DUCK TRACKS

By ELBERT HAWKINS

Up Seattle way they're still speaking of Webfoot Joe Gordon as the boy who almost played Coast league ball for Seattle. That he didn't was apparently no fault of Joe who last summer bludgeoned out home runs and tended ion New York Yankees.

Joe, it seems, is a nephew of Sammy Wilderman who used to write sports publicity for Oregon and quit that job to practice law in Portland. And Sammy visualized Flash Joe's great possibilities when the world's prize second sacker Fizzeds Conquer was in Oregon. So in one of his enthused moments the ex-publicity Willamette Champs "he (Joe Gordon) can field like a Peckinpaugh, run like a deer . . . and hit? Why, he booms 'em to the far corners . . . someone should sign him for professional baseball."

With that information stowed away, the eager writer hot-footed to William Klepper, shrewd trader fields to conquer. of baseball flesh, who owned the Seattle Indians.
