

'Dove of Peace' Settles Down in Reconciled 'War Strike' Camps

Isolationists, Collectivists Compromise

Two Youth Groups Unite Efforts to Plan Demonstration For April 20

Peace reigned supreme in the camp of the University of Oregon strikers against war yesterday, after a committee meeting satisfactorily healed the isolationist-collectivist split which threatened to break the group into two factions.

The two groups of the Youth Committee Against War, who had come to a misunderstanding at the Monday meeting, are now united in making plans for the annual strike against war. It is scheduled for 11 o'clock, Thursday, April 20.

Compromise Made
The conciliation was made possible by allowing each group to retain a certain amount of independence in the program. Mr. F. B. Farquarson, member of the school of engineering at the University of Oregon and a world war ace, will still be the main speaker, but time will be allowed on the program for an expression of the collectivist point of view.

Preview Meet Slated

To discuss the two different points of view of maintaining peace, namely "isolationism" and "collective security," which split the Youth Committee Against War into two factions, a meeting has been scheduled for Westminster house at 9 p.m. Wednesday at which time Dr. R. C. Clark, dean of the history department, will attempt to clarify the situation. Draws announced.

Peace Strike Assembly Thursday Will Be Led by Veteran of World War

"A lively, forceful, vigorous speaker" and "a level-headed peace advocate" are the terms by which S. Stephenson Smith, professor of English, described F. B. Farquarson, who will speak at the April 20 assembly, sponsored by the Youth Committee Against War.

And Professor Smith should know for he has been a personal friend of Professor Farquarson for several years.

Now at U. of W.

At present, Professor Farquarson is a professor of civil and mechanical engineering at the University of Washington. He served during the World War as a captain of the Royal Canadian Air Force and saw action in France. He saw a great deal of Europe at the time of the war, some of it from a German prison camp.

Although Professor Smith was not sure whether Professor Farquarson does any flying now, he did remember that the former war pilot had been called as a consultant by the Boeing Aircraft company and was considered an expert not only on engineering but also on economics.

Would Aid Laborers

He is especially interested in aiding the migratory laborers in eastern Washington, Professor Smith said.

Two reasons for Professor Farquarson's opposition to war, according to Professor Smith, is that war ends civil liberties, and endangers the economic interests of farmers, workers, and small business men. However, one of the biggest reasons, Professor Smith said, is the ruthless destruction of buildings, bridges, and other examples of the feats of engineering, which occurs at the time of war.

Professor Smith said that 200 billion dollars worth of such property had been destroyed in the World War and in the event of another war "that would be only a drop in the bucket."

So What?

Home-Grown Show Looks Good in First Full-Length Trial Rushes

One glimpse of the inimitable Patsy Taylor in action "With Fear and Trembling" on the set of Oregon's newest Robinson-Roadman high-speed comedy is assurance that the boys and girls on the old Eugene campus are once more "hitting the ball" in the production of top-hole entertainment.

Ethan Newman, assistant to George Root in the educational activities office in McArthur court, last night telephoned in a warning to the students who wish to be among the 190 who will see the initial performance to make reservations for seats at the ASUO office before the end of the week.

Tickets in Johnson
Tickets may be purchased at the Johnson hall box office on the night of the opening, April 17, but reservations must be made at McArthur court.

Things are shaping up, and there is no doubt that a large number of people will be turned away for each of the six performances now scheduled for "With Fear and Trembling."

Few Seats Available

It is unfortunate that the limited seating capacity of the University theater will make it necessary to turn away many who wish to see the show each night of the performance. Newman pointed out the advisability for students to reserve seats for the night on which they wish to attend.

Tickets will go on sale Friday and Saturday at Washburne's when copies of Roadman's new song, "I've Found Something New In You" will also be available at the downtown department store. The song, which was recorded last week by Art Holman's orchestra, will be put on the block at the University Co-op store on Friday as well. Wilson's music store is carrying advance copies of the song now.

Frosh Glee Wins Late Permission For April 22

'Daisy Mae' Choice To Be Theme Of Annual Dance

Emerging from an advance skirmish in their dance wars with the winning of a point which will be won by few campus dances this term, Bill Loud and Walker Treese, co-chairmen of frosh glee, announced yesterday that they had arranged 1 o'clock permission for the April 22 dance.

Of only slightly lesser importance as a point was the class card reduction angle. Even before they have named their orchestra Loud arranged 1 o'clock permission for a 50-cent reduction on the admission price for frosh card holders.

'Daisy' Choices Soon

The "Daisy Mae" who is to be chosen in keeping with the "Lil' Abner" theme will appear in multiple form within the next day or so, the co-chairmen said, when the 20 girls who have been given the official backing of their living organizations will have their names announced for the inspection of the campus. As far as the actual choice of Daisy is concerned, that will be a feature of the dance. The choice will be by election on basis of door admissions.

Pledging Scheduled
Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's honorary, will be ready with a list of pledges this year.

'I'm From Oregon' She Said And Became a Celebrity

By HELEN ANGELL
Just another AWS prexy from a little university out in the west was Anne Frederiksen, AWS president, at the national meeting in Kansas last week, until she said, "I'm from the University of Oregon" . . . and then she was a celebrity!

For the mid-west heard a good deal about a Webfoot quintet carrying off the national basketball championship, and according to Anne, being a schoolmate of the champion five managed to give her an aura of glory in any group.

Tired, But Busy
Stopped a few minutes in the dean of women's office yesterday, where she was attempting to straighten out a voluminous AWS program for spring term, Anne smiled a very tired smile and declared she'd had "a wonderful time."

"When I read about the reception given the team and everything, I did wish I were home to see it all," she admitted, but she said it was fun resting on the team's glory in "foreign soil."

Likes 'Mikado' Swing
Asked what she thought was the highlight of her trip, outside of the convention itself, the new AWS prexy knitted her brows—which had picked up a few flatter-

College Students' Antics Make Stories, Says Beck

By SALLY MITCHELL
The more stupid college students act, the better newspaper reporters like it, is the explanation offered by Dr. L. F. Beck, of the psychology department, for the recent publicity given student goldfish gulpers and angieworm addicts.

SDX Founders Day To Be Planned at 4

A founders' day breakfast will be discussed at a meeting of Sigma Delta Chi at 4 this afternoon in 104 journalism. The occasion will be observed by chapters throughout the nation, and the Oregon chapter is planning to have as speaker a noted man in Oregon journalism. A picnic is planned for the afternoon. Bill Pengra is in charge of the arrangements.

Besides drawing up plans for the breakfast, the SDX-men will discuss the 1939 edition of the "Green Goose," annual spring time campus scandal sheet. Vincent Gates, chief editor, has been questioning members as to what style the sheet should assume this year.

Last year's "Goose" aroused a great deal of interest at the Sigma Delta Chi convention in Madison, Wisconsin, last fall. The University of Washington chapter is considering a similar paper this year.

Dr. Louise Pound To Speak Here Twice Tomorrow

The evolution of American speech will be scanned by Dr. Louise Pound, noted authority on languages, and professor of English at the University of Nebraska, when she comes to the campus tomorrow to address a University lecture series audience at 8 o'clock in Friendly.

Here on a dual-purpose visit, Dr. Pound will address a mass AWS assembly tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in alumni hall of Gerlinger on "Slang—Yesterday and Tomorrow."

Seven Pounds of Future Editor at Tuplings' House

It's a boy—a seven-pound amateur reporter—at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Tupling.

The son was born at 8:18 o'clock last night at the Sacred Heart hospital. He will be named Edward William. Father Tupling announced that the baby will someday edit the New York Times.

The new baby's mother is the former Gladys "Happy" Battleson, a graduate in journalism last year. Mrs. Tupling is a member of Mortar Board, Theta Sigma Phi, and Alpha Omicron Pi.

Tupling served as news editor and managing editor of the Emerald, and is a member of Friars and ATO. He is a senior in journalism.

'New Twist' of Econ On Tap Tonight

A new twist in the field of economics, the relation between psychology and economics, will be the subject for discussion tonight when the Economics club meets at 8 in alumni hall, Gerlinger.

A paper on "Psychology and the Theory of Values" will be the highlight of the evening. Mortimer Andron, graduate assistant in social science, will read the paper. He will also lead the discussion.

Anyone interested in either field or in the meeting is invited to attend, officers of the club said.

POTLUCK DINNER OFF

Due to conflicting social schedules on the campus, the "Potluck of the Nations" dinner planned for tonight has been postponed until a later date. Chairmen Mary Wright and Mary Field announced yesterday.

Girl-Date Court Dance Postponed

"Indefinitely postponed" was the pronouncement made yesterday concerning the AWS preference dessert-tennis court dance set for tonight.

The scheduled affair, which was to have been a girl-date affair replacing Coed Capers, was cancelled by Dean of Women Hazel P. Schwering, in respect to the memory of Bob Bailey, whose funeral will be held today.

Exchange desserts slated for Thursday are still on the social slate, she said.

Jitterbug Sway To Be Highlight Of AWS Carnival

Men Swingsters To Grab Partners And 'Go at It'

It will be a jitterbug jamboree when Oregon's favorite sons of swing get together at the AWS carnival, in McArthur court, Saturday night, to try to outjiggle each other for the campus championship.

Contestants from every men's living organization on the campus will choose partners and swing into their dance while Fred Beardsley and his boys hit the hot notes to set the pace for the contest.

You'll see Ted Harmon swinging it for the Theta Chis, while Paul Bocci and Jens Hansen hot foot it for the ATO and SAEs respectively. Tom Wiper will hold fire for the Phi Sigs and Sperm Wetmore will carry on for the Betas. It will be a fight to the finish with such stars as Arnie Millstein, for the SAMS, Jack Waits for the SPEs and Bob Rankin, Pi Kap all competing. Other entrants have not yet been announced.

The shag, trucking, and all the latest in rhythmic routines will be judged by prominent masters of the dance, Pirro Paasikivi, Smockey "he's in the movies now" Whitfield, and Gene Edwards.

Prizes will be awarded to the winning couple.

PARIS ARCHITECT TO VISIT CAMPUS, STAY AT DORM

By MARIE BOJE
Guy Ardilouze, Paris architect who was awarded the Delano and Aldrich scholarship for this year, will arrive April 23 for a week's visit at the University. He will stay at the John Straub men's dormitory.

Ardilouze, who was a pupil of Pontremoli at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, has won many prizes there for his architectural work.

Ellis F. Lawrence, dean of the art school, recently received a letter from the noted architect stating that he would stay in America unless war conditions developed in France during his absence. In that case, the letter said, Ardilouze would return to his native country and volunteer his services.

Oregana Jobs To Go Before Board Today

Knight, Vernstrom Vie for Editorship, Williams Up for Manager's Post

Candidates for the positions of Oregon editor and business manager will be interviewed today from 7:30 p.m. until 10 by the educational activities board in faculty room of Friendly hall.

Up for the office of editor are George Knight and Roy Vernstrom. Knight has served on the Oregana staff for the past three years and has also worked on the Emerald. Vernstrom has also been active in Oregana work during his three years at Oregon. This year he put out the student directory.

Williams Runs Again
Only candidate in the "race" for business manager is Dick Williams, who served in that capacity for this year's annual.

The educational activities board will scrutinize the petitions of the candidates, interview them personally, and turn in their recommendations to the executive committee of the ASUO.

Exec Council Thursday

Harry Weston, president of the ASUO, said that the executive council would meet Thursday or Friday noon to consider the recommendations of the other board and would probably make the final decision on the candidates at that time.

Also scheduled to come up at the executive committee meeting is the discussion of awards to the national championship basketball team.

Weston indicated further that the official dates for nominations and elections of ASUO officers would be set at this meeting. May 2 is considered a likely date for nominations, it was stated, with May 9 as the probable date for elections.

Anne Frederiksen Returns From East

AWS Prexy Meets With Coed Leaders Of Entire Country

Full of ideas for next year's Webfoot-sponsored AWS conference here, Anne Frederiksen, AWS prexy, arrived home to Eugene Monday night from a two weeks' trip to the national Associated Women students meet at the University of Kansas.

Sent there by the Oregon women students, Miss Frederiksen met with incoming and outgoing AWS prexies of 55 United States universities and colleges at a three-day convocation at Lawrence, Kansas, when problems of college women were studied.

"Growing Up in a Democracy" was the theme around which the 1939 conference was built, and six topics of discussion were handled in forum groups. The point system, freshman orientation, rules and regulations, student unions, extracurricular activities, and panhellenic rules were subjects included.

By MARIE BOJE
Guy Ardilouze, Paris architect who was awarded the Delano and Aldrich scholarship for this year, will arrive April 23 for a week's visit at the University. He will stay at the John Straub men's dormitory.

Ardilouze, who was a pupil of Pontremoli at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, has won many prizes there for his architectural work.

Ardilouze's communication, which was written in French, enthusiastically praised the United States and its scenery.

The Frenchman will journey from the University of California at Los Angeles, where he is now visiting, to Eugene by bus.

After his stop here he will travel on to the University of Washington at Seattle. Washington and Oregon are the only institutions in the Pacific Northwest that Ardilouze plans to visit on his tour.
