SOPHOMORES NOMINATE, AMEND CLASS CONSTITUTION

Miller New Interfrat President

Hoffman Lands Second Position; Aronson Voted Council Secretary

Walt Miller, Beta Theta Pi, won the presidency of the interfraternity council last night in a traditionally close contest, with Roy Vernstrom, Delta Tau Delta, losing out at the tape.

Reminiscent of last year's photo finish, when the flipping of a coin was finally used to decide a drawn-out battle, last night's election took several ballots after the field had narrowed down to the two, Miller finally capturing the required majority.

Other officers chosen were Lloyd Hoffman, vice-president, and Bud Aronson, secretary-treasurer. Hoffman won over Ken Shipley, while Aronson went in without opposition, due to a technicality.

Nominations were made last week, the factor which caused the technicality in Aronson's case. His opposition was originally Miller, who, by the time secretary voting was reached, was already elected president.

The group met at the Sigma Alpha Mu house.

Easter Bicycle Mishap Victim Still in Infirmary

It was Easter Sunday. She was bringing her bicycle to a stop, when the brake broke—and since then Eunice Edwards has been in the infirmary nursing a mangled knee. Melbourne Davis and Bob C. Anderson complain of an appendix and an infected foot, respectively, and at the same time agree that the campus hospital is a good place for (1) catching up with your studies, (2) three square meals a day, (3) a rest, (4) to get well.

UO Sends Out Call for Summer Room, Board

Pleas were sent out yesterday by Mrs. Marcella B. King, housing secretary, for Eugene citizens interested in rooming or boarding University students during summer session.

Already a flood of requests for places to room that exceeds supply has come into Mrs. King's office from Oregon students who have decided to enroll for summer classes, she said.

Sororities Pledge 3

Three new members have been added to sorority house memberships since formal rush week, according to the dean of women's office. The girls are Betz Chambers, Sigma Kappa; Fannie Walls, Sigma Kappa; and Juanita Haley, Alpha Delta Pi.

As a jittery world looks on and war talk is heard everywhere, the Tulane university medical school, acting at the request of the United States army, held a gathering for medical officers as a contribution to the national defense.

'Two Ton' Tony Is Chosen Queen Of Law School

"Two Ton" Tony Amato was chosen queen of the law school yesterday morning by an assemblage of future lawyers meeting in the Fenton hall assembly room.

Amato was picked as the principal flower in the law school daisy chain because of his revealing figure and delicate features. He will hold court junior weekend when he will weigh down a barge in the canoe fete.

The voting for the hotly contested honor was carried off by a show of hands. Indicating a departure from usual underhanded political procedure, the opposing blocs openly booed and hissed each other across the room. Campaigning was conducted by shouting and gesturing instead of with cans of paint and cleverly worded circulars.

The new queen was not present at the nomination convention and therefore had to be contacted later by phone. Queen Amato said for publication: "I think that it is too, too divine that I should be chosen the queen out of all the beauties that are in the law school. And I feel so sorry for the other queen of junior weekend, for I fear our little efforts will completely overshadow the other festivities."

Jalopies To Promote Weekend

Five Dollar Prize To Go to Winning Contraption

With two contests, one for a theme and one for a queen, already passed milestones in this year's Junior Weekend, the juniors added a brand new one yesterday, this time offering to make practically every entrant a winner in a "best decorated jalopy" competition.

Any kind of Harold Teen-ish signs or labels, or any other scheme, is good enough to win either the number-one award, $5, or tickets to the canoe fete, originators of the contest declared.

The only qualification is that the decorations, signs, or whatever is used, must be for the promotion of Junior Weekend. Their value to Junior Weekend promotion will determine their position when the scores are added up for prize money.

The contest is to end a week from tomorrow. Judges will be announced at a later date.

Four new appointments were announced last night by the publicity-promotion co-chairmen, Roy Vernstrom and Bud Jermain. The newest recruits are Don Cooke and Les Harger, who will work with Vernstrom, and Phil Bladine and Wen Brooks, who will work with Jermain.

Book Prizes Offered For Best Student Collections

Prizes totaling $50 will go to the winners of the "best personal library" and poster contests Library day, May 3, celebrating the second anniversary of the library opening. The prizes will be awarded through the courtesy of Frederick W. Skiff, Portland book collector.

A first prize of $15 and a second prize of $7.50 in books will be awarded to the undergraduate student presenting the best personal library.

Rules of the contest are available at the library.

TO THE OREGON DAILY EMERALD AND UNIVERSITY STUDENTS:

We, the undersigned, feel it is high time that you, as students at the University, have a crack at naming your own student body leaders . . . not merely to endorse names presented you that are either self-selected or hand-picked by a small group of bloc politicians.

It's a nasty little deal you're getting crammed down your throats . . . and has been for years. The system stands up because personal ambitions outweigh the just principle of democratic control in which everyone holding an ASUO card has a voice in student government.

The purpose of this message is not to defeat or injure the chances of the present candidates. We wish to make it possible to put the strongest men on the executive committee, without bias or premeditation by gravity-train politicians—in short, without use of the bloc system.

The criteria of the present does not tend toward choosing the men and women best suited for office . . . but toward the selection of figureheads for vote-getting bloc organizations. The result is that campus politics ends with the election of candidates to office and thinks nothing of sound student organization.

We admit that among the undersigned are some who have been engaged in the present system . . . but because of the lack of a more fair method.

We propose to have eight or ten or even more eligible candidates run . . . that at the present time are not up because of the bloc organizations. Instead of four candidates to fill the executive committee of four offices . . . let there be a qualified, representative field of student leaders on the ballot for election so the students may choose the four best fitted.

Many have been the crusades against the present system . . . but it's up to you as students with minds of your own to make this one strike home.

How about your support, students? Let's all pull together on this thing. You who don't care ordinarily—start caring! Let's take the rubber stamp out of the executive committee.

Campus Lutherans Will Hold Banquet, Install Heads Tonight

Campus Lutheran students will have a bit of seriousness as well as fun at their annual spring banquet at the Central Lutheran church this evening. Oregon State Lutheran students will be guests at the banquet this year.

John Luvaas will act as master of ceremonies. The program will include musical numbers and short speeches.

Thielemann Wins Another Scholarship

Leland Thielemann, attending Columbia university this year on a scholarship, won a similar award for the coming year plus an additional sum of $200, according to C. L. Johnson, assistant professor in romance languages.

Thielemann, who was a graduate assistant in the University of Oregon romance language department from 1936 to 1938, is working for his doctor's degree in languages.

Pickett, Lew Candidates For Second Year Prexy; Voting Set for Thursday

Emerald Notice to Appear Two Days Prior to Meetings and Also Same Day; Plans for Class Picnic Discussed

After first making the proceedings legal by amending the constitution, the sophomore class last night nominated junior class officers. The meeting was conducted amid the impressive surroundings of the Villard hall assembly room.

Those nominated were Jim Pickett, ATO, and Larry Lew, DU, for president; Jenny Casey, Kappa, and Sally Mitchell, Hendricks hall, for vice-president; Stan Johnson, Pi Kap, and Bob Keen, SAE, for treasurer; Carolyn Kortge, Sigma Kappa, and Betty Norwood, Tri Delta, for secretary.

The sophomore class constitution was changed to read that a notice regarding the nomination convention should appear in the Emerald two days prior to the meeting and also the day of said meeting. The old constitution stated that a notice should be printed in the Emerald a week before the nomination convention. This change will make it possible for elections to take place next Thursday in the YMCA hut from 9 to 3 o'clock. Voters must have class cards.

The candidates were introduced and plans for the sophomore class picnic were discussed. Prexy Stan Staiger presided.

Jones, Barber Give Concert

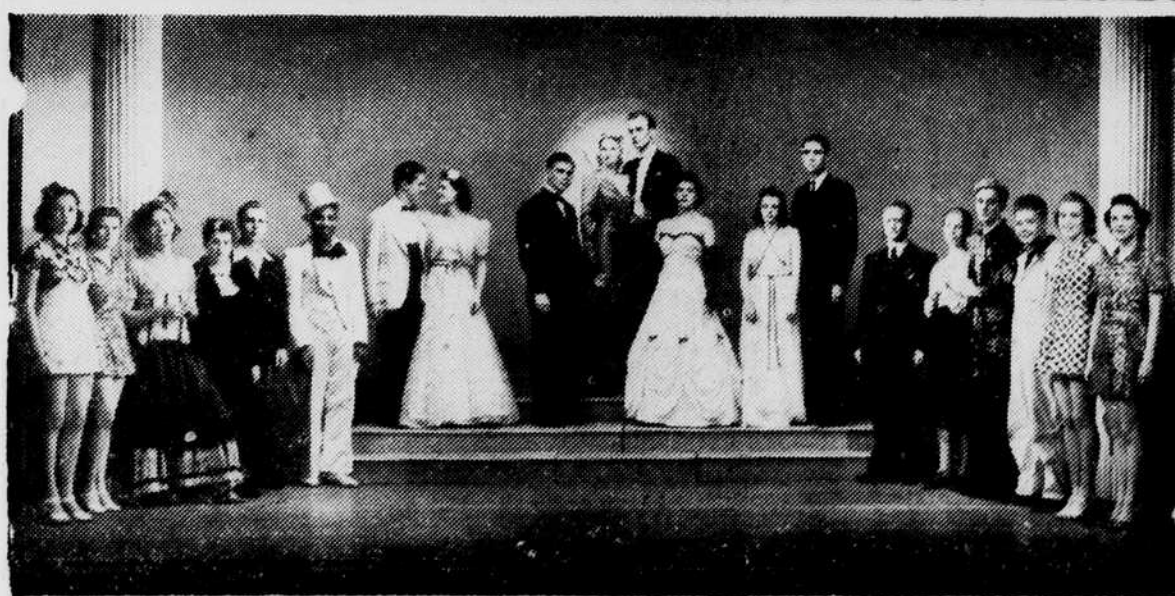

Howard Jones, cellist, and Neva Barber, harpist, presented a joint concert in the school of music auditorium last night.

Howard Jones played Sammartini's "Sonata in G Major," "La Filieuse," and "Polonaise De Concert." Neva Barber played "Monastery" by Hasselmanns, "Night Breezes" by Salzedo, and "Fantasie" by Schuecker.

Four Fraternities Pledge New Men

Four University of Oregon fraternities pledged new men last week to add to their spring term roster. Sigma Chi pledged W. R. Endicott and J. E. Larson; Delta Upsilon, Ed W. Moshofsky; Pi Kappa Alpha, Harrington Harlow, and Sigma Nu, George W. Yeager.

The Final Scene of the Final Show

The entire cast for the record-breaking, all-campus musical, "With Fear and Trembling" which will end a successful two-week run tonight at 8. The play has been acclaimed one of the best ever produced here.

It's the end of a long trail, "finis," for "With Fear and Trembling" tonight at the Johnson hall theater, where at 8 the show will open its windup performance.

Concluding two highly successful runs, the first a solid week and the second a three-day special showing, the production will sing its swan song before a final full house in the 200-seat theater. Tonight's showing will put the period to the stage career of Adam P. Teeter, alias Ed Burtenshaw, "Icky" bigshot in the production's make-believe story. Patsy Taylor will tickle her last batch of funnybones as the girl from the "Over-privileged Clawsses," and as the anti-war stumper.

Tickets Available
The University's own home-grown chorus, and Lorraine Hixson, Mary Staton, Les Ready,

Trudi Harland, and all the rest of the all-star time-tested cast will be on hand, demonstrating their several reasons for the show's success.

Heavy sales have already been rung up for this grand finale, but tickets are still available, the Johnson ticket office reported last night. Many repeaters are expected tonight to see the showing for a second or third time.

Dorm Candidate Wins In Spirited Contest

Williams, Workman, Cherney Triumph After Vigorous Campaign; Card Sales Jump; Campus-Wide Interest Shown

By NORMAN FOSTER

The freshmen, big IF in the campus political situation, went to the polls yesterday and opened the spring voting season by electing the entire Calkins ticket to sophomore class office. The 291 votes cast was one of the largest number of votes ever cast in a freshman election for sophomore officers.

The results are as follows: for president, Bob Calkins, 161, and Jack Lansing, 130; for vice-president, Barabara Williams, 153, and Maxine Hanson, 139; for secretary, Betty Workman, 155, and Margaret Young, 137; for treasurer, Bob Cherney, 148, and Cullen Murphy, 137.

The campaign leading up to yesterday's voting was a spirited one highlighted by paint dabbing, printed propaganda, whispered rumors, high pressuring, and unborn dances, serenades, and parades. And the campaigning did not cease with the dawn of election day.

Propaganda Flows

Beginning at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, a little group of ambitious Calkins supporters, paint buckets in hand, wearily trudged about town painting Calkins propaganda on the streets. All day yesterday, members of both blocs offered free rides to the polls for prospective voters.

An indication of the interest involved in the frosh election was the sale of approximately 70 class cards in the two days preceding voting. According to the Lansing bloc politicians, 50 of the cards were bought by members of their bloc. Another sign of campus interest were the countless telephone inquiries as to the election results that kept coming into the Emerald office after the polls had closed.

The ballot counting committee was composed of Arvilla Bates, Jack Daniels, Zane Kemler, Bill Loud, Emerson Page, Gene Brown, Bob Emerson, and Scott Corbett.

Bob Calkins . . . Won the sophomore class presidency yesterday.

UO Co-op In Annual Session

Nominations Due: Report to Be Read Meeting Open to All Students

More than 3,000 students—the entire student body—as members of the University cooperative store are entitled to attend the annual meeting of the cooperative store members this afternoon at 4 o'clock in room 105 Commerce, Jack Lochridge, Co-op board president said yesterday.

Nominations for two junior and one sophomore board members will be the main business of the meeting. M. F. McClain, Co-op manager, will present the annual report.

Everyone Eligible
"The main point is," Lochridge stressed, "that all students are eligible. No class or ASUO card is required. The same holds true for election of the board members which is held at the same time as the ASUO elections."

Of the seven board members, four will again serve next year. The two faculty members, Orlando Johns, professor of law, and James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of social sciences, and Charles Skinner and Gordon Benson, who will be seniors next year, are the returning members. Two of the new members will be elected from this year's sophomore class (Please turn to page four)

Denton 'Bird-dog' Burdick Named Law School Prexy

Sweeping over his nearest competitor, Dave Silver, by a margin of two votes, Denton "Bird-Dog" Burdick was elected president of the law school student body yesterday on a platform of "Pillows for the law school steps."

In the first ballot taken by approximately 25 law students, George Corey, not a dark-horse candidate, was eliminated from the field, leaving "The Dog" and "Big Dave" to fight it out—on the next ballot.

Named queen of the law school for the coming year, was Tony Amato. He will rule over the flowery law school dances as well as provide all of the "leg art" for publicity pictures. Ken "Little Giant" Abraham, and Mel Rooney were elected to the posts of official "water-warmers."

Exemplary of the conduct of campus politicians recently was the forgetful act by the law students of forgetting to elect the law school barber.

Burdick will be remembered as the candidate for junior class prexy two years ago who fought a bitter battle with his opponent, Zane Kemler, over proxy votes. Kemler gained the position.

It was reported late yesterday that Silver would upset all traditions by giving his opponent, the new prexy, his complete support for the coming year.

Openly fretting because the public address system prevented his walking up and down, gesticulating, and "really talking," Seamus O'Duilearga, director of the Irish folklore commission, yesterday morning took his Gerlinger hall assembly listeners far from the changing political world and its troubles and intrigues to a world along the western coast of Ireland where people speak the ancient Gaelic language, have ancient traditions, and believe in fairies.

Here in this "lumber roof of antiquity and of the middle ages, where beliefs and customs, the accretions of the ages lie piled up, stratum upon stratum, the legacy of many people who from megalithic times over 3,000 years ago have fought and died for the possession of the ancient island, farmers and fishermen who speak Irish as their mother tongue are the sole custodians of the oldest unwritten literature and tradition of the western world." Mr. O'Duilearga told his audience.

The Old World

From these simple people who speak little or no English, who for the most part are illiterate but the most intelligent of people, who, after thousands of years of living in the same house, are "house proud" or "swelling with ancestry," one can glimpse a bit of the old world as it was and which we know only through the war diaries of Julius Caesar, Mr. O'Duilearga said.

His love for fishing serves him well when he wants to open up a new territory or become acquainted with a new story teller, this smiling Irishman who talks with his eyes quite as much as with his mouth said.

Life runs smoothly and slowly in the countryside, he said. Going on foot, he wanders among the common people, meeting children and others who can tell him where the best story tellers live. The best stories are told, he said, while the "old fishing rod" is used.

People have called it insanity because a government is willing to spend so much money collecting old fairy tales. "But it is a sign of sanity when a government will spend its money in such a manner instead of spending its money on bombers to blow babies into the next world," said he emphatically.

"The future of my land," he said, "is precarious. The past has always been our guiding light. It will also be the guiding light for a better future," he said in explaining the work of his commission.

Oregon's student body election slogan 10 years ago was: "When in doubt, vote for the other guy."
