

Student, Business Men Meeting Planned for Campus

Opportunities for BA Graduates Will Be Discussed in March

Commercial Leaders Will Attend Oregon, Washington Conference; Morris to Head Talks on Banking, Other Problems

Students of the BA school as well as the entire student body and selected business leaders from Oregon and Washington will meet on the campus March 28, 29, and 30 for group discussions of the political problems of business, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration.

Leaders in insurance, production, real estate, foreign trade, banking, finance, marketing, merchandising, advertising, and other fields will be among those included at the conference.

Emergency Loans Due by March 16, Lindstrom Says

All emergency loans due on or before registration day for spring term must be paid before registration material can be released, J. O. Lindstrom, University business manager, has announced. Students having these loans are urged by Mr. Lindstrom to pay them before March 16 in order to avoid delay on registration day and the payment of late registration fees.

Military Students See Aviation Movie

The complete process of producing an aviator for the United States naval reserve was flashed across a screen today in the rifle range of the ROTC barracks before five classes of advanced military students.

The film showed each step in the training of the aviators from the time that they enter the naval reserve until they receive their gold wings and become full-fledged aviators.

The moving picture was brought here by W. A. Hibbs, aviation cadet in the United States naval reserve. Students interested in naval aviation were allowed to talk with Hibbs after the picture had been shown and learn just what the requirements were for entrance into the naval reserves.

Men's Houses Sign Nine New Pledges

Nine new pledges were marked up for men's Greek living organizations on the campus last week, as the 17 houses launched into final pledging for winter term.

Phi Delta Theta added the names of Douglas Caven, Jack Jasper, and Bill Skade to their roster; Delta Upsilon pledged Robert N. S. Crosby and John Yeakley; Theta Chi added Howard R. Speer; Kappa Sigma, Robert L. Lansdon; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Ralph Peters, and Beta Theta Pi, David T. McKibben.

The University of Denver has acquired a book on accounting printed in 1494.

Coed Riflemen Whip Freshmen, Ready to Pose

When the women's rifle team defeated the freshman boys, by a margin of eight points, earlier this term, they little realized how far the news of their accomplishment was destined to go.

It was reported yesterday, that Paris Emery, Universal news photographer, was attempting to arrange to get moving pictures of a re-enactment of the match between the two teams. The newsreel films will be shown all over the country, George Godfrey, head of the University News Bureau, said.

Present plans are for the pictures to be taken Thursday, according to Harvey G. Blythe, coach of the girls' team.

Stop Signs to Be Installed on 13th By Wednesday

Special Police to Be Detailed to Check Campus Traffic

Stop signs for Thirteenth street at University and Kincaid will go up within two days, according to a police committee report to the city council last night.

The council also approved a ruling to place a member of the Eugene police force on the campus to help enforce the ordinance. The man will be stationed here indefinitely and will also check on over-parking, parking on the wrong side of the street, and speeding as well as seeing that all traffic stops at the two stop signs.

The step was taken by the council to remedy the traffic situation which has been the cause of six traffic accidents and many minor scrapes during the past month.

The council also approved a petition of the Oregon Motor stages to change their bus lines through the city. This petition requested permission, among other things, to reroute the Springfield bus line from Eleventh to Thirteenth street. The new route will run directly through the campus.

Oregon, Californica

Oregon State's vastly improved Beavers take to the road this week for a four games in five nights series in the Inland Empire against Idaho and Washington State. The Beavers face Idaho at Moscow to-night and Wednesday and then after one day's rest complete their trek on Friday and Saturday nights against the Cougars.

Crucial at Seattle
Oregon's defending champions and the Washington challengers will mix in two games of "do or die" for both clubs. One Oregon victory would mean a championship for Eugene and a sweep by the Huskies would take another title to Seattle.

Third place may be at stake when Oregon State and Washington State tangle Friday and Saturday nights if Idaho hasn't tripped the Beavers before then.

The northern division saw another rough and tumble battle Saturday night when Washington State and Idaho met at Pullman. The Cougars won, 44 to 34, in a game which was marred by 43 fouls. The winners jumped to an early lead and were in front at halftime, 22 to 17. Forrest Two-good's scrappy Vandals rallied late in the game and got up to 38-33 with only five minutes remaining, but the Cougars resorted to stalling and pulled it out of the fire.

Bears Need Two

California must win both of its remaining contests with Stanford to retain the division leadership, assuming that Southern California take a pair from the down-trodden UCLA Bruins who were trounced Saturday night for the tenth consecutive time by Stanford in a game at Los Angeles, 37 to 23.

In Saturday's crucial Southern California-California contest, the winners jumped out to a 22 to 14 halftime lead in the rough scrap and staved off several Golden Bear bids late in the game to win. Ralph Vaughn, high scoring forward, played a major role in Troy's victory before a capacity crowd of 7500 persons. Only time the Bears were in

Oregon's Seacoast, Old Architecture in Latest Paint Exhibit

The misty surf that dashes wildly against the rocks of the Oregon seacoast, and the rustic beauty of old world architecture may be vividly recalled this week by visitors to the Little Art gallery in the art building on the University of Oregon campus, where work of Wallace Hayden and Eyler Brown are on display.

Mr. Hayden, assistant professor of architecture, and Br. Brown, associate professor of architecture, have brought these scenes into definitive visualization, executing the pattern of each with artistic deftness. More than a score of pen, brush, and pencil drawings have been contributed by Mr. Hayden, and Mr. Brown has contributed six water colors.

Scenes Are Familiar Ones
The scenes of Mr. Hayden's water colors are readily recognizable to the Oregonian, for the sights are familiar to most observers of landscape and coastline in the northwest. The weathered and brightly-painted beach cottages of vacationers, with the ever-present telephone pole and gray sky over the sea country in the background, make a picture that is at once gay and somber.

Waves Autumn, Etc.
Others show the angry waves dashing against brown shore rocks, a varicolored autumn landscape, an unkempt studio of an artist, and a backyard seen through gray trunks of trees. A discriminating colorist, Mr. Hayden creates with restraint, as in the woodland scene, or with contrasts of vibrant intensity, as in the monumental still life.

Skill Shown
Mr. Brown's drawings show rare craftsmanship. His controlled touch and deft delineation of form are clearly evident in his drawings of a stately tower at Dinkelsbühl, Germany, an arched Roman bridge near Genoa, and the facade of a house at Mainz. The vocabulary of the draughtsman is widely represented, the different ways of doing things being ably demonstrated by richly varying techniques.

Two illustrations of Mr. Brown's varied types of studies are shown in the sketch of a Venice sailing barge, and that of two French women washing clothes on the steps going down to a river.

More Than Just Accurate
The subjects of both artists hold interest beyond mere recognition of subject; they have a quality much more easily seen and appreciated than defined. Also on view is a loan collection of three oils painted by Helen McAusland, Briggs Dyer, and B. J. O. Nordfeldt.

The exhibition will continue until March 11. The public is invited, and hours are from 9 to 12 mornings, 1 to 4 in the afternoons.

Five Will Represent U.O. Music School in Portland Contest

The University school of music will have five representatives when the National Federation of Music clubs state contest is held in Portland on March 4, it was announced Friday.

Dorothy Louise Johnson, youthful instructor of violin from Portland, will compete in the young artists' group. Emile Chan, pianist from Marshfield; Evelyn Erickson, pianist, Lorene Mitchell, violinist, and Dorothy Davis, pianist, all of Eugene, will enter the students' competition in the contest.

Rhode Island hall of Brown university was one of the first college buildings in the country used for the teaching of science.

Ten-Year-Old's Paper Now in Libe Files

"The Valseltz Star" is the latest newspaper to be put on file in the library. It is a paper put out by a ten-year-old girl and her eight-year-old assistant. It is published by Dorothy Anne Hobson, daughter of the cook at the Valseltz, Oregon, lumber mill, and printed by Herbert Templeton of a Portland lumber company who uses this paper for advertising purposes.

When Templeton visited this town where his company gets its lumber, he was shown the first issue of the paper but told that it couldn't continue to be printed because of lack of money.

Interested because it was put out by a young child whom he would like to help, Templeton offered to mimeograph it for her in his office. Every month she sends him her material and he prints it exactly the way she has written it.

It is only one page long but is filled with many items concerning the little town of Valseltz as well as national affairs. An autographed picture of ex-President Herbert Hoover was sent to them in appreciation for the issues of the paper they had sent him. It was also sent to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who enjoyed it so much that she presented it at one of her press conferences. A letter of praise and thanks was also sent by Mr. Boettger of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, who is President Roosevelt's son-in-law.

An example of the type of news items may be shown by this one: "Mrs. P. A. Grout left last fast for Salem to have her appendix out," or "Some of the children in the fifth grade lost their umbrellas, and Mr. Neville Chamberlain lost his, too, over in Italy," or "The ladies bridge club will entertain all their husbands with a dinner at the cook house on the 21. After dinner they will go over to the Thomas house to play bridge. They think they will have a lot of fun."

This paper will be kept in the library so that it can be seen by any student who wishes to see it.

Grad Newsmen Visit Eugene Friends

Bill Jones, advertising manager of the McMinnville Telephone-Register, formerly a student at Oregon, and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Phipps were visitors in Eugene last weekend.

Phipps is the news editor of the McMinnville paper and a past Emerald editor.

Joe Pigney who is with the Portland staff of the Associated Press was also in Eugene last weekend. His wife is here during the illness of her mother, Mrs. J. B. Gierhart.

Women Speakers Begin 4-Day Tour

The women's symposium team began their four-day tour yesterday morning. Members will give their speeches on youth and their problems to Oregon audiences in Tillamook, Astoria, Knappa-Svenson high school, Clatskanie, Seaside, Warrenton, Rainier, and St. Helens.

Members of the group taking the tour with D. E. Hargis, their instructor, are Dorris Leighton, Darlene Warren, Florence Sanders, Carol Bird, and Lois Nordling.
