

DUCK TRACKS

By GEORGE PASERO

Oregon Daily Emerald

With this Emerald signaling the approach of Thanksgiving vacation, its time to clean up all the odds and ends that have accrued through campus contacts so far this year.

A win over Washington Thursday would ring the curtain down on the most successful grid season Oregon has had since the palmy days of 1933, when Mike Mikulak, Mark Temple (he of the bandaged-head fame), Leighton Gee, Bob Parke, and the rest of those immortals battled to a co-championship of the coast.

So far the Ducks have grabbed three conference decisions... a victory over Washington would make four. In 1938, the Ducks won three games; in 1937 they copied two victories; and in 1936 the Oregonians failed completely to register in the win column.

Prince Callison's first two creations, his 1934 and 1935 teams, each won two of four games with top coast competition.

Stuart... All-coast

Here's a tip to remember... I have it on good authority (and I do mean good) that Oregon's Big Jim Stuart, 220-pound tackle, will be named on the all-coast team when it comes out.

So doff your caps to the big red-head from Hermiston (that's in the high-country, you know), for he's played sparkling ball all year.

As far as Bob Smith, Jay Graybeal, or Vic Reginato are concerned, my authority couldn't say. All three have been among the coast's elite for three years, but in yours truly's opinion, if one of these boys make the all-coast, it will be a bit remarkable, for the Ducks will have placed two men.

Heck, They're All Good

In previous columns we have boomed both Smith and Graybeal, and as for Reginato, suffice it to say that he was recently named by Norman Speers, one of the country's top-notch predictors, as the fourth best end in the United States in a sports broadcast over NBC.

This 1939 Oregon team is making it very tough for all-coast pickers because none of the players are particularly outstanding.

For instance, there's the above-named quartet. Then there are guys like Frankie Emmons, a plenty sweet fullback; Ernie Robertson and Cece Walden, rough and tough guards; Jim Cadenasso, scrappy center; and Pinky Donovan, heady signal-caller. You just can't pick one over another.

Intramural Big Shots

Intramural competition has been hot and plentiful this year... evidence of this was the golf match between Bob Engelke and Bob Anet for the divot title last week... both shot close to par golf, and only missed a three-foot putt on the final green beat the all-American basketball guard. Anet claims he "tied up" on that final putt.

In touch football, the Sigma Nus, Phi Deltas, and Kappa Sigas are in there pitchin' for the title... Sigma Nus, so claims its publicity man, Cliff Sexsmith, who has been after me for quite a while, is riding on the throwing arms and flying feet of its baseball players, Bill Carney, all-American Dick Whitman, and John Bubalo... also Don McCormack.

The Phi Deltas have that one-man team, Ken Shipley, and they say he catches passes all over the field. Shipley, in our opinion, is about the best intramural athlete in school. He can do anything, and do it well. Incidentally, Bill Hayward once said that Shipley could be good in any sport he wanted to be good in.

McAuliffe Pitches

Kappa Sigma is another threat as long as Bob McAuliffe is throwing passes. Mac can throw them almost any distance. Another top-

Dick, Pavalunas, Sarpola, Sandness, McNeeley, lead Hobsonmen Against Southern Oregon Normal in Igloo

By KEN CHRISTIANSON

Hobby Hobson's basketball squad, 1939-40 edition, plays its first game of the season Saturday night for the benefit of those who stay on the campus over the Thanksgiving vacation. Their opponent—Southern Oregon Normal.

John Dick, all-western NCAA forward last year, Matt Pavalunas, Ted Sarpola, Earl Sandness, Evert "Red" McNeeley, lettermen; Archie Marshik, George "Porky" Andrews, and Toivo Pippo, last year's reserves are sure to see action.

Transfers to Play

Vic Townsend and Herb Tompkins, all-conference players from Compton jaysee, Ed McGrath from Santa Monica, Hank Anderson from Eastern Oregon Normal, Bill Borchers from San Francisco, and Mel Olsen from Southern Oregon Normal are promising transfers and may see action.

Len Gard, Butch Thompson, and Don Galbraith, last year's frosh have been showing well in practice. Other players, George Jackson, Timi Smith, Paul Jackson, are looking well also.

Frankie Emmons Grid Career Ends Thursday; Stenstrom Will Carry on

By LEN BALLIF

Oregon's case of "fraternity brother versus fraternity brother" will be brought to a close tomorrow in Seattle, when the clock strikes 12 on the football days of Frankie Emmons, the Beaverton powerhouse.

For two years now, Coach Tex Oliver has had two very evenly matched fullbacks fighting against each other for the starting position, Emmons and Marsh Stenstrom, the 210-pound bone-crusher from Broadway high school in Seattle.

Frank and Marsh both agree that Southern California has the toughest team in the conference. Second toughest, they believe, is Oregon State.

According to Emmons, one of the toughest ends in the conference to take out of play is Oregon State's sophomore, Johnny Leovich. Frank is looking forward to a tough time with Ed McDowell, the Huskies' right end, Thanksgiving.

Ambrose Schindler and Granny Lansdell, Southern California's two stars, were lauded by both Emmons and Stenstrom as well as Ken "Rowdy" Dow, OSC fullback. Dow, according to Emmons, is a better ball player than the more publicized Jim Kesselburgh.

Tomorrow's game with Washington will also be a homecoming day for Stenstrom, who will probably play against some of his home town high school foes of days gone by. Marsh, besides playing football, was quite a track man at Broadway high. He threw the shot put and the discus, and pole vaulted on the track team. He is majoring in foreign trade, and professes a desire to enter into the field of business, not football, upon graduating.

Next year, Stenstrom will have clearer sailing, but not all of it will be beer and pretzels—Roy Ell

Duo After Two Campus Titles

Baker, Fouchek Ping Pong Champs; Williams Finalist

In all-campus sports ping pong held the final round as Leon Hatch won his semifinal match with Boyd Copenhaver by scores of 21-14, 21-18, 15-21, 21-18. In the finals, Hatch will meet the winner of the contest which brings together Bob Rudolph and John Sherman.

Baker, Fouchek Win

Frank Baker and Steve Fouchek won the all-campus ping pong doubles title by taking a hard-fought game from the Bob Rudolph-Al Shaw combination. Fouchek and Baker got off to a shaky start, dropping the first two games by 14-21, 18-21 scores.

They rallied strongly in the next two games, however, to smother their opponents under with scores of 21-9, 21-9. Then with the game all tied up, the winners put on the pressure to take the deciding game and the championship, 22-20.

Williams in Finals

Wee Willie Williams reached the finals of the all college handball tournament by routing H. Lowe to the tune of 21-15, 21-12. Williams will meet the winner of the Joe Amato-George Corey semifinal match.

The tennis doubles tournament entered the final stage which will pit Terry Mullin and Paul Livesay against the team of Steve Fouchek and Frank Baker, who will be fighting hard to win their second championship in the present all-campus tourneys, having the ping pong championship already under their belts.

ATO's, Delts Triumph In Touch Ball

Theta Chi, Co-op Squads Lose; Play Enters Finals

Alpha Tau Omega edged out Theta Chi, 7 to 0, and Delta Tau Delta blanked Kirkwood co-op 6 to 0, as the final rounds of league touch football competition were played yesterday.

Teams entering the play-offs include Beta Theta Pi, league 1; Sigma Nu, league 2; Phi Delta Theta, league 3; Kappa Sigma, league 4; and Phi Sigma Kappa, league 5.

One game will be played on Tuesday, November 28; the survivor will enter one of the two matches Tuesday; and the winner is to come from the final game on Wednesday. Overtime periods will be allowed in case of ties.

Bocci threw to Jim Buck for the deciding ATO tally.

Stan Hansen passed to John Tuttle for the Delts' 6 points. A little too much razzle-dazzle resulted in a dropped lateral on the Kirkwood 5 to halt the most serious Delts threat.

Ducks, Huskies In Crucial Tilt

Record Shows 14 Wins for Each Grid Team

When Oregon and Washington meet at Seattle on Thanksgiving day, both teams will be keyed up for an important battle. Since the series started in 1900, each team has won 14 games and four have been tied. Oregon has scored a total of 304 points to the Huskies 271.

The Huskies failed to cross the Oregon line in the six games played between 1928 and 1933, but since then they have won three of the five games played. Oregon defeated Washington 3 to 0 last year.

The Ducks have decisively beaten Washington twice since the beginning of the series. In 1900 they trounced the Huskies to the tune of 43 to 0, and again in 1928, 27 to 0. Washington's greatest margin of victory came in 1923 when they beat Oregon 26 to 7.

notch Kappa Sig is Jack Lansing, pass-catcher.

Reports from the South say there is a possibility that Dud DeGroot and Pop Warner, San Jose State coaches, may move into the coaching berth at Stanford, replacing Tiny Thornhill.

San Jose State and Fresno State, the latter coached by Jim (Rabbit) Bradshaw, who applied for the Oregon job two years ago, will meet Thursday... and from all the stories that say these two teams are among the coast's top-notchers, with about 10 wins each this season, this should be a battle to watch....

And oh, yes, there's the fan who telephoned Al Wesson, Southern Cal sentiment stimulator, and wanted to know whether the 50-yard line for the SC-UCLA clash this year was on the Trojan or the Bruin side.

Coed Teams Win Net Tiffs

The Alpha Gams fought a hard game to beat the Thetas, 27 to 26, yesterday in the last rounds before the finals in the intramural volleyball games. The Alpha Phis won, 31 to 15, over Hendricks.

The Thetas led by seven points throughout the game until the last seconds. With the captain, Helen Jane Kerr, fighting hard, it looked like a cinch for the Thetas, but the Alpha Gams renewed their energy and spurred ahead to win by one point.

The championship play-offs will be held after the Thanksgiving vacation.

So, They'll Take the Train

Reason why the Oregon boys won't fly to Seattle: According to Anse Cornell, it costs $10.18 plus two meals on the train for each player while by air it would dent the pocketbook for $19.63 per person. A bit of a difference, you bet.

Earlier this year yours truly predicted that Frankie Emmons would break away for a long run at least once this year... well, Frankie's last chance to make me look good comes Thursday.

Another prediction: Dick Horne and Jim Harris will play lots of ball next year, mark our word. Also, look for Frank Boyd, injured this season, to do plenty of long distance kicking for the varsity next fall... he really can pass and kick.
