For after all who ever saw an all-anything team that included members of only one team? It read like this: forwards, Gale and Dick; center, Slim Wintermute; guards, Anet and Johansen.

In fact, Hobby apologized for his all-star choice: "I do think we have an all-star team right here, and no one would go wrong with the combination." That's our point, the coach of Oregon' twodivision, coast champs, champs west of the Mississippi, and national champs didn't go wrong with that combination.

Washington Swimmers Top Northern Division Oregon Team Second

The University of Washington posted a total of 82 points in the northern division Pacific coast conference swimming meet in Seattle Saturday to run away with the crown. Oregon was second with 47 points, and OSC was third with 30 ponits. Idaho and Washington State tied for fourth place with six points each, while Montana was last with one point.

Oregon shone, as usual, in its specialties-the 300-yard medley relay, the 150-yard backstroke, Jim Marnie pooled their talents Time: 24.3. and posted a new championship mark by swimming the 300 in 3:08.8. And again it was Jack Dallas in the breast stroke and Sherm Wetmore in the backstroke, as the Washington; fifth, Mallory, Oretwo Californians polished off three records each - the championship, the pool, and the northern division marks. Dallas went the 200-yard breast stroke in 2:31, while Wetmore took the backstroke in 1:42.1.

Ends '37 Season

The Saturday meet marked the end of another swimming season for the Oregon mermen. The team was coached by Ned Johns, one time track star for Stanford university, and Jim Reed, ex-Oregon and all-American swimmer. The season was fairly successful, but the Oregonians look forward to a great year next year, when some outstanding frosh of this year-Dick Smith, Gerald Heustis, Jerry Macdonald, Bob Range, Bob Mc-Auliffe, and Fred Vincent - will come up to the varsity.

It was a great day for the Huskies as they dedicated their new 75-foot pool. They took five first places and broke records in three events.
