Room for Many

IN five days (May 2) the Associated Students of the University of Oregon will meet in Gerlinger assembly hall and nominate candidates for the four posts on the executive committee. For the benefit of those students who feel qualified to run, who have a program which they feel should be put into effect, or who wish to improve the caliber of student government the Emerald is running the ASUO constitutional requirements for nominations.

Sec. II. Nominations.

Clause 1. Each candidate shall submit to the president of the ASUO on or before midnight of the second day prior to nominations, a declaration of intention to run and certificate of eligibility, signed by the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women. The vice-president or other duly authorized person shall check eligibility before nominees' names appear on the ballot.

Clause 2. Any person not declaring his intention to be a candidate as provided in this constitution, may become eligible by submitting a petition signed by fifty members of the ASUO, to the president of the ASUO, not later than two days after the regular nominations. This action would constitute a nomination. Such a petition must comply with the eligibility regulations of this constitution affecting candidates and be accompanied by a certificate of scholastic eligibility.

THESE are the provisions of the ASUO constitution. They are simple, clear, and designed to make possible a wide group of candidates, democratically selected. Any individual who has taken three terms of resident instruction on this campus, reached complete junior standing, and maintained a cumulative grade point of 2.00 is eligible to run for the executive committee.

There is no need for the field to be restricted. There is rather a great need for a large group of candidates. There are many more than four good candidates on the campus. The selection of the four should be made by the students, not by the blocs.

The Calliope !!!!

Headed for trouble, bloc politicians were muttering loudly under their breaths yesterday as the newly launched campus-wide campaign to discard the bloc system in politics made rapid strides forward behind the enthusiastic obnoxious of everyone from Joe Soap III to several of the most dyed-in-the-wool gravy salesmen on the campus.

UO Employment Office Opens

Monday will see the beginning of another phase of University employment service when the University of Oregon Dads' employment office opens in Portland. Miss Janet Smith, employment secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Onthank, who will direct the Portland office, are opening the office now so that work will be well under way when school closes.

Modern Language Articles Go to Press

Mrs. Mary F. Wernham, graduate assistant in romance languages, has prepared an article on "Francis Jammes" which will appear in Modern Language Forum. Miss Mary Kessi, resident assistant, has an article entitled "Corrections to the Shields Biography of Italian Translation" in the May number of Modern Language Notes.

Tickets for both the matinee and the evening show will be 25 cents and may be bought at the door or from Pi Delta Phi members on the campus.

Joe Soap Said to Me...

Things certainly have been picking up around the Emerald shack the last day or two. I just got through kicking three politicians out of my office, waded through a pile of public-spirited citizens sitting on my desk, and uncovered my typewriter from underneath a pile of political propaganda, when I walked Joe Soap again.

His face was beaming. He looked like a new man.

"I see that a few things have begun to happen around the old place, after all," he greeted me cheerfully. "Excuse me for my hasty remarks to you yesterday."

"Well Joe," I returned modestly, "it just goes to show you."

"Don't sit there and gloat at me," he snapped, the old fire lighting up in his eyes. "Just because the political scene has got a little complicated and the campaigns have opened up is no sign that everything is going to be all right."

"What more has to be done, Joe?" I asked him. "The way the situation looks at present there will be a full field of candidates, the proportional representative system should work, and if the blocs aren't broken, they certainly have been cracked."

Joe looked at me with that all-knowing look. "A lot more has to be done," he said vehemently. "Student government has got a chance to function now. But the battle isn't over by a long shot. This fire that is burning in a few public-spirited citizens of the campus has to be caught by everyone. The campus has to realize what possibilities there are in the executive committee."

We sat quietly for a while pondering the general situation. Even though Joe was panning me for feeling satisfied I knew that he was happy. The dreams he had of "every man a politician" were showing signs of coming true.

"There is something else for you to think about," Joe interrupted our bit of silent philosophization. "You have very little to gloat about. Didn't the frosh election amount to a complete victory for the bloc system? And won't the rest of the class elections be worked on the same basis? And how do you know that the blocs won't run to cover and patch up the cracks?"

"I gotta go now," he said with a twinkle in his eye. "See if I can find you some good dirt or some more of my high-falutin' political ideas."

As the movement spreads, it is interesting to notice that bloc politics has become a pain in the neck not only to those who advocate real representation in student government but also to the so-called bloc politicians themselves. Everyone is tired of the bickering, promising, double-crossing, vote-buying, and dictating of bloc politicians. Above all, everyone is tired of student "government" where the government stops the minute a newly elected man gets into office.

"I hate the bloc system," said Roy Vernstrom, Delt president, last night. "Sure, I'll run for president under the new setup," he added. Incidentally, Roy was the "darkhorse" candidate mentioned in this column several days ago when the DU bloc politicians were trying to decide on the man they wanted to sponsor. Clair Hofflich, last year's interim prexy, also heartily endorses the plan to discard bloc politics.

Lloyd Hoffman, Scott Corbett, Roy Vernstrom, John Dick, and Verdi Sederstrom, are the leading candidates who have indicated their willingness to run for student body president to date. John Biggs has been mentioned, but will not commit himself. Anyone and everyone else is perfectly welcome to toss his hat in the ring. Plenty of good prospective student body presidents come to mind: Hal Jahn, Jack Dunn, Phil Lowry, Joe Frizzell, Gordon Benson, Burt Barr, Bob Schultz—to name a few. Every student who feels qualified to run for ASUO executive committee should be free to enter the race—both men and women. Then you and you and you may go to the polls and vote for the four best persons in the order of your choice, regardless of your affiliation.

Bob Calkins, elected sophomore class president by a margin of 30 votes over Jack Lansing, went into office via the gravy train. He is a good man and will carry out the meager duties of a soph prexy very capably, but just how much did the freshmen themselves have to say in putting him up for the job? Did they think things out for themselves? They did not. They were told how to vote by bloc politicians who had promised to put Calkins into office in return for the support of the dorms behind Verdi Sederstrom.

AdManagers to Hear Hoopmen

UO Basketball Five Will Be Guest of Portland Group

Experts in the various fields of advertising will vie with the University of Oregon U. S. championship basketball team as attractions for the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association ad managers' annual session, scheduled for Saturday at the Multnomah hotel in Portland, it was announced here today by Harry Schenk, association manager.

The first string five of the famed team, together with Coach Howard Hobson, will be guests of the advertising managers at luncheon, and the boys will give the newspapermen the "inside dope" on how they won the national title, Schenk declares. The five are Bobby Anet, Wally Johanson, Urgel Wintermute, John Dick, and Laddie Gale.

Authorities to Talk

Authorities in various fields of advertising who will speak at the all-day session include Joseph R. Gerber of the company by the same name; Errol Proctor of Botsford, Constantine and Gardner; C. H. McKinley, advertising manager of the Albany Democrat-Herald; Ed Carswell, advertising manager of The Dalles Chronicle; Mac Wilkins, of Mac Wilkins and Cole and Reo Young, advertising manager of the Forest Grove News-Times.

Topics to be taken up include selling Oregon products, layouts, publicity, liquor advertising, and display advertising.

Many to Attend

Sunday morning the advertising men will be guests of Botsford, Constantine and Gardner company at breakfast.

Advertising men from all sections of the state are expected to attend, Schenk states, as will also a number of Alpha Delta Sigma members.

Schenk, W. F. G. Thacher, and Frank Short will represent the University faculty.

The report to be given by Mr. McClain is the audited report prepared quarterly by Spencer Collins, certified public accountant, Lochridge said.

In 22 volumes, Princeton university will publish the 100 "lost" (hitherto unpublished) plays of American authors.

Books, Pamphlets Given to UO by Washington Doctor

Ninety-five volumes of books and a number of pamphlets have been sent to the University library by Dr. George Overmyre of Retell, Wash.

Dr. Overmyre, who stated in his letter to the University library that he no longer had room to keep the books, included among them 15 volumes of the Americanized Encyclopedia Britannica, and a 10-volume set of Harper's Encyclopedia of United States History.

The books sent in the collection are mainly on historical or biographical subjects. The pamphlets are mostly medical publications.

Varsity Golfers Trim 'Dwellers'

Challenge Match Taken by Webfoot Squad, 22-12 to 4-1-2

The Cellar-Dwellers took on the varsity golfers yesterday and got "whapped" by a score of 22½ to 4½, in a challenge match at the country club.

A varsity team of Cliff Smith, Bill Watson, Shelby Golden, Fred Davis, Dwight Near, and Rich Werschkul, bested Lou Cook, Erling Jacobsen, Bobby Anet, George Smith, Earl Fortmiller, and Doug Ramsay.

In doubles Near and Davis took three points from Fortmiller and George Smith. Golden and Cliff Smith took two points from Lou Cook and Bob Anet, who took one point. Watson and Werschkul took 3 points from Ramsey and Jacobsen.

In singles Lou Cook took 3 points over Cliff Smith, Erling Jacobsen lost three to Bill Watson, and Bob Anet lost 3 to Shelby Golden. George Smith lost to Fred Davis, ½ to 2½, Fortmiller lost 3 to Near, Ramsey lost 3 to Werschkul.

Lou Cook was medalist with 69.

(Continued From Page Two) sheet with a first in his event. Lloyd Dod, bespectacled Webfoot hurdler, will be up against top competition when he meets Hec Edmundson's three ace hurdlers, Captain Jack Flagg, Jim McGoldrick, and Bob Lockhart. Hayward is expecting both Dod and his teammate, Harry Weston, to take points in the lows and highs.

Buck Out

Jim Buck, No. 1 Duck sprinter who ran his best race last season against the Huskies when he pressed Mack Robinson, will not accompany the team to Seattle. A sore thigh muscle pulled in a time trial more than two weeks ago still handicaps Buck and Coach Hayward does not want to risk the chance of further strain on the sprinter's leg until it is completely healed.

Bob Diez, who took both dashes against Portland last Saturday, will carry the brunt of the sprint duties for Oregon. Diez ran the 100 in 10 flat and the 220 in 22.8 against the Portland Pilots on a cold afternoon.

Ehle Reber, mainstay of Oregon's broad jumping department, has consistently bettered 22 feet this year and may pull a first out of the fire for the Webfoots tomorrow.

Hayward will take but two weight men on the Seattle journey. Frank Emmons and Al Samuelson will double up on the shot put and discuss throw.
