Two-Semester Proposal Turned Down by Faculty Of Oregon State College

Plan Is Without Future Despite Approval By Oregon Faculty; Instigator Kemler Admits Setback for Suggested Change

Turned down last week by the Oregon State college faculty in a unanimous vote, the University-born two-semester proposal was a plan without a future this week when Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter received the state college faculty's recommendation that the present system of three terms be retained.

Passed by the University of Oregon faculty only a week ago by a vote of 33 to 22, the plan failed to meet with the approval of the Oregon State college faculty administrative council when it met last Wednesday.

George W. Peavy, president of OSC, presided at the meeting of deans of schools, heads of departments, and the deans of men and women. Action was taken as a result of much faculty and student discussion on the subject.

Kemler Admits Setback Zane Kemler, prime mover in the two-semester battle, admitted yesterday before leaving for the British Columbia Delta Upsilon convention that the plan had definitely received a setback. Future action on the plan, he said, was practically out of the question, approval of other state schools being prerequisite.

The plan itself had been in the first stage of drafting at the University law school, where a bill was ready for the state legislature to permit collecting the building fee in two installments of $7.50 each per year. The building fee specification was the only legal barrier to the inauguration of the semester plan in force at some coast schools and others throughout the nation.

Second U-O Approval This marks the second time the University faculty had set its stamp of approval on the change, only to have its approval vetoed.

Oregon State college student leaders visited the University campus the week before last, and then reported to the Beaver student body that they would have to give the plan further study before reaching a decision either way.

'Ho Hum' Group Has Answers Ag'in It All

By ANNA MAE HALVERSON The prize organization developed after all the talk and writing on college campuses concerning the state of the world is at Kansas State Teachers' college. It is called a "Committee for the Investigation of America's Minding Its Own Business in the Japanese-Spanish-German Situations."

Every member must develop a definite "ho hum" to be used in ignoring foreign atrocities. Said one of the founders, "We do not intend to respond to anything in the way of anything except what we think of ourselves. We support nothing. We are against everything. We do not feel that we have sufficient information to justify anything, especially effort."—ACP.

Whoops

"You're just built that way, girls—your hips are put together like that; and no matter how many pairs of pants you put on—how much you try to act like a man, you're going to wiggle when you walk. That's what makes you cute."—Professor Thomas C. Sherwood, University of Kentucky.

FROSH GIRLS TO MEET

There will be a Phi Theta assembly for freshman women at alumni hall in Gerlinger today at 4. Master Dance and Amphibian will put on exhibitions with Jane Montgomery acting as chairman.

He Gets It Now ...

Chancellor Hunter ... the OSC faculty recommendation to keep the three-term system has reached him.

YW Frosh Group Plans Assembly

The frosh commission, composed of 16 freshman girls, helps plan activities of the various YWCA groups on the campus, and sponsors several meetings during the year.

A mass meeting, at which Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, assistant dean of women, was guest speaker, was held last term for all freshman girls. Another assembly of this type is now being planned for the near future. Members of the commission assisted with doughnut, Red Cross, and tuberculosis seal sales last term.

President of the committee is Elna Johnson; vice-president, Helen Zavodsky; secretary, Pat Salisbury. Those on the committee include Margaret Young, Isolde Eichenlaub, Nancy Knickerbocker, Ruth Hall, Betty McNiece, Maxine Hansen, Edna Mae Thomas, Lois Nordling, Barbara Bamford, Winifred Miller, Otilia Hofstetter, Elizabeth Steed, and Jean Burt.

Library Tours Aid Freshman Students

To acquaint freshman students with the library and explain how to find reference books for their term papers, Mr. Jack Plotkin, executive assistant in the library, has been giving lectures and conducting tours through the library for English composition students at the request of the English department faculty.

Rats, Psych Class Look at Each Other

Members of Professor Robert Leeper's psychology class smelled a rat yesterday—in fact a couple of rats. To illustrate the psychology of motivation, Charles McClean, an assistant, brought two hungry rats to class—Floozie and her brother, Boozie.

Floozie was placed in one half of a box, which was partitioned by a sheet of paper, and a bowl of bread and milk was placed in the other section. After she had familiarized herself with her surroundings, Floozie tore through the paper to the food on the opposite side of the box.

Floozie Goes Through Each time the experiment was performed the barrier was made more difficult to surmount by adding additional sheets of paper to the partition, but Floozie, in her search for food tore her way through. Between each experiment, Floozie, typical of her sex, stopped a moment to wash her face and brush her whiskers. "It's just like

Hoop Ace Anet Playfully Rolls Tire in Street

A basketball star rolling tires? Bob Anet, captain of the league-leading Webfoots, playfully propelling such an object down the street? Incredible, but it's true.

Anet was seen at noon yesterday, traveling toward the Sigma Nu house and simultaneously hitting the automobile tire at his side.

Explanations will no doubt be forthcoming, but they'll have to be taken with a grain of salt.

Thirty girls were initiated into WAA last night at an impressive ceremony in the AWS room of Gerlinger by Betty Riesch, president, and Jean Kendall, vice president of WAA. All of the other officers assisted at the initiation.

Lois Onthank was appointed chairman of the initiation and award banquet to be held February 25.

Those initiated were: Patricia Jean Taylor, Helen Howell, Claudia Sevier, Betty Cleator, Frances Thomlinson, Mildred Snyder, Zedie Enos, Betty Workman, Helen Graves, Ruth Ketchum, Lillian Schaffer, Elizabeth Steed, Barbara Stallcup, Thelma Bouchet, Opal Myers, Mary Ann Nevins, Virginia Kempston, Barbara Bamford, Beverly Steel, Harriet Scott, Betty Giddings, Mabel Turner, Peggy Robbins, Jean Boggs, June Bennett, Ethel Dixon, Alice Joy Frizzell, Florence Spies, Barbara Baldinger, and Arlene Thurmond.

Congressmen Join Fraternities in Fight For Security Revision

Managers Get Favorable Replies From Oregon National Solon; Will Write Again To State Body

Managers of campus Greek-letter organizations yesterday got a lift from higher up in their social security amendment fight when Ivan Clark, secretary of the managers' council received favorable answers from three Oregon congressmen.

The replies indicated the congressmen would support the house managers in their move to have the national social security act amended to exempt college Greek-letter organizations.

Remington Will Finish Speaking Series Today

Busy Clergyman To Leave for Youth Meeting in Salem

Maybe they've tired him out with a strenuous speaking schedule, but Bishop W. P. Remington, number one love and marriage lecturer, still hopes that the University will ask him back again.

A little fatigued after another hard day which included four addresses to student groups, the eastern Oregon clergyman prepared last night to leave today for Salem where he will take part in a youth conference set for this weekend.

Before he departs from the University, however, Bishop Remington still has a full day, with lectures before two social science classes and a fraternity luncheon on his social slate.

Laughing about his dozens of talks since he arrived last Friday, the bishop remarked, "It's a good thing I'm a bishop—nobody else would stick his neck out for such variety of subjects to talk on."

Ministers, he said, are always thought of as knowing only religion, and yet they ask them to be prepared to speak on every subject, no matter how remote from the realm of religious activity. Truthfully, though, he admitted he liked it, and only wished students realized he liked it.

Deady Hall Ceiling Painted Pale Green; Lighting Changed

Painters were busy today covering some of the ceilings of Deady hall with a pale green hue. The ceilings themselves were recently installed, and are acoustical tile, the trade name of which is "clo-tex."

Workmen had previously lowered ceilings, and are still installing ceiling tile in remaining rooms. Deady will also have indirect lighting, raised seats and platforms, and a new system of exit ventilation.

The large windows in the wall, which were so long a part of the building, have also been discarded.

When work is completed it is expected that Deady hall will be one of the most modern although one of the oldest buildings on the campus.

UO ROTC Officers To Attend Exercise At San Francisco

A command post exercise will be held in San Francisco during the early part of next August, which will be attended by officers from the University ROTC, according to a recent announcement of first sergeant F. I. Agule, instructor and chief clerk of the military department.

The purpose of the exercise will be to insure prompt and efficient action on the part of the various sections of the army in the event of an attack by a foreign power. Only officers will attend the exercise and the whole thing will be carried out on a theoretical basis. Troop movements and maneuvers will be plotted out on paper but not a soldier will have to march.

New Names In Race for 'King of Hearts'

Coming in just before the deadline two new candidates for the coveted "King of Hearts" title entered the race last night. These were Clair Hofflich who will represent the dorms, and Seth Smith, the red-headed flash from the Sigma Phi Epsilon house.

Both men accepted the candidacy when notified that they had been chosen. Grace Irvin, chairman of the dance, said that there had been no attempt to leave out representatives of either organization. Delay in getting the last two candidates was caused by difficulty in getting men from the two organizations to run.

Morris Will Head YMCA Campaign

Dr. Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, will head the coming YMCA youth investment week campaign to be staged here February 27 to March 6, according to plans released last night by YMCA officials.

When questioned concerning his acceptance of the position, Dr. Morris confirmed the reports, adding "The problem of counseling and guidance for young people and of helping them to bridge the gaps until their place is found in the economic life of the community is an insistent problem. I am interested in a successful campaign for 'Y' support."

Christmas Cookies, Varied Appetizers In Swedish Dinner

Typically Swedish were the varied cheese and fish appetizers, the unashed potatoes, meat balls, and the all-year-round Christmas cookies served at the meeting of the foreign foods group at the YW bungalow last night.

Prepared by the girls under the direction of Doris Hanson, the menu included dishes made from recipes in the "Princesses' Cookbook," which was edited by one of the outstanding Swedish cooking authorities.

Center of attraction during the dinner was the little cookie dish from which fairy-like tunes tinkled. At the next meeting of the group, a Japanese dinner—with chopsticks to eat with—will be served.

A new study of evolution is being made at Indiana university, where Prof. A. C. Kinsey is examining 100,000 specimens of the gall wasp.

Tony Amato Enters King of Hearts Race

Tony Amato, third-year law student, has been named by the lawyers to represent them as a candidate for the "King of Hearts," it was announced yesterday by Frank Nash, president of the law student body.

Nash said they have chosen Amato because he is "possessed of so many endearing young charms." Other qualities of the vivacious brunette were pointed out by his fellow barristers: His piquant charm, his sylph-like figure, his school-girl complexion, and his classical features. One lawyer remarked that he personifies the glory that was Rome.

Amato has had experience. Last year he was maid of honor to the queen of the law school during Junior weekend.

Asked for a statement, the modest Tony said that he was a busy man and was afraid he didn't have time for all this folderol. He added: "I only regret that I have but one life to give for the law school."

Married Women Students to Meet

The first meeting of married women students on the campus will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the YW bungalow, Mrs. John Stark Evans, executive secretary, announced yesterday.

Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the possibility of organizing a local married women's club or of joining a national group.

Dime Crawl Honors Won by Pi Phis Again

Victors Average 48 Cents Per Girl in Tuesday Dance Event; Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Phi Follow in Second and Third

Averaging 48 cents a girl, the Phi Beta Phi again walked off with the AWS cup for earning the most money at the Dime Crawl Tuesday evening.

According to figures released yesterday the Pi Phi average even surpassed the amount made by them in 1937, when they averaged 42 cents per girl. Alpha Chi Omega and Alpha Phi won second and third places respectively with an average of 46 cents and 43 cents respectively.

As before, the cup was on the percentage basis, the amount of money earned being divided by the number of girls in the organization.

Although the Alpha Chis earned more dimes, they placed second because their girls did not average as much individually.

The total amount earned during the evening for AWS scholarships was $165.07, surpassing the amount made last time by over $38. Only $127 was earned in 1937.

Elizabeth Stetson, president of AWS, said that the Dime Crawl "was very much of a success." Anne Fredricksen, treasurer of the AWS, stated, "Times must really be getting better to bring in so much more at the Dime Crawl this year than we did two years ago.

Included in the money turned in at the dean's office today were two bus tokens and a Washington tax token.

Three-Day Run Ends For 'Private Lives'

The University theater version of Noel Coward's "Private Lives" closed last night after a three-day run on the Johnson hall stage with Kay McAlear as Amanda Prynne, and Eddie Hearn as Elyot Chase. The production was directed by Mrs. Otilia Turnbull Seybolt, head of the drama division.

The modern comedy proved to be first class entertainment for a very nearly capacity house on all three nights of the performance. Difficult dialogue between the two leads was especially well handled, but most important, the true spirit of happy-go-lucky living and loving was maintained throughout the entire show.

Jeanette Hoss played Sybil Chase, Elyot's second wife, and Wilfred Roadman, who is also engaged in producing the all-campus musical "With Fear and Trembling," took the part of the outraged Englishman, Victor Prynne, Amanda's second husband.

Set, sound effects, and lighting were the work of Horace Robinson's class in stage craft.

Political Science Expert to Speak Saturday Evening

Dr. Harold J. Laski, famous British political scientist, will discuss public affairs with a comparatively small group of journalists, educators and politicians Saturday night, February 11, at the Portland hotel in Portland.

The affair will be a dinner and will begin at 7 o'clock. Reservations must be received by Friday morning accompanied by a check for $1.50, which will be the cost per plate.

DOWN BUT NOT OUT AT THE INFIRMARY

The main worry of most students reclining in infirmary beds is when they will get out. Three patients interviewed yesterday expressed the sentiments of the majority when they declared, "I want to get out of here."

It's a Party—Very few school books are in evidence in infirmary rooms. But school is not forgotten. The more studious usually worry about all the work they will have to make up. Magazines and crossword puzzles are much in demand. A few fortunate patients have radios and listen to their favorite programs.

But They Can't Sleep But life at the infirmary is not the luxury it may seem to those who have not spent some time there. One girl pointed out one of the various drawbacks when she indignantly said, "They wake us up at the most unearthly hour to take our temperature." Sleepers in Total 16 The 16 students occupying beds yesterday included: Charlene Jackson, Mary Fulton, Mary Graham, Jane Griffin, Carolyn Kamm, Ina Brenner, Michael Gallis, Paul Collins, Mason McLean, Clifford Sandstrom, William Reynolds, John Newton, William McMurray, Don Morrison, and Isabell Witmer.
