

DUCK TRACKS

By ELBERT HAWKINS

That arm trouble called bursitis which has checked the career of many a promising baseball pitcher isn't really curable for the unfortunate if he wants to stay with pitching.

Forrest Twogood, the Idaho coach, who has a typical case of bursitis in his pitching arm, says, "I never did lose my stuff, I've got it now." Pain from the bursitis and a split biceps tendon stopped him. Otherwise you might right now be reading about a Pitcher Twogood of the Cleveland Indians.

What is bursitis? "What it really is," he says, "a fluid sack in your arm bursts." That takes away the arm's lubrication and causes the joint to have a gristle and feel sandy. Then it hurts. Twogood first injured his arm in 1927 when pitching for the University of Iowa. And he stuck it out for seven more years.

After leaving Iowa he was with the St. Louis Cardinals for several years and wound up with a couple of seasons on the Cleveland Indian roster, the Indians still owning him. In the spring of '34 when the Cleveland club was working out at New Orleans the bursitis got to hurting so much Twogood put himself on the voluntary retired list. Understand, he still claims bursitis didn't take away any of the natural pitching stuff.

St. Louis Cardinal money helped Forrest Twogood through college, in fact he doesn't deny. Twogood says, "It kept me above the subsistence level—so I got the most out of college." Iowa had him as a football player, a good one too, but a broken leg in his sophomore year ended the grid aspirations.

The practice of major league clubs sending baseballers through college isn't a bit unusual, quite naturally. Examples can be found not far from home. Take big Bill Sayles, for instance. He speed-balled for Oregon two seasons ago, pitching Hobby Hobson's Webfoot team to a northern division championship in his sophomore year. But Big Bill was the property of the Boston Red Sox and he quit school. Twogood had a gentlemen's agreement with the Cardinals, and he finished school and got the almighty degree.

George Varoff is no longer a pole vault champion of the world with his indoor and outdoor records both gone. But right now he's even a stronger bet than ever to hit the mythical 15-foot ceiling. "The Mad Russian" just yesterday vaulted over 14 feet indoors, which Colonel Bill Hayward says is a full six inches over his mark of the same time last year. Colonel Bill has long believed George can vault 15 feet, and this year will be the Californian's last chance in college.

George actually cleared the bar at 15 feet in a southern meet as a sophomore, but he knocked it off on the way down. Last winter at this time his best was around 13 feet 6 inches, and because of a bad leg he really didn't get started during the spring. George's best vaulting last year was done during the summer months in Europe. In the famous words of Emerald Editor Paul Deutschmann, "Things are looking up." With 14 feet already bettered in the middle of February, Pole Vaulter George Varoff bids fair to have a record season.

Up one season and down the next, or down one season and up the next. Take your choice. That is the plight of the freshman basketball coaches of Oregon and Oregon State.

Wild Bill McKalip at Beaver-ville had promise of a great rookie quintet last winter what with a couple of Bellfountain "giant killers" and a few others. But ineligibility riddled McKalip's team and he had to sit in silent pain and watch Honest John Warren's Oregon freshmen run rough-shod over the Orange babes in four straight games.

Then the tables turned. Honest John had a pretty fair bunch of Ducklings lined up last December to play on his Oregon yearling team of 1938. He did, that is, until examinations came along and took away four of his best athletes. Right now the Ducklings are in the middle of their worst season under Honest John, have already been walloped twice by McKalip's smooth and definitely superior rooks, and don't stand to win either of the last two unless—unless both teams have a shocking reversal of form.

Aqua-Ducks Splash Out Win Over California, 40-35

Oregon Mermen Establish Three Meet Records

Records Again Fall Before Dallas-Wetmore Duo

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Berkeley, Feb. 15.—(Special to Emerald)—The traveling University of Oregon swimming team downed the Golden Bears of California by a score of 40 to 35 this afternoon at the Berkeley pool. Five meet records were broken, and the Ducks broke three of them. Oregon's new marks came in the 300-yard medley relay (Sherm Wetmore, Jack Dallas, Jim Marnie), 150-yard backstroke (Sherm Wetmore), and the 200-yard breast stroke (Jack Dallas). Aronson of California established a new meet record of :24.8 in the 50-yard dash. The Bear team—Clarke, Figely, Cox, and Gerdes—set a new record of 3:50.4 in the 400-yard free-style relay.

Webfoots Show Well

The Webfoots stood the effects of the trip well, as was witnessed by the fast times turned in. Sherm Wetmore, super-streamlined sophomore, turned in his best time—1:42.3—in the 150-yard backstroke. "Captain Jack" Levy has shown remarkable improvement in this event. The "Milwaukee Mariner" came in second to Wetmore. Levy has formerly been used in distance events, but recently has demonstrated much talent as a back-stroker.

Webfoot Jack Dallas, another flying sophomore, left the best California could offer in his wash, as he swept through the 25-yard pool to a new meet record of 2:31.8 in the 200-yard breast stroke. Dallas, exponent of the strenuous "butterfly" stroke, has never been beaten in this event. Veteran Ralph Lafferty asserted his right to the order of breast strokers as he came in second, well ahead of California's Woodman.

Win Medley

"Maui" Jim Marnie chipped in with Wetmore and Dallas to aid in turning up a new meet record in the 300-yard medley relay. Their time of 3:09 is somewhat under their coast record of 3:03 set last Saturday against the Washington Huskies.

Unhappy Ducklings Worry Super-Varsity

Warren's Hoopmen Lose Close Game By 54-46 Count

Coach John Warren's unhappy Ducklings threw a scare into the super-varsity in a scrimmage session last night when they were nosed out by the Hobson-men by a score of 54 to 46. Still harping on accurate passing with hopes that the frosh will snap out of their doldrums and knock over the Oregon State rooks this Friday, the yearling mentor kept a tabulation on poor passes thrown in the game and found the results far from satisfactory.

Today is the last chance the frosh will have to brush up on their passing before meeting the rooks in the massive Igloo this weekend. So far, the frosh have failed to score a win over their Corvallis brethren in the first two games of the "little civil war series."

Led by Lettermen Ted Sarpola, Matt Pavalunas, and Ford Mullen, the super-varsity built up a strong lead in the first two quarters of the scrimmage, but when Sarpola and Pavalunas went out the frosh started hitting.

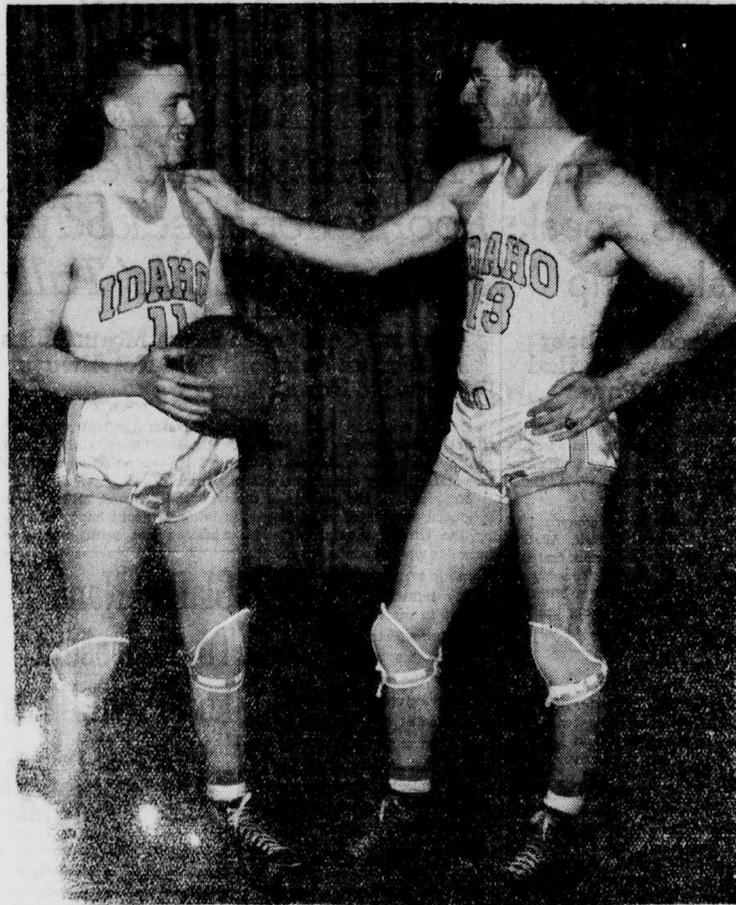

By the end of the third quarter the frosh were leading 38 to 37, and it was up to George "Porky" Andrews to pull the game out of the fire for the supers.

Paced by Len Gard, clever ball-handling frosh forward, and Doug Haven, the frosh made the going hard for the frosh stars of last year in the second half. Poor passing kept the yearlings from hitting more often.

Don Galbreath, Bob Deverell, Les Thompson, Laverne Van Marter, Burke Austin, Ross Kilborn, and Dick Whitman were also used in the scrimmage and will probably see action in tomorrow night's meet.

Cellar Champs Still Smile

Steve Belko (left), will-of-the-wisp Vandal forward, and Lyle Smith, bespectacled guard, are leading a team which is going out of the northern division backwards. Co-captains of the Vandal five, Belko and Smith have been the sparkplugs of a team that has just lost a four-game Willamette valley series and has but one victory in 11 contests.

Kappa, Gamma Phi Win Coed Hoop Tilt

Thetas Tie Orides At 14-14 in Other Intramural Clash

The Kappas handed the Co-op their first defeat last night to a tune of 12-6 in a "guard" game, after the Thetas had tied up with the Orides, 14-14, and the Pi Phis had fallen before the Gamma Phis, 16-7.

Although the Kappa vs. Co-op, "C" division clash was kept open and clean, both teams passed more than they shot, and missed most of these tries.

This fast-passing Kappa sextet led throughout, standing 3-0 at the end of the first quarter. In the six minutes of the second quarter, one basket was made, "Rusty" Tomlinson's for the Co-op.

Mary Thatcher, Kappa, was high scorer with seven points. Lineup:

Kappa (12)	(6) Co-op
Casey (5)	F (2) Tomlinson
Thatcher (7)	F (2) Miller

Thetas Tie Orides 16-16

It was a hard, rough, "A" fight that ended in a 16-16 tie between Thetas and Orides. Starting slowly, this "on the floor" game broke in the last half to let the Theta forward "Angie" Adlesich shine with four quick baskets.

Lineups:

Alpha Tau Omega breezed into the semi-finals of the "A" league intramural basketball playoffs last night as a result of a one-sided 20 to 19 win over Theta Chi.

It was a great win for the ATO quintet who suffered their only defeat this season at the hands of the Theta Chi squad and were almost eliminated until the Sammies obliged by whipping the Theta Chis to tie the division three ways.

The winners ran the count to 6 to 0 at the quarter and 16 to 6 at the half before "Whizzer" White sparked a second half rally which brought them to only five points behind ATO at 20 to 15.

Both teams played fast clean ball, the ATOs forcing the play with a fast break. Wayne Scott netted 10 points for the winners and Whizzer White eight for the losers.

Summary:

ATO (20)	(19) Theta Chi
Dunn (1)	F (8) White
Graybeal (8)	F (2) Darjotes

Delts 18, Sigma Chi 17

Delta Tau Delta squeezed out an 18 to 17 win over Sigma Chi in a rough see-saw game last night to enter the semi-finals in "A" division.

After being down 8 to 4 in the opening minutes, the Delts spurred to knot the count at 9 to 9 as the half ended.

The winners continued their fast attack in the second half running the score to 15 to 9 at the three-quarter mark.

Webfoots Seek Win in Second Collegiate Mix

Dual Affair Billed For Tonight at Men's Gymnasium

By KEN CHRISTIANSON

Oregon wrestlers will attempt to break into the win column in their second intercollegiate bout this evening against the Linfield Wildcats in the wrestling room of the men's gymnasium.

In their first match this season in collegiate competition, Oregon grapplers came out from under a 15-point handicap to tie the Washington matmen, 18-18.

Four Wrestlers Oregon

Four of the Webfoot men who saw action against the Huskies are slated to be in the Oregon corner tonight.

In a previous match, Linfield won but one match from Oregon State. That match was in the heavyweight class. The Wildcat matman, Gillis, is heavyweight champion of the northwest.

Oregon State won six matches against Washington's three Friday night which establishes Oregon as favorites over the Linfield squad.

Oregon's Best

Oregon, which has its strongest mat team this year, will be led in the attack against the Wildcats by "Wee" Willie Williams. Williams, captain of the Ducks, won his last fight against his Husky opponent by a decision.

Williams will tangle with Gillis, Linfield's northwest champion, at the heavyweight go.

Glenn Carroll, Oregon heavyweight, will take on Endicott in an exhibition.

Dale Peterson, talented blond president of the Mitt and Mat club, will attempt to regain his winning stride when he matches holds with Dichter of Linfield at 175 pounds.

Rorvick Has Match

Berger Rorvick, winner of the beard-growing contest of the sophomore whiskering, will replace Ray Foster at 165 pounds against Meyers of Linfield.

Mort Myers, Oregon 155-pounder, is slated to endure six torrid minutes with Hight of Linfield.

Jim Mountain, despite an injured shoulder, will come out of the Oregon corner at the 145-pound go against Nickerson of Linfield. Al Conger, Oregon, 145-pounder, will wrestle Henry of Linfield in a welterweight exhibition.

Burt Dake, Webfoot lightweight, will match talent with Pearson, Linfield, 135-pounder.

Bill Lauderback, genial 135-pounder, will make the 128-pound limit against Milligan, Linfield featherweight.

Wendell Haley, lean and diminutive 118-pounder, will grapple with Logan of Linfield at the bantam weight go.

Coed Swimmers to Vie for Silver Trophy

Splash! They're off! At least they will be tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Gerlinger pool when the houses assemble for the second and final act of the intramural swimming meet. Three weeks ago the Delta Gammass walked off with 21 1/2 points to lead the field, while Martha McClung won 14 tallies for the Pi Phis.

In tonight's competition the various group's scores will be added to their last week's results, and then the organization with the highest cumulative score will be awarded the silver trophy.

Speed Expected

Some fast times are expected to be recorded. Martha McClung and several of her sisters have been practicing diligently on lengths, sprints, and diving many an afternoon in the pool. Alpha Chi O's Jean Watson has been clocked at record-breaking time for both the 20 and 40-yard free-style races during practices, and should prove competition for Martha and Marion Barrett. Delta Gamma, who has been training since the last meet.

If you hear in the near future that the University high schoolers have challenged the WAA to a swimming meet, don't be alarmed.

Quiet Reigns on Oregon Hoop Front

Coach Hobson Calls Off Regular Drill For Day; Part of Varsity and Super Varsity Work Out Anyway

Quiet reigned on all fronts yesterday as northwest hoop rivals eased off in their preparation for Saturday's general bombardment which will see Oregon and Oregon State and Washington and Washington State meeting in civil war skirmishes.

At McArthur court, a "no practice" sign greeted Oregon's Ducks when they appeared for a workout. A hard scrimmage Tuesday night convinced Mentor Howard Hobson that rest was the "medicine" for his Ducks. So he went golfing, while members of his league-leading brigade watched "B" league games.

Forty miles to the north, at Oregon State, the Beavers fresh from two consecutive victories over the Idaho Vandals, by 42-29 and 35-30 scores, Monday and Tuesday nights, also recuperated from the exigencies of their hoop labors.

Huskies Make Trip

In the meantime, Idaho's Vandals, the only club which does not play this weekend but which meets Washington at Moscow next Monday and Tuesday, was heading back to the Inland Empire, their hopes shorn by galloping Oregon and Oregon State teams.

At Seattle, Washington's Huskies were packing their hoop paraphernalia for their second road trip of the season, into the Inland Empire.

Although Coach Hobson called off practice, his edict did not keep

Wintermute and Gale Still Head Division Scoring

Oakridge Dead-eye Gets Within Range Of 187 Record

With Oregon's Laddie Gale and Slim Wintermute head and shoulders above the field and going away, interest in the northern division scoring race, now nearing the three-quarter post, centers around the struggle for lower bracket positions in the coveted "Big Ten."

Wally Johansen, lithe Oregon guard, was the only victim of the scoring struggle in the Oregon State-Idaho series during the first of the week. Johansen, who held ninth position prior to the Corvallis series, was passed by both Ron Harris of Idaho and Frank Mandic of the Beavers and pushed down to 11th.

Harris Gets 13

Harris collected 13 points in the two games to bring his total to 79, while Mandic gathered 16 to move into tenth place.

The seven top scorers in the loop were not affected by the rise of Mandic and Harris, however. This "status quo" will not be jeopardized until Friday and Saturday when Washington plays Washington State and Oregon faces Oregon State.

Both Gale and Wintermute are in no immediate danger of being overhauled. Tall Laddie has 149 points to his credit, and is only 38 points away from Wally Palmberg's "official" record. In order to set a new high mark, Gale must hit just under 10 points in the remaining four games.

Slim Close Too

The 6-foot-8-inch Wintermute has scored 128 points, and needs a game average of 15.25 the rest of the way to top Palmberg's mark.
