Dr. Beck to Discuss Unhappy Wedlock

Psychology Professor Covers Personality Of Marriage Partners in Talk at Villard In Second of Love Lectures Tonight

BULLETIN

Tonight's love and marriage lecture will be held in Villard hall at 8 p.m. rather than Gerlinger, as was announced yesterday.

Popular theories on what causes unhappy marriages will be given the back door this evening when Dr. L. F. Beck, assistant professor of psychology here, offers his diagnosis of modern marriage ills in the second of the 1939 love and marriage lectures, set for 8 o'clock tonight in Villard hall.

Citing the personality factors which cause broken homes, the Oregon professor will seize on the seemingly negligible elements of marriage to show their real value, he said last night.

Spoke Last Year

Dr. Beck, who figured prominently in last year's lecture series, will entitle his 1939 address, "Psychological Approaches."

Coming to the University in 1934 from Brown university, the Oregon alumnus took over the duties here of Dr. E. S. Conklin, who was one of the beginners of the love and marriage series in 1930. Since then he has figured prominently in arranging for the series each year, although he did not speak himself until 1937.

As a carry-over from tonight's lecture, Dr. Beck will be chairman of a special forum tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in alumni hall of Gerlinger, where the psychological problems of marriage will undergo further discussion.

The Oregon professor will be introduced by Bill Knight, one of 12 members of a student committee which is arranging the speakers for the eighth annual love and marriage lectures.

YW Brings French Movie to Eugene

The generally accepted theory for the deaths of Archduke Rudolph, son of Emperor Franz Joseph, and his mistress, Marie Vetsera, is the theme of the French movie "Mayerling" which opens for a four-day run at the Rex theater next Sunday.

Sponsored by the YWCA advisory board, the movie stars Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux. The dialogue is in French but easily followed with the aid of English captions, Mrs. John Stark Evans, executive secretary of the YW, said.

Directed by Anatole Litvak, the picture is based on Claude Anet's "Idyl's End."

Mrs. William Kidwell, advisory board member, and Betty Lou Kurtz, YWCA cabinet member, are in charge of downtown and campus ticket sales. Campus sales will begin today, Miss Kurtz said.

Truck Provided for Ski Enthusiasts

As a means of transportation for students wishing to ski this Sunday, the University of Oregon Ski club will send a truck to the White Branch recreational area on the McKenzie pass, February 19, that will leave Eugene at 7:30 a.m.

Since only 30 tickets are on sale for this trip, Norman Holt, ski club president, urged skiers to obtain their tickets as soon as possible. Ski club members have been given a reduction on tickets, which for them will cost $1, while non-member round-trip tickets may be purchased for $1.25.

A portion of the tickets go on sale today at Hart Larsen's campus store. The remainder of the tickets will be sold by Bob Jolly at the Chi Psi lodge, Marjorie McLean at the Alpha Phi house, Al Childs, Alpha Tau Omega, and Norm Holt, Phi Delta Theta.

Carrying skiers on this trip will be an enclosed truck equipped with seats. Latest reports last night indicated snow conditions at White Branch were excellent, with four feet of snow there.

Madge Conaway To Give Cello Recital Tuesday Evening

Madge Conaway, cellist, will be presented in her senior concert in the music auditorium of the University of Oregon school of music on Tuesday evening, February 21, it was announced Friday.

Miss Conaway, a student of Mrs. Lora Ware, will be assisted by Mary Booth, cellist, and Dorothy Davis, pianist.

Included on the varied program which Miss Conaway will present will be Mozart's "Sonatina," Bruch's "Kol Nidrei," and Popper's "Vito" from his "Spanish Dances." Miss Booth will assist in the offering of Klengel's "Concerto for Two Cellos." Other numbers are from the works of Grieg, Squire, Debussy, and Victor Herbert.

Gagster Steals Kappa Sigma Knives, Forks

The members of Kappa Sigma fraternity staged a picnic in their own house yesterday, including the usual paper spoons and forks.

The reason for this unexpected picnic was that Monday night the Kappa Sigma silverware disappeared and could not be found the next morning when the boys came down for breakfast.

The silverware was still missing at noon and several freshmen showed up equipped with paper spoons and forks.

Dinner time and the silverware was still missing. Then, just as the boys were sitting down to their evening meal, the doorbell rang.

When one of the Kappa Sigs went to the door no one was in sight, but a laundry bag containing the missing silverware was sitting on the doorstep. On the bag was pinned a valentine for the boys of Kappa Sigma with a heart painted in lipstick. The cryptic message read, "Guess who."

Quality, Not Quantity, Students Wanted Here

By MAURICE GOLDBERG

Imagine a class at the University in which during the last four years not many more than twenty-five students have enrolled?

Such is the distinction of the micro-technique class which meets every Tuesday afternoon and Thursday evening in the zoology laboratory, which is located on the third floor of mysterious Deady hall. Six hours of laboratory work per week is compulsory, but, according to Dr. A. L. Alderman who instructs the class, his students, of whom there are only seven in the entire class, do at least six hours of optional work a week for the pure enjoyment of it. Perhaps this ambition can be explained when Dr. Alderman states that, "It's fascinating work and they are there all the time."

There is no final examination, and the term is entirely devoted to the making of slides for microscopic observation in the laboratory. The student's work centers about the cutting out of species of tissues which are imbedded in paraffin wax.

When once this is done, the

Coeds Get Late Curfew Hours For Senior Ball

Big Winter Formal To Be Held in Igloo February 25

University women in colorful formal dancing gowns and men in white tie and tails will definitely be granted reprieve from the usual twelve-fifteen deadline on the night of the Senior ball, according to Mrs. Hazel P. Schwering, dean of women, who stated yesterday that one o'clock permission had been granted for the dance.

The annual Senior swing session, marking the peak of the social season at the University, is scheduled for February 25 in spacious McArthur court, when Oregon students will dance to one of the country's outstanding orchestras.

New Style Decorations

The huge court will be transformed into a formal ballroom for the occasion in a manner that has never before been possible, by the use of lighting, background and decoration, according to advance information given out by George Hall, dance chairman.

Although the Igloo will be much in demand during the week of the ball for the intensive training by the Duck basketball quintet for the championship games at the end of the month, arrangements have been made to oust the casaba pushers to allow dancers to use the floor for the gala occasion.

Stan Staiger Chosen King By UO Coeds

Number one male at yesterday's Heart Hop was Stan Staiger. He was crowned King of Hearts in the matinee event.

The "king's" two knaves were Bob Hochull and Bob Carlson, runners-up in the elections. The three were elected by more than 200 coeds Monday from a field of 21 candidates.

Staiger, who is also president of the sophomore class, made an inaugural address after his coronation at the Delta Gamma house, speaking with all dignity and ceremony due the occasion.

The commission in charge of the four-house dance announced last night they would have about $40 when the ticket money was all in.

Lawyers' Libe Adds Recent Volumes

Books received since November by the law library were announced yesterday by Mrs. Lois I. Baker, law librarian.

The books added to the library shelves include: "Mr. Justice Holmes," Frankfurter; "Cardozo and Frontiers of Legal Thinking," Levy; "Law and Mr. Smith," Radin; "Who's Who in America, 1938-39"; "Reading in Personal Property," Fryer; "Conflict of Laws," Goodrich; "Readings in Jurisprudence," Hall; "Accounting in Law Practice," Graham and Katz; "Origin of Conjugal Community Laws," Kephart; "Comparative Economic Systems," Loucks and Hart; "Law of Crimes," May; "Our Eleven Chief Justices," Umbreit; "Luck and Opportunity," Wellman; "Selected Readings in Constitutional Law," American Association of Law Schools; and the United States Constitution, annotated.

Copies of the laws and statutes passed in the 1938 regular sessions in Kentucky, Mississippi, and South Carolina have also been received.

Gerry Horstkotte Injures Knee Skiing

Many University students went to Crescent lake Sunday on the snow train and suffered nothing more serious than a few bruises and sore spots the next day; but, Gerry Horstkotte, sophomore, was brought back to Eugene with a broken knee and confined to the infirmary.

Horstkotte's injury was the result of a spill which he took while skiing down the hillside of the Crescent lake resort. He spent most of the day Monday in the infirmary and was released late in the afternoon.

Coeds to Meet Candidates In AWS Assembly Today; More Nominations Likely

Coming almost unannounced women's politics broke upon the campus scene last night with the release of nominations for AWS, WAA, and YWCA positions, by the respective presidents.

Big names in the battle of feminine votes, coming up a week from today, are Anne Frederiksen and Rita Wright, selected by the AWS nominating committee as candidates for the office of president of that organization.

First Nominations Made

All women students will meet today in the music school auditorium at 4 o'clock to get their first glimpse of the 35 candidates up for 17 positions. Additions to the nominating committee's selections may be made at the general meeting.

The complete list of candidates follows:

AWS Nominees

WAA Nominees

For president: Jean Kendall, Margaret Van Matre; vice-president: Lois Onthank, Jane Montgomery; custodian: Helen Howell, Joanne Riesch; head of sports: Mildred Snyder; secretary: Margaret Young, Amie Thyng; treasurer: Betty Giddings, Peggy Lou Smith; sergeant-at-arms: Frances Tomlinson, Martha McClung.

YWCA Nominees

For president and vice-president: Bettylou Swart, Mary Failing; secretary: Betty Lou Kurtz, Marcia Judkins; treasurer: Anne Waha, Marjorie Montgomery.

Ruth Ketchum, retiring president of YWCA, announced that the office of president of the YW would be filled by the candidate getting the largest vote, and the office of vice-president by the coed receiving the second greatest. There will be no specific nominations for vice-president, she said.

The nominations, made by the committees on candidates of WAA, YWCA, and AWS, have been kept in the dark since Saturday, when the meeting of the AWS council put the final okay on the 34 girls.

The guest speaker will be Mrs. Lamar Tooze, of the Oregon League of Women Voters in Portland, who will speak on the "Responsibility of College Girls as Citizens."

This lecture will be of extreme interest to college women, stated Mrs. Hazel P. Schwering, dean of women, for it will help teach you how to vote and use this women's privilege.

Mrs. Tooze is an Oregon graduate and was a member of Chi Omega.

Mu Phi Epsilon Initiates Three Women Sunday

Mu Phi Epsilon, honorary for upperclasswomen in music, initiated three women into the organization Sunday morning at 8:30 in Gerlinger hall, it was announced yesterday by Charlotte Plummer, president.

The three women, all studying in the University of Oregon school of music, are Harriett Douglas, Barbara Holt, and Levina Honey.

Rain No Hindrance To Campus Workmen

Rain proved no hindrance to workmen busy pouring cement yesterday on the site of the new Humanities building.

Work will not be stopped until a considerable torrent or small flood happens to come along, according to Dr. Will V. Norris, University technical adviser.

Cement forms will continue to rise for another month or so, according to officials.

State Education Board Refinances Building Bonds, Saves $100,000

Finance Committee Plans Refunding System for Construction Program Loans; Lower Interest Rates to Make Saving

A saving of approximately $100,000 in interest will be effected by a new financing and refunding program on its building bonds recently completed by the state board of higher education, according to an announcement yesterday by Charles D. Byrne, secretary of the board.

The program as worked out by the finance committee of the board involves the bonds issued to match PWA grants for financing construction of the infirmary, library, PE building, and several buildings on other campuses in the state system. It also includes refunding of bonds issued more than a decade ago for the construction of dorms at OSC and the University, and for the Memorial Union building at OSC.

Students Pay These

All of these issues are special obligation bonds with interest and principal paid from the student building fee authorized by the legislature or from dorm earnings.

Proceeds from the new issue are being used to match a PWA grant of 45 per cent in financing a new chemistry building and remodeling the old science building into a modern structure on the Corvallis campus.

Libe, PE Bonds Refunded

At the University the 4 per cent building bonds issued to match a PWA grant in financing the new libe and PE buildings have been refunded on a 3 1/2 per cent basis and a new issue used to match a PWA grant in financing the Humanities building has been sold at that per cent instead of 4 per cent, thus saving $33,000 in interest over the life of the issues.

Arrangements have also been completed to refund the University and OSC dorm bonds now carrying 4 1/2 per cent interest rate. Bearing a 3 1/2 per cent rate, the refunded bonds will result in a saving of approximately $17,000.

$5000 Saved at EON

An issue of $39,000 to help build a dorm at EON has been marketed approximately one-fourth of one per cent below the original 4 per cent on which the loan was negotiated with the federal government, with an approximate saving of $5000.

"This financing and refunding program not only saves a large amount of interest over the period of the bonds, but also calls for liquidation over a shorter period and results in more favorable call privileges," Mr. Byrne said. "The building program made possible by these bonds added more than $3,000,000 to the inventory of the state at a cost of only $133,000 of state tax funds. More than 50 per cent of the costs of the buildings came from federal grants and gifts from private donations."

Members of the finance committee who worked out the program, assisted by N. A. Bork, comptroller, are E. C. Sammons, chairman; Herman Oliver; and Walter E. Pearson, new state treasurer.

PROFESSOR HULTEN SPEAKS
Charles M. Hulten, assistant professor of journalism, spoke to a forum of University high school students on "Fascist movements in a democracy," Monday evening.

Library Displays Old-Time Valentines
The valentine display in the library yesterday showed old-fashioned valentines dating from the year 1885, many of which were loaned by Mrs. A. P. Lyon, whose husband will be remembered as having worked many years in the University business office.

An interesting valentine book printed in 1855 containing colored flower pictures, and poetry was displayed with the other valentines with a short history of the origin of St. Valentine's day.

Architects Sell Stock, Get Drafting Machine

By MARGARET GIRVIN

When the architecture students want something they work for it—that is how the new drafting machine came into the department. Feeling the need of a drafting machine the students, after failing to obtain one from the University, resorted to selling stock, according to Michael Gallis, president of the architecture club.

Stock Worth $3 a Share
The stock, worth $3.00 a share, is an original etching. The copper plate was cut by Bob Swan, junior in the department, etched by David Arnold, graduate assistant, and printed by Gallis and Charles Endicott, senior architecture student.

Thirty shares were sold for the drafting machine within two weeks. The machine is now in the department for the use of the stockholders.

Gallis voiced his hope that there would someday be a drafting machine for every student in the school of architecture.

ROTC Classes Will See Two Pictures

The usual teaching routine will be abandoned today by Major H. L. Barrett, assistant professor of military science, and two war department training films will be shown at his 9 o'clock and 1 o'clock advanced military classes, he announced yesterday.

Field fortifications and emplacements of infantry weapons will be covered in the first film, and the second will show methods of camouflage and individual methods of protection for troops in the field. Both are sound pictures. They are sent out by the signal corps and the chief of infantry's office in Washington, D. C.

The showing of the two films will take about an hour, Major Barrett said.

The 9 o'clock class will be held in the men's gymnasium in order to avoid conflict with other classes, he added, which will make the admission of others than class members possible. The 9 o'clock showing will be open to anyone who cares to attend, but the 1 o'clock showing, which will be in the barracks, will be open only to class members.

Arrangements have also been completed to refund the University and OSC dorm bonds now carrying 4 1/2 per cent interest rate. Bearing a 3 1/2 per cent rate, the refunded bonds will result in a saving of approximately $17,000.

Portland Trip Aids Yearly YMCA Drive; Increases Interest

Newel Howland Comish, professor of business administration, who heads the YMCA finance drive, Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of administration, and Francis Beck, executive secretary of the YMCA, spent part of the weekend in Portland working on the drive.

"The trip was very satisfactory from the financial standpoint as well as from the standpoint of increasing interest in local YMCA work," said Mr. Beck.
