American Neutrality Discussed At Open Meeting; Dean Morris Officiates; Officers Appointed

Discussion of the international situation spread over the University campus last night with the first meeting of the International Relations club in Gerlinger hall.

Discussion centered around whether or not America has any vital interests in the European war. The question was put to a vote. Of the 60 students present half favored the resolution that America take any means short of war to protect her interests in Europe, one quarter believed that America has no vital interests in the war and there should not become involved. The remaining quarter voted in favor of America protecting her European interests, even to the extent of war.

Dean Morris led off discussion with the question "Supposing that Russia launches an attack against the Scandinavian countries simultaneously with a German attack on Great Britain and brought England to terms quickly with a lightning thrust, would it make our situation desperate?"

Wilbur Grant, who led the discussion, suggested that Germany might try to gain a foothold in South America if she conquers England. Dean Morris pointed out that if Germany had a naval and air base in South America the Panama canal might be incapacitated leading to an actual physical threat to the United States.

The trade and economic benefits to America should Germany win the war were also mentioned.

Bill Grant, member of the senior six, was elected temporary chairman by a vote conducted by Dean V. P. Morris of the business administration school, who was in charge of the meeting. Michi Yasui was elected temporary secretary.

To start the meeting Dean Morris gave a brief history of the International Relations clubs. He mentioned that the first club to

UO Chemists Attend Meeting

Chemistry department faculty members will be in Corvallis Saturday for a joint session of the Oregon, Puget Sound, Washington, and Idaho chapters of the American Chemistry Society, Associate Professor A. H. Kunz reported last night.

Representatives from the major colleges in the northwest will present papers on various phases and aspects of chemistry when the meeting starts at 10 a. m. In the afternoon and evening, society members will hear lectures on chemistry and some of the new developments. Dinner is scheduled for 6:30 in the Memorial Union building.

Highlighting the session will be the dedication of Oregon State's new chemistry building.

John Casteel Talks To YMCA Committee On War Problems

John L. Casteel, head of the division of speech, addressed members of a YMCA discussion committee during a meeting in the Y hut yesterday afternoon on the ways to relate oneself to war. The group is studying current economic, social, and political problems.

one place in the treble, a consistent and striking rhythm was carried out in the bass.

Undoubtedly Mrs. Underwood's tour de force in the concert was the final group, the "Etudes Symphoniques" of Robert Shumann. Here again the statement of a theme was made and carried out in numerous sparkling variations. Shumann took every possibility of piano technique, it seems, and developed his theme in every possible way to make one of the most magnificent pieces in all piano literature.

As played by Mrs. Underwood, the 11 studies had most of the power and majestic qualities of a great symphony, and they made a fitting finale to a memorable performance.

Spanish Honorary Plans Local Viewing Of Mexican Cinema

"Alla en el Rancho Grande," a Mexican film, may be shown on the University campus before the end of the term according to Stanley Robe, president of Sigma Delta Pi, national Spanish society, and Professor L. O. Wright, chapter adviser.

With dialogue in Spanish, supplemented by English sub-titles, the film contains a number of current Mexican song hits. Many of these arrangements of native folk tunes, among them the song "Alla en el Rancho Grande," which is now a popular song in the United States.

The tentative time set for the showing of the film is Friday, December 8, at 4 p. m. at the Mayflower theater.

Southern Oregon Normal was defeated 64 to 46 by this year's Oregon varsity. The Rubes have one victory to their credit, a win over the Savidges, 40 to 36. The Savidges had been unbeaten in 14 starts until their encounter with the Rubensteins.

Saturday night, the Oregonians and the SONS will continue their wars in Roseburg. Bob Anet has his eyes on the AAU basketball play-offs held annually in Denver. Butterworth came to Oregon to play for Billy Reinhart, then head basketball coach at Oregon. Scholastic reason held him out of competition.

After starring at Oregon Normal, Butterworth played for Reinhart at George Washington. Anse Cornell, Oregon athletic manager, rates the tall center high in basketball ability, according to Anet.

Anet declared himself relieved at the signing of the classy pivotman.

UO Talent in 'The Women'

University dramatic talent wandered off the campus this week as students, instructors, and faculty member's wives took part in the downtown production of "The Women" presented by the Very Little theater.

Campus associates and women who appeared in Claire Booth's former Broadway and screen hit are: Gerda Brown, Daisy Hamlin, Sally Allen, Pat Taylor, Mary Graham, Clara Fitch, Martha Coleman, Ethel Sawyer, Otilie Seybolt, and Virginia Mikulak.

Other students taking part in the back stage end of the play were Arthur Pules, sets; William Tugman, and Mary Graham, publicity.

L. B. Ellis to Direct French Play

The French play, "Pathelin," to be presented in February will be under the direction of L. B. Ellis, instructor in romance languages. Loraine Gjording will play the leading female role and Don Castanien, the role of a judge. The other characters have not yet been assigned.

This play is a famous medieval farce. The stage and costumes will represent as near as possible those of the middle ages. W. B. Nash, instructor in drama, will assist with the stage and costumes.

appear on the campus was organized 10 years ago. It waned with the depression, however, to be re-organized last year. Almost all of the members graduated last year and left the club without officers for the coming year.

Dean Morris explained before the discussion that an invitation to hold the northwest regional conference of the International Relations clubs on the University campus this coming February was accepted by the Carnegie Institute, sponsor of the clubs.

Meetings for the new club were set for every other Thursday. The next meeting was deferred until January 11 because of the final exams.

UO Students Elected Lutheran Executives

Closing a three-day Thanksgiving weekend conference in Portland, the regional Lutheran Student association elected three members of the campus group to executive positions, it was announced Tuesday.

Kenneth Erickson, junior, was named president, Doris Hanson, junior, secretary, and Rev. H. J. Thorp, local adviser, one of the regional advisers.

Making up one-third of the conference, the University association had 27 representatives there. Students from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and British Columbia, are included in the region.

Conference speaker, Rev. Frederick Scholtz, national student secretary, visited the campus Tuesday. At a luncheon with the University student who attended the conference, he announced the national Lutheran student association conference which is to be held in Estes Park, Colorado. Twelve members from campus organizations have indicated their intention of attending the conference.

Remarkable Ease
Borrowing from perhaps a dozen composers, whose works he embellished herein, his greatest giveaway was a short passage obviously lifted from "Ase's Death" from Grieg's "Peer Gynt." Mrs. Underwood combined these myriad tonal stunts with a continuity and ease that was remarkable.

A waltz and an etude from Chopin provided romantic garnish-springs for the program. The A minor etude, commonly known as the "Winter Wind," had its theme announced in the first few measures, then used later in different harmonies and moods.

Like Wind and Storm
The swiftness of the arpeggios from treble to bass formed plaintiff cries like the howling of wind in a storm. With the exception of
