DUCK TRACKS

By DOUG PARKER

Watch for Tex Oliver's specialties this afternoon on Hayward field, i.e., long breaks through the center of the line or around it. Those sweeping reverses that pull out half of the line to run interference are Tex's pets.

And among the newcomers to the Duck grid team who will warrant a watchful eye are John Ber- Oregon ry, stocky jaysee transfer who has OSC seldom had difficulty in penetrat- Idaho ing deep into the secondary dur- WSC ing past practices; Steve Fowler, Washington from last fall's frosh team, who runs in somewhat the same smashing fashion as Frank Emmons, ton 2. Oregon, like the University of If a promising young freshman enrolls here with varied talents, he may choose whichever he prefers. len's error. The joker comes in the fact that should he have talent in both football and track, he is certain to choose the former, regardless of whether he is a better trackman or not and whether he likes track best. Reason: football scholarships are comparatively fat; track scholarships nearly non-existent.

And the same probably applies at Washington where Dean Mc-Adams, one of the best javenn prospects Coach Hec Edmundson has had in years, is definitely out for spring football; Chuck Bechtol, capable shot putter, is classed as "ineligible"; and several former high school dash artists have turned to more lucrative endeavor on Jim Phelan's squad.

Further proof that even the best of sports writers unconsciously slip now or then (just rationalizing for calling Boyd Brown a pole vaulter): Dick Strite, sports editor of Mallory racing in from third to the Register-Guard, a day or so ago called Del Bjork a former grid score. and track star. Bjork has only seen action on Hayward field as Oregon a timer and still lacks much for a two-star rating.

Hobby Hobson getting old? Not if agility is any determining factor. Hobby, who has little steam but plenty of curve and control. was sending his Yannigans down one-two-three the other day in a pitching duel with Jack Jasper and Al Linn. During his time at bat in the late innings Hobby managed to get on base and was on third with two down when he pulled his "Colossal." Rookie Al Linn was chucking and paid little attention to Hobby who cavorted about on third. On about the second pitch, before Linn knew what was happening: Hobby was streaking down to the home plate. Linn grooved a fast one, but it was too late for Hobby had already stolen home. Then to top that off, Cox, who was batting, reached out and bunted the ball just as Hobson and the pellet reached home plate. While a good sacrifice bunt, Cox's hit was an easy out and the inning was ended.

Knotty problem: would the run count in such a case? Hobson would have been safe had Cox let the ball alone. Furthermore, the run was scored before any play was made on Cox. If it had been a varsity game and Oregon players attempting to get the run across the plate, and Spec Burke "call it "no-run" chances are he would have needed a suit of armor to protect himself from the resultant pop bottle deluge.

Meets Rooks Oregon Second Stovel's Men There Today

Musselman Likely Starter: Nilsen Coaches Frosh

Minus their head coach, Oregon's frosh nine under the leadership of Hank Nilsen will meet Oregon State rooks at Corvallis this afternoon.

Nilsen may play in the all-star grid contest and in that event Shipley will be in charge of the club. Those scheduled to make the trip are Whitey Austin, Bill Musselman, Jim Goodhew, Bill Skade, Lee Carrilho, Kenny King, Dick Whitman, Bill Carney, Bob Adrian, Walt Gale, Leland Dragoo, Al Gray, Max Horenstein, Jack Waits, Jack Hay, and Manager Jack Mercer. John Warren might meet his club over in Corvallis and take over coaching duties there.

From all indications today's tussle will be a battle between the Elliott, star rookie pitcher Warren's men are noted for their slugging ability while Bud Forrester's club ace pitcher, Elliott, has been was not known late last night ir the whole show for the rooks this season, and is rated as the prize prospect of the year.

Musselman May Pitch Nilsen said he would either start

Bill Musselman or Leland Dragoo with the former having a slight edge due to his good showing aainst the Milwaukie Maroons. Musselman narrowly missed a norun no-hitter in this tilt. Whitey Austin will be the batterymate for Musselman or Dragoo. Jim Goodhew, Bill Skade, Lee

Carrilho and Kenny King will open in their usual infield posists. Against Milwaukie these four lads decided improvement from earlier contests. The outer garden will open with playing in their respective posts. Whitman and Carney constitute Warren's main hitting power.

Big guns on the rook nine are Elliott, Warren Perryman, and Johnny Leovich. Perryman, second baseman for Coach Bud Forrester's roole, Bob Olsen, Boyd Lee, and club, has a batting average of over .600 and is the leading slugger on addition to the rook nine, filling the position of catcher.
