Speedy Frosh Meeting Amends Constitution to Correct Prexy's Oversight

Change Settles Problem, Class May Now
Nominate Legally; Meet Slated Tonight,
Elections Next Thursday, April 27

In a hurriedly-called, hurriedly-executed frosh meeting in Villard last night nearly two hundred freshmen zipped through a constitution-amending meeting called to patch up the error made by Prexy Jack Daniels last week when he forgot to announce the nominating meeting legally set for April 13. The amendment enables frosh to fill out their nominating slate tonight at 7:30 in Villard.

The quorum of first-year students listened to Daniels read the petition presented by a group of class hard holders which called for a constitutional amendment to right last week's error. The amendment, passed by a sweeping majority, will move up elections one week so that they will be held next Thursday, April 27. Nominations will also be upped a week from the charter provision to tonight's meeting.

Publication Notice Changed

Also amended was the requirement that announcement be made in two issues of the Emerald before the nominating meeting might be held.

Emerald Job Interviews on Slate Tonight

Would-Be 'Moguls'
To Appear Before
Board in Friendly

Eleven candidates, seven for editor and four for business manager, will be interviewed this afternoon and this evening by the educational activities board in the annual selection of Emerald heads.

The board met last night in the faculty room of Friendly hall to look over the petitions of the would-be newspaper "moguls" and to set a schedule of interviews.

Candidates for business manager will come before the board at a special afternoon meeting, starting at 4 o'clock. The schedule is as follows: 4:00, Dick Litfin; 4:15, George Luoma; 4:30, Glenn Ponder; 4:45, Charles Skinner.

The meeting with candidates for editor-in-chief will begin at 7 p.m. The schedule follows: 7:00, Phil Bladine; 7:20, Pat Frizzell; 7:40, Vince Gates; 8:00, Glenn Hasselroth; 8:20, Leonard Jermain; 8:40, Bill Pengra; 9:00, George Pasero.

All interviews will be held in faculty room of Friendly. The recommendation of the educational activities board will be turned over to the ASUO executive committee. Although President Harold Weston has not yet called an excomm meeting, that group will probably meet Friday to confirm the appointments.

U.S.C. to Set Up First Graduate Talkies School

By HOPE DONDERO

The movie industry joined with the University of Southern California today to establish America's first graduate school of cinematography where students can learn to make talkies, then step directly into Hollywood jobs.

The school, which will produce actual feature length movies on its own sound stages, will open in June, 1940, and will accept for two years of practical picture study, graduates of any American university able to pass its entrance examinations.

The movie school, which will be under direction of Dr. Boris Morokov, will offer courses in screen writing, directing, film editing, art direction, sound technique, picture photography, exploitation, distribution, and exhibition.

What's the Use?

The more we study, the more we know;
The more we know, the more we forget;
The more we forget, the less we know;
The less we know, the less we forget;
The less we forget, the more we know;
So, why study?

President

J. A. Churchill . . . president of ONS, will be on the campus for the state board of higher education meeting Monday and Tuesday.

Oratorical Contest Date Draws Near

May 19 Deadline
For Entries; $250
Cash to Be Given

John L. Casteel, director of the speech division, urged seniors planning to enter the annual Failing-Beekman oratorical contest to state their intentions at once. The closing entry date is May 19. The professor advised students to start preparations for the contest as soon as possible.

Social or economic problems, or topics of educational or philosophy interest are used as subjects of the speeches, Mr. Casteel said, which are usually fifteen minutes in length.

$250 Cash Awards

Judges who present the $250 cash awards to the winners are selected as follows: one state board of higher education member, one member of another university's speech faculty, one member of the 1889 graduating class, and two members of the University faculty. As yet these have not been selected, Mr. Casteel said.

Last year the first prize for the winning speech went to Kessler Cannon, and the second prize to Freed Bales.

If more than six seniors enter the contest, which is open to all graduating students, it was reported that a preliminary tryout will be held.

NINETEEN IN INFIRMARY

Nineteen patients crowded the infirmary yesterday. Those recovering from sickness, spring fever, or taking a mid-term rest cure were: Patricia Holder, Melbourne Davis, Fred Loback, Reva Horsley, Jean Stumberg, Earl Scott, Marjorie Montgomery, Elizabeth Murray, Calvin Kent, Janice Johnson, Alan Torbet, Betty Anderson, Helen Hawkins, Francis Schultz, Frances Anne Williams, Rae Sprague, John Biller, Annabel Payne, and Eunice Edwards.

CO-OP MANAGER IN SOUTH

Taking time off from regular duties, University Co-op Manager M. F. McClain is attending the Western College Bookstore association convention in Los Angeles this week. He will be back in the office Saturday or Monday.

Lil Abners To Dress For Glee

White Jackets
In Order for Saturday Dance

Latest development in the lineup of special attractions for the annual Frosh Glee Saturday night, names the Lil Abner dance a spring opener for boys, with hundreds of white jackets expected to make their premier 1939 showing in woodland-decorated McArthur court.

In keeping with the rural theme of the Glee, Webfoots and guests will pay homage to Daisy Mae, queen of freshman girls to be elected that night, in informal clothes, according to Betty Buchanan, campus social chairman. Short silks are in order for girls, and fellows will wear white jackets or suits.

Painting Begins Today

Work gets underway today with the large mural-type paintings of the famous Dogpatch characters from the Al Capp comic strip that will be the dance's theme. Plans of Cy Nims, decoration chairman, includes use of these large drawings of Lil Abner characters along both lengthwise walls of the court. At one end will be constructed a den to be decorated in the rustic manner of Hairless Joe's cave. At the other end of the floor the orchestra and coke dispensers will be surrounded by landmarks of the Dogpatch country.

Special Lighting

Special lighting effects are being installed to call attention to the drawings of the Dogpatch residents.

Queen Daisy Mae will be introduced from the orchestra pit during the intermission, according to Bill Loud, co-chairman.

Canoe Fete Chairmen Slate Meeting Today

House chairmen in charge of floats for the canoe fete will meet today at 3 in the Junior weekend office in McArthur court, Hal Jahn, chairman of the weekend, announced last night.

At the meeting the chairman will learn of a new plan for building of floats, Jahn said. Details of the plan were not released.

DR. R. C. CLARK ASKED TO ADDRESS TEXANS

A native of Texas, Dr. R. C. Clark, head of the history department, has been invited to give the address at the annual dinner of the Texas club in Portland Friday.

April 21, explained Dr. Clark, is an important day in Texas history. It was on that day in 1836 that Texas won its independence from Mexico in the battle of San Jacinto.

Deadline Set for Obtaining Tickets For Frosh Glee

Freshman class card holders who wish to take advantage of the 50-cent reduction granted them on tickets to the Frosh Glee Saturday night must obtain exchange tickets before Saturday evening at ASUO offices in McArthur court, dance chairmen said yesterday.

No class cards will receive reductions if presented at the door Saturday night, it was announced.

Good Party Men Don't Exist Student Thinks

Someone in Dr. Breen's social science class apparently doesn't think very much of either of the two major political parties in this country.

Professor Breen was discussing anarchism and concluded his remarks by saying "some perfectly good Democrats and Republicans believe in it."

The unidentified student was heard to mumble under his breath . . . "There aren't any such things!"

Symposiums Go North, South

Women Visit B. C.;
Men, Washington
Group Go Together

Both the men's and women's symposium debate teams are speaking on tours throughout the country this week.

The women's team, accompanied by D. E. Hargis, coach and University speech instructor, left Tuesday for Seattle and Victoria, B. C., to speak on "Campfire Girls in Washington." Members of the team are Lois Nordlig, Darlene Warrens, and Florence Sanders.

The men's team is discussing, "Americans Are Queer People." Their trip is taking them to Marshfield and Coquille, W. A. Dahlberg, assistant speech professor, is heading the group, which includes Walker Treece, Charles Devereaux, Leonard Clark, and Delmor Rice.

A. L. Franke of the University of Washington and his debate team is traveling with the men's symposium group also.

Local Codification Projects Model

The local office of the bureau of municipal research recently received inquiries about their codification project from cities in Georgia and Montana. Herman Kehrli, director of the bureau, reported yesterday.

"These inquiries show that the codification project developed here is serving as a model all over the county," Mr. Kehrli said.

The bureau has received various inquiries about the project in the past.

Deadline Set for Obtaining Tickets For Frosh Glee

Freshman class card holders who wish to take advantage of the 50-cent reduction granted them on tickets to the Frosh Glee Saturday night must obtain exchange tickets before Saturday evening at ASUO offices in McArthur court, dance chairmen said yesterday.

No class cards will receive reductions if presented at the door Saturday night, it was announced.

Education Budget Up For Okeh

Faculty, Personnel
Changes Will Be Taken Up at Board
Meeting Next Week

Approval of budgets for the next academic year will be the chief business of members of the Oregon state board of higher education when they hold their regularly scheduled April meeting on the Oregon campus on Monday and Tuesday. This will include personnel changes and changes in rank and tenure of faculty members of the six units of the system.

Committees Meet Monday

Monday morning, the first day of the meeting, will be given over to executive sessions of the building committee, of which F. E. Callister is chairman, and the insurance committee, headed by Edgar W. Smith. Only routine matters, in connection with the building program, are on the docket, according to Charles D. Byrne, secretary of the board.

The chancellor's executive council, composed of the institutional executives and other administrative officers of the state system will meet during the noon hour on Monday.

Finance Study Slated

The finance committee will meet in executive session on Monday afternoon and will give consideration to the recommendations of the presidents and the chancellor on budgetary matters.

The committees will report out their recommendations to the entire board at the official public meeting on Tuesday morning at 9:30 in the men's lounge in Gerlinger hall.

First ROTC Parade Of Spring Term Held

The first ROTC parade of the year was held on the parade grounds behind the barracks yesterday with five companies marching and drilling under the watchful eye of military department heads.

The parade began at 4:50 and continued until 5:30.

1932 GRADUATE ENDS MASTERS DEGREE WORK

With the completion of his thesis "The History of Klamath Falls," Victor L. Jenson, graduate of 1932, last week passed his final examination for a masters degree in history, Dr. R. C. Clark, history department head, announced.

Since his graduation, Mr. Jenson has been in business in California, later returning to teach in Klamath Falls high school.

JANE THACHER CONCERT DELAYED BY ACCIDENT

The piano concert of Jane Thacher, professor of piano, originally scheduled for Thursday evening in the music auditorium, has been postponed because of an injury Mrs. Thacher received Saturday.

The concert, to which the public is invited, will be held Tuesday, May 2, at 8:15 p.m.

Peace Enthusiasts Slate Demonstration Speeches at 11 o'Clock

F. B. Farquharson to Be Chief Figure
In Annual Protest Against Mars;
Also to Speak on Terrace Program

By BETTY JANE THOMPSON

Veteran of the World war which left him convinced that war is wasteful, futile, and foolish, F. B. Farquharson, professor of civil and mechanical engineering at the University of Washington, will be the central figure at 11 a.m. today when student war opposers stage their demonstration against war at Gerlinger terrace.

Highly thought of is this vigorous speaker by members of the University faculty as well as by students who know him. S. Stephenson Smith when asked to speak on the same program with him declined saying he thought Professor Farquharson's talk would cover the situation.

Speaks at Seabeck

University students know him as one of the best-liked speakers at Seabeck. His enthusiasm for yachting has led him to cruise from Seattle to Seabeck, bringing with him the University of Washington delegation.

In his own state he is recognized as an active leader in progressive political and social groups. His wife, Mary Farquharson, is a state senator.

He is a member of the Pacific coast committee of the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Writes of War

Of his war life story Professor Farquharson writes: "I served four years with the Canadian and British army, the first 17 months with the medicine service, and the remaining portion with the Royal flying corps as pursuit pilot. I served in Salonica, Egypt, France, Belgium. I spent the last 15 months as prisoner in Germany."

Professor Farquharson's hatred of war, S. Stephenson Smith attributes to the fact that he feels it takes away civil liberties and endangers the economic interests of the farmer, worker, and small business man. The destruction of engineering feats is another factor contributing to his attitude, Professor Smith said.

Dave Epps to Speak

Second speaker on the program will be David Epps, former student and now active in young Democrat work in Portland. He will uphold the collective security point of view.

Present indications seem to point to the absence of war poster slogans which in previous years have contributed to the color of the demonstration.

Sociology Professor Addresses Honorary

The local chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta, national sociology honorary, held its monthly meeting Tuesday in Gerlinger hall.

Speaker at the meeting was Dr. Charles N. Reynolds, who is at present teaching at the University of Oregon, head of the sociology department of Stanford university. Dr. Reynolds spoke on "Some Social Significance of Changes in the Net Reproduction Rate," using Professor Kuczynski's theory about the trends of population.

Order of the O meeting today noon at the Phi Psi house. Old and new members should be there.

F. B. Farquharson . . . U. of W. professor, will speak at the peace demonstration on campus this morning.

All-Bach Recital Slated Monday

Mary Field, fifth year student in music at the University of Oregon, will present an all-Bach recital in the music auditorium at 8 p.m. next Monday evening.

The concert will be devoted to piano music during the first half of the program and organ music the last half. Miss Field, who resides in Eugene, is studying piano under Mrs. Aurora Potter Underwood and organ under the instruction of John Stark Evans.

The allegro and presto of "Italian Concerto," "Tocatta, in G Major," and "Bouree," from the "Second English Suite" will comprise the piano selections. She will play two chorale preludes transcribed for piano by Busoni, one of the greatest Bach students of more recent times.

Organ selections will include three chorale preludes in their original form, "Prelude and Fugue in C Minor," and "Tocatta and Fugue in D Minor."

There will be a meeting of the chinaware and chest group at the Y cottage at 4 o'clock today. Mr. Vernon Hoffman, downtown jeweler, will speak on the value of sterling and silverware.

Lawyers Practice Ball As They Await BA Reply

Law school students are awaiting an answer to their challenge to a softball game with the business administration school. Meanwhile, preparations for the game are going forward. Tony Amato is captain of the law school team.

The lawyers served the BA school with a summons which reads: IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON FOR UNIVERSITY COUNTY

Law School Student Body, plaintiff, vs. The BA School, an unincorporated, nullius filius association, et alia, defendants.

TO: The BA School Student Body, defendants.

In the name of the State of Oregon you and each of you are hereby commanded to be present at Wayward field at 1 o'clock Post Meridian Pacific Standard Time, May 6th, in the year of our Lord Anno Domini Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-nine, together with hereditaments and appurtenances and emblements thereto appertaining or otherwise belonging, to meet hereinabove mentioned plaintiffs in mortal combat at the manly sport, to wit, viz., of softball to determine the professional school championship for the fiscal year, 1939 A.D.

In default whereof plaintiff will be declared to be the unmitigated, undisputed international softball champions of the United States of America, Great Britain and its possessions, the Malay Archipelago, and intermediate points; and to hold said title in freehold interest unincumbered by legal or equitable lien, judgments, mortgages, profits, to themselves, administrators, and assignees forever and ever, Amen.

Law Faculty Proud of Seemingly Successful 'Honor' System

By ELEANOR TEETERS

The honor system has prevailed in the law school since shortly after the close of the war and so far as the faculty can determine it really works, Carlton E. Spencer, professor of law, said yesterday.

Mr. Spencer defined the honor system as a code of ethics or a standard of conduct which prevails among students. "No minority of any material size will violate a standard of conduct honestly demanded by a majority of the students. Public opinion is the most powerful regulator of conduct in a student body as well as in society in general," declared Mr. Spencer.

Good Enough for All

Mr. Spencer feels that the system could work for the campus in general if a considerable majority of all the students wanted it and were willing to do what is necessary to make it work. He believes that the students would have to make clear their disapproval of dishonesty.

They Even Go Home

In the law school the honor system manifests itself in various practices. Library books are not kept under lock and key; and the students have free access to them. In the final examinations the questions, with blank exam booklets, are given out at the beginning of the four-hour periods. The students may go anywhere in the building to write. They are free to leave the building.

Lawyers Like It

The law school students mostly favor the system. Last spring a questionnaire was distributed by the law school student body officials. In answering the questions, only one student out of the 79 said that he had known of any case of cheating. All but two of the 79 approved of the system.

Mr. Spencer compiled the reasons given in the questionnaire for the success of the system. The size of the school, its compactness, and the unity of interest, were mentioned by most of the students.

The students feel that the subject matter of law studies and the type of examination do not lend themselves to the practice of cheating. Other reasons given for its success were: greater maturity of the students, the fact that the goal isn't graduation from college but admission to and practice at the bar, and the attitude of students against cheating.

Penalties Severe

The penalties for violation are severe. When the system was first inaugurated two students violated the code. One student was expelled from school and the other asked to withdraw for the rest of the year. In the questionnaire one student said, "Students fear the displeasure of other students who might discover their cheating. This pressure, I believe, is more forceful than fear of discovery."

System Improves Spirit

The liberties and freedom under the system, a better feeling between students and faculty, and personal satisfaction, were some of the reasons the students liked the system.

Some of the comments made by students in the questionnaire were:

Grades No End

"In the law school learning is for learning's sake, with grades as an evidence of accomplishment, and not an end in themselves.

"The students realize that cheating will do them no good in the long run."
