By BETTY JANE THOMPSON

Few individual meetings will be held by student groups Sunday evening. Instead, members will attend a union meeting at the Congregational church at 7 o'clock with Rev. Llewellyn Griffith, minister of the McMinnville Methodist church speaking on "Religion As I See It."

Planned under the supervision of Dr. James R. Branton, head of the department of religion, and the student religious council, the meeting is the first of a series of meetings and assemblies at which prominent religious leaders of the state and nation will be brought to the campus.

Mary Wright will lead the worship service. Preceding the meeting a short social period will be held.

Bishop to Speak
Another visitor in Eugene this weekend is Bishop Raymond J. Wade, head of the European Methodist church. Just starting a tour of Pacific northwest churches, Bishop Wade will make his first appearance Saturday evening at 7:30 at Wesley house.

At this evening's meeting, which is open to any student or faculty member, Bishop Wade will speak on the European situation.

Among the groups meeting early for their own discussion are the Lutheran students who will meet at the YW bungalow at 6 o'clock. Hazel P. Schering, dean of women, will discuss the dean of women's duties and problems.

Westminster speaker in the morning will be Prof. W. G. Beattie, director of social welfare, who will discuss "The Complement to Freedom."

Caravan On Slate Monday

Webfoot Boosters To Welcome Alums In Portland Trek

A large percentage of students and at least three Eugene organizations had last night pledged their support to Oregon's first official homecoming caravan which is set to leave here Monday morning to invite Oregon alumni between here and Portland to the weekend festivities.

Led by homecoming's five pretty coed greeters, the caravan will head first for Salem where KSLM will broadcast their initiating of Governor Charles A. Sprague into the Eugene Quarterbacks. In Albany the sign-bearing groups of Eugeneans will make Willard Marks, chairman of the state board of higher education, a Quarterback, and in Portland, Mayor Joseph K. Carson will be the center of the radio broadcast.

All students interested in joining the Portland caravan Monday morning to advertise homecoming weekend should get in touch with Joe Gurley by tomorrow, he announced last night.

Besides the Quarterback members and every University student who wants to go, the caravan will include the junior chamber of commerce and a group of alumni.

Leaving immediately after the regular Quarterback meeting early Monday morning, the cars will arrive in Portland before noon to be greeted by the Oregon Alumni association and the Oregon Duck club on the west side of Sellwood bridge. From there the cheering throng will parade through downtown Portland.

Also on the slate arranged by Joe Gurley, promotion chairman, is an appearance on the Curbside Quiz program over KEX Monday afternoon and several other radio appearances.

Police escort may accompany the caravan, according to developments last night.

Students wishing to attend should notify Gurley by Sunday night with promises of available cars.

Geology Class on Trip To Examine Dam Site

The geology students, accompanied by Dr. Warren D. Smith, will examine the Fern Ridge dam site this morning and tomorrow afternoon.

H. B. Wood, geologist with U. S. engineers and Thomas Ellison, also a geologist with the project, will each accompany one of the groups. The purpose of the trip is to illustrate the sort of work done by geologists on a dam of the Fern Ridge type.

work for their master's degrees and show excavation scenes, one of which was taken directly from Dr. Cressman's eastern Oregon diggings.

After the talks and comments members of the general anthropology classes served refreshments to the guests who examined the exhibits on display.

New collections given to the museum include:

The Mrs. Phyllis Harrington Wetherbee collection, the Mrs. Isaac Lee Patterson collection, the Dr. Robert Joseph Marsh collection, the Mrs. P. G. Hendricks collection, the Paul Van de Velde collection, and some material of the Philippines from Dr. W. D. Smith.

New loans include the Evans-Pettinger loan, the Mrs. Alice Henly Ernst loan, the Frank S. Trew collection loaned by Mrs. Karl Onthank, and the loan of 40 Klamath baskets by Mrs. Dan E. Clark.

mentioned the Oregon "Victory Bell." He told the student crowd that Washington State also has a bell which is rung when the boys from the Palouse hills are victorious, and he hoped that it would ring tomorrow afternoon.

Chilly night air thinned the ranks of the rooters wearing only the two-piece prints over their campus clothes, leaving a smaller but apparently enthusiastic crowd to follow the band in the program finale, "Mighty Oregon."

Students Organizing on Neutrality Question, Collegiate Poll Shows

By ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS

As always happens when a great political or social question faces the nation, college students are today forming organizations to influence the opinion of their fellow students on the questions of war and neutrality.

At Princeton university, undergraduates have formed "The American Independence League," which is "dedicated to the purpose of revealing, strengthening, and expressing the determination of the American people to keep out of the European war." The league already counts one-third of Princeton's student body as members, and a second chapter of the organization has been formed on the Harvard campus. Incidentally, national headquarters of the new organization are in the offices formerly occupied by the Veterans of Future Wars, now defunct.

Not quite so serious, but just as interesting, are two other proposals that have made their appearance in the last week or two. In the University of Pittsburgh's towering Cathedral of Learning there has sprung up the "Loyal Order of Sons of Leavenworth," whose slogan is "If America goes to war, we go to Leavenworth."

Here's an interesting paragraph from a letter explaining the organization: "Hurry! Form your own District Cell of the Loyal Order of Sons of Leavenworth! Pick your cellmate while you may. Write now for your free membership card entitling you to all the privileges of our future home. Write today to ask any questions you may wish about our secret shuffle, our national symbol—the ball and chain—or any other practices of our exclusive Order."

On the Cornell university campus, Stan Cohen, columnist for the Cornell Daily Sun, stirred up a bit of interest with this telegram to Secretary of State Cordell Hull: "Sun political expert advocates corridor through Canada to join Alaska to Union, free enslaved minorities in Vancouver, protect economic future of nation. Would resort to force if necessary. Can we expect support of state department?"

At this writing, the Hitler-like proposal has met with no response from Mr. Hull!

We've all thought for a long time that something ought to be done about it—this business of making the life of today's collegian glamorous and carefree—and at last the Daily Dartmouth of Dartmouth college has done it! We believe you'll give a rousing second to this editorial!

"It's about time somebody tried once and for all to dispel the myth of the carefree college boy. The college boy, people who are out of college, or have never been there, will tell you, lives a life which runs the gamut from pure joy to the ultimate in rhapsodic existence, and the Sunday magazine sections picture him with glass in hand, his lips creased in a gay smile, while a number of beautiful women parade past him like so much beef on the hoof. The motion pictures are doing their level best to prolong the life of this popular fiction, and thousands of young girls who stand on their feet all day behind the counters from Worcester to Oshkosh find their own particular heaven in watching some clean cut god of the Tom Brown species cavort through a land overflowing with evening clothes and exciting football finishes, strewing his fraternity pins behind him.

"The college boy may seem that way at times, and particularly when he begins to reminisce for the benefit of the homefolks during vacation periods, but that is because he is learning that the only way to please is to give people what they expect, and that no one will believe, much less listen to him, if he tries to tell the crowd that he is doing a serious job of going to college, and that he has a lot of things on his mind.

"The fact is that college boys work hard, take a Saturday night off for relaxation, like to sit by the fire and read the newspaper, are ugly or good looking as the case may be, have their domestic troubles with their roommates, get broke, argue with the traffic cop, do or do not like their eggs flopped over, and call Mr. Roosevelt names, even as any average citizen who lives uphill and goes to work on Main street. To be sure, college boys are young, and they do these things with more spirit, and harder than they will twenty years from now, but the point is that this is what they do, and it's peculiar that nobody wants to believe it.

"Just the same, we hope the day will come when some stranger will tell us that he's working in such and such a place, and we can reply that we're going to college, without catching that 'oh, college boy' look in his eye."

To which we say, "Amen!"

Definitely valuable is the following suggestion from the Midland of Midland college, for long have students talked about the textbooks that add to their scholastic miseries. So we pass on to you the editorial "Carrying a Heavy Load."

"Ancient and honored is the tradition among textbook writers that a book must have weight to have value. Therefore, those fat volumes you see under the arms of students aren't encyclopedias or congressional records. Rather they are four or five pounds of assorted literature, history, philosophy and what-have-you.

"We don't mean necessarily that the larger the book the more stuffy it is. In fact, most texts are attractively written and very readable despite the fact that it would take years of study for most mortals to assimilate them.

"Because the amount to be covered in a semester demands large daily assignments, most of us skim over 30 or 40 pages and are left with a rather vague impression, much like a passenger on a streamliner after a 100-mile-an-hour trip across country.

"The day is not far distant, we hope, when textbook authors will boil their subjects down to the meat, flavor them spicily, throw in a little sauce and serve in succulent, tasty dishes to culture-hungry students."

Westminster Will Broadcast

Different Students Will Have Charge Of Worship Hour

The weekend social slate for Westminster house will include a hike, discussion groups, a union meeting, and plans for a series of radio broadcasts.

Immediately after the game today members will meet at Westminster house for a hike to Hendricks park, where they will eat their lunch. From 7 until 9 today evening music-lovers will listen to the NBC symphony broadcast around the house fireplace.

Sunday morning at 9:45, W. G. Beattie, associate professor of education in the general extension division, will speak on "The Correlative of Freedom," a continuation of the discussion on freedom two weeks ago.

A group of young people will meet at Westminster at 6:30 Sunday evening to go en masse to hear Dr. L. O. Griffith speak before the union meeting of campus religious organizations at the Community church. There will be a short social gathering before the services at 7 o'clock.

Westminster will be in charge of a week's series of radio broadcasts over KORE, beginning Monday morning at 7:45 and lasting until 8 o'clock. Relta Lea Powell will lead the services with "Friendship" as a theme, Tuesday Peggy Lou Smith will be leader with the theme, "Prayer"; Wednesday, Elaine Nelson, leader; theme, "Love"; Thursday, Jack Newton, leader; theme, "Hope"; Friday, Bob Knox, leader; theme, "Meditation"; and Saturday, Anne Dean, leader, theme, "Applied Christianity."

Services will include music and readings in scriptures and poetry.

Company E, Section One Wins ROTC Laurels for Week

With a more than perfect score of 100.1040, Company E, section 1, won the ROTC laurels for the week last Wednesday at the weekly uniform drill. Companies were judged on personal appearance and conduct in the ranks, with demerits being given for every unbuttoned pocket or unshaven chin. Additional merits were given to those students whose uniforms showed unusual care.

The officers commanding the honor company were: Company Commander Robert Pettee, and Platoon Leaders Herb Anderson and Roger K. Conrad.

Second place went to Company B section 1 with a score of 100.0769, third place to both Company B section 2 and Company C section 1 with scores of 100.0513.

Museum Gains Two Fossils, Horse Hoof And Elephant Tooth

Added recently to the many fossils already in the geology section of the University museum of natural history were two more remnants of ages that once were, Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the department of geology and geography, announced Friday. Donated by Harold E. Hansen, law student, who was working in Alaska last summer, the specimens include a horse hoof and a small elephant tooth.

About 50,000 Years Old
The hoof of the ancient Alaskan horse was found about 100 feet down in the sand and the tooth of the baby mammoth was discovered buried about 150 feet in frozen gravel.

Dr. Smith remarked that at the time these two animals were alive, during the pleistocene era, there were horses and elephants in Oregon also.

The two donations are on exhibit in the museum of natural history.

Westminster Group To Be in Charge of Morning Devotions

Among early risers next week will be seven Westminster house members who will be in charge of the morning devotions over KORE. Sponsored by the Eugene ministerial association, the devotional hour starts each morning at 7:45. This means that the person in charge will have to be at the station around 7:40.

Those who will lead the worship period include Relta Lee Powell, Peggy Lou Smith, Bob Knox, Elaine Nelson, Jack Newton, and Anne Dean.

Themes upon which the students will speak are "Friendship," "Prayer," "Meditation," "Love," "Hope," and "Applied Christianity."
