's going to be some action at the men's natatorium at 7:30. Oregon's freshman swimmers meet the ever-strong Salem YMCA mermen.

Jerry Macdonald, high point man in Saturday's frosh-varsity tussle will lead the Duckling splashers. Flanking the speedy Macdonald, are Gerald Huestis, breast stroke and backstroke artist, and Dick Smith, free style swimmer. Both Smith and Huestis won seconds against the varsity Saturday.

Coach Ned Johns has seven more versatile men to make things hard for the Salemites. They are Hawaiians Harold Chung-Hoon and Gwynn Matthias, Cutler Webster, Ed Jacobs, Jim Carney, Bob Range, and Bob McAuliffe.
