UO Library Doors Will Open Monday

Fall Term Library Hours Announced: Increased Facilities and Staff Indicate Top-Rate Service for '39 School Year

By JACK BUKER

The University of Oregon library will officially open its doors for business, Monday morning at 7:45 a.m., according to Mr. M. H. Douglass, chief librarian.

At that time the library will be off the vacation schedule and ready for full time work. The schedule for the coming year has been announced as follows: on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday,

Honor Groups Sponsor Dance

Designed to promote early campus friendships is the no-date afternoon dance which Kwama and Skull and Dagger, sophomore women's and men's service honoraries, will sponsor next Thursday afternoon, October 5.

Reviving a custom begun on the campus last year, the two service honoraries will attempt to hold the dance on the tennis courts behind Fenton hall, if permission is granted.

Campus clothes will be in order, since it will be held after classes Thursday, from four o'clock to six. Elma Johnson, Kwama, and Bill Bernard, Skull and Dagger, are chairmen of the affair. A campus orchestra will play.

ever, has released the names at the earliest possible moment he could satisfy all the member of the executive council. Several changes have been made in the lineup originally drawn spring term.

Expects Big Year

Under the setup for rally committee operation drawn up last year and going into use for the first time, the committee is looking forward to another big year, Chairman Hochuli said yesterday. His first moves will be organizational, he said. The new white sweater-wearers will not be idle a minute, however, with the Stanford game in Portland only a week ahead. The rally committee is planning events for the Portland weekend with details to be announced later.

open at 7:45 a.m., closes, 10 p.m. On Friday the library will close at 9 p.m. Saturday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. The only change over last year concerns the browsing room which will not be open until 1 p.m.

More Books

Increased funds have enabled the library staff to select new books that are expected to meet students' full demands. Included will be copies of Esquire, (Get there early and line up.)

Mr. Willis C. Warren, who last year worked towards a doctors degree in economics at Yale, will fill the position of executive assistant to the head librarian. Mr. Warren will also serve as periodical librarian. Another addition to the staff is Miss Mary Ward Rutherford, who will again have charge of the circulation department, succeeding Mrs. Lenore Tromp.

Libe Tours

Noncompulsory library tours, headed by Mr. Warren, are to be in order again this year. These get-acquainted tours have been scheduled for the coming Saturday, and any day next week that is convenient for the student. All newcomers should sign up for conducted tours at the library registration desk in McArthur court Friday during official registration, or any time at the library information desk, according to Mr. Warren.

The John Henry Nash room, containing a collection of the famous printer's work, has been moved to the second floor of the east wing. According to information received in Mr. Douglass' office, the library will employ a total of fifty students for the coming year.

First Emerald staff meeting will be held in Room 105 Journalism, at 7:30 Monday night.

Chance to Fly Open to Coeds YMCA to Aid New Students

Major C. E. Spencer, in charge of the civilian flight training program on this campus, revealed last night that word had been sent him from Washington, D.C., informing him that four women students on this campus will be accepted for flight training.

About 40 University of Oregon students will constitute the quota set for this school by the Washington offices.

Students interested in this program can get information on the subject by contacting Spencer in Fenton hall today.

Physical examinations of applicants will start in the near future, Spencer reports, and actual instruction work will be taken up in the middle of October.

University of Oregon YMCA will operate an information table today and Saturday at registration in McArthur court as an aid to freshmen desiring information on any subject.

Attendants at the table will distribute leaflets inviting all students to participate in this year's Y program. Activities, interests, and purposes of the University Y will be explained in the leaflet.

Paul D. Sutley, graduate of Ohio State university and executive secretary of the local campus' Young Men's Christian association, arrived at the University of Oregon recently to take over the duties on this campus. Sutley came here from an associate secretaryship at the University of Denver.

Two of the fundamental purposes of the YMCA on the college campus will be stressed here, Sutley reports. First will be the endeavor to make the biggest possible constructive contribution to the campus life of the entire student body.

Secondly, the local Y will aid all students to gain a better understanding of the Christian philosophy of life, a working personal and social philosophy and an opportunity to develop their personalities.

at Stanford University. His fencing and archery classes will be handled by Dr. Wayne Massey. Another addition to the physical education is Clifton White as a graduate assistant. Mr. White is studying for his doctor's degree.

'Our Town' to Open At Guild Hall, Oct. 12

Its debut made to campus audiences this summer under the watchful eye of the drama division, Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" will open the Guild hall theater season October 12, 13 and 14, Ottilie Seybolt, director of the drama division, announced Thursday.

The Pulitzer prize play of 1938, "Our Town," was the first play ever attempted by Wilder. It played more performances, amateur and professional, during the first two years of its life than any other play has played in the same amount of time.

Directed by Horace Robinson, the cast includes faculty members, Very Little Theater players, students, and graduates of the department, all well-known for their acting on the campus.

Substantial reductions to ASUO card holders were promised by Mrs. Seybolt.

If present plays go through, the department will take the play on the road during the term, visiting different towns in the Willamette valley.

Tickets may be purchased at the box office in Johnson hall which opens October 9.

'YW' to Greet Frosh Women

The campus YWCA organization will extend its welcome to new freshmen women Sunday morning at their annual YW breakfast at the bungalow

Beginning at 8:30 o'clock and lasting until 10:30, YW members will serve free cafeteria breakfasts to every freshman girl. Each living organization is given a schedule of when its girls should come in order to do away with confusion.

"The purpose of our breakfast is to acquaint girls with the Y and make them feel welcome there," according to Bettylou Swart, president. Mary Failing is in charge of arrangements.

In keeping with the day and the occasion girls are urged to attend church after the breakfast, Miss Swart said.

Business Staff Meeting Set

The Emerald business staff will hold their initial meeting next Monday afternoon at four in room 105 of the journalism school. All old members of the staff will be there, and new students interested in participating in the business activity of the Emerald are asked to attend.

George Luoma, business manager of the Emerald and a major in business administration, wishes to point out that the Emerald business staff includes boys and girls of business administration, advertising, journalism, and other courses. It is an activity for all interested students. George also pointed out that former Emerald business staff members have followed many and various lines of work. The experience, recommendations, and contacts made by students on the Emerald have proved practical and the activity is thoroughly enjoyed by its members.

Work on the staff includes merchandising, selling, advertising layout work, promotion and other business activity. Several department managers work together with assistants and executives in the Emerald business activity. Times of work and amount of work can easily be arranged to fit the students own schedule and interest.

P E Staff Lists Prof Changes

Two new instructors, Bill Rosson and H. E. Kuchera, have been added to the physical education department this year to teach golf.

Bill Rosson is well known around the campus for his golfing ability, while Mr. Kuchera is new to the Oregon campus. He is a physical education graduate and has held the North Dakota amateur golf championship. Rosson and Kuchera replace Ray Goates, who is now head basketball coach at Silverton, Oregon, and Clinton Vincent, who graduated.

Another change in coaching staffs is slated for the boxing and wrestling squads. Eric Walkorf, former coach at Jefferson high school in Portland, and at present assistant Freshman football coach here, will handle the wrestling assignment. Vaughn Corley, football line coach, will take charge of the boxing.
