

UO Symphony Will Play Tonight

First Concert Of 1940 Series On Schedule

Violinists to Solo In 8:15 Music Auditorium Event

Conductor Rex Underwood and the 70 youthful musicians of the University of Oregon symphony orchestra will open their winter concert series in the music auditorium Tuesday night at 8:15. Four student violinists, Jane Young, Gordon Hogan, Elizabeth Walker, and Verne Sellin, will appear as soloists.

Ticket sales have been rapidly going ahead on the campus and in living organizations under the leadership of Mu Phi Epsilon, honor society for upperclass women in music, and Phi Mu Epsilon, men's music honorary, it is reported by Charlotte Plummer, member of the women's group. The Eugene Symphony association is sponsoring downtown sales, for which a booth has been placed in Miller's department store.

February 14 has been set as the date for the second concert, for which Fritz Neumann, the Czechoslovakian violinist, will be guest soloist. McArthur court will be the scene of the final program on April 7, when the orchestra will join Dr. Theodore Kratt and the University Choral union of 350 voices in a performance of Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah." The complete program for tonight follows:

Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" (Glinka); Ballet music—"Andalouse," "Aragonaise," "Aubade," and "Navarraise"—from "The Cid" (Massenet); First movement from "Concerto in D Minor for Two Violins" (Bach) with Verne Sellin and Elizabeth Walker as soloists.

"Prelude in E Major" (Bach-Stoessel) played by the string orchestra, with first violins as soloists; "The Girl With the Flaxen Hair" (Debussy) with Jane Young, violinist, as soloist; "Marionettes" (Glazounov) with Gordon Hogan as violin soloist; Overture—fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet" (Tschai-kowsky).

Winter Wonderland to Be Theme of Year's First Big Formal Dance Saturday

'Dark Suits, No Flowers,' Says Social Chairman; Fashion Show of Winter Sports Clothes to Be Featured

By ELLIE ENGDAHL Attention, Joe College!

Next Saturday night will come the big event on the campus and the first big formal dance of the year. This is going to be a major milestone in the life of your best girl, provided you remember to ask for the pleasure of her presence at an early hour.

Miss Oregon will finally be able to bring out her most beautiful evening gown, apply all the tricks of enhancement that the ages have taught her, and prepare to set your heart palpitating at a furious rate of speed when you behold her in all her glory.

Dark Suits, No Flowers

But to make you happy, young man, Betty Buchanan, campus social chairman, has decreed that you wear dark suits instead of tuxedos, and the florist needn't receive that needed spending money as there are to be no flowers.

At any rate, it should be a grand evening, with both of you happy to start with. You will have a chance to dance to the strains of a new orchestra in these parts, Curt Sykes from San Francisco. Don't miss the premiere of what may be a hit band, or what promises to be one of the decoration accomplishments of the year with "Winter Wonderland" the theme and some new ideas in original lighting to be carried out.

At 'The Half'

If skating is a pet sport of yours, or skating, you'll be interested in that part of the scheme. Besides the various stationary models of these sports, a winter sports fashion show will be given at "the half," if that term pictures for you an intermission. Your girl will be sure to have a hankering for a glimpse of this part of the program, anyhow, and it would be terrible to disappoint her.

Don't rush, don't crowd, there'll be plenty of dates for all if you "do your formal shopping early." Okay?

Dad's Day DOINGS

January 26, 27, 28

Table decorations will look as good to eat as the tasty meal which is planned for the plates at the banquet, according to Elizabeth Steed, chairman. She has named as her decoration committee: Elizabeth Daggett, Margaret Rawson, Phyllis Foster, and Nancy Reisch.

Over their afternoon cokes in Taylor's at 4 o'clock today the general committee will report what progress they have made in this week's work.

This kind of a phone call puts a chairman in paradise. One Alpha Chi O just begged Pat Taylor to let her house put on something on the program for the Dads. It seems the big brick house is just running over with talent. Any more houses like that?

One morning next week sleepy-eyed 8 o'clock students are going to rub their eyes in wonder when they find the campus all decked out in a new costume. Campus preparation chairman, Ralph Woodhall has appointed his committee of Earl Crtis, Bob Swan, Bob Clever, and John Schriener and ideas clicking in that combination!

Today will be the last day for the freshman activity girls to get in touch with Eleanor Sederstrom, phone 772, for a position on the registration committee. Gals with sweet smiles are requested because there is going to be a photographer lurking around.

White uniformed Kwamas and Skull and Dagger honoraries will greet the Dads with hospitality chairman, Walker Treece, announced. Vickie Sandner and Bill Loud are also committeemen to see about the professional school's open house and one thing and another.

Fraternities Name Seven New Pledges For Winter Term

Winter term pledging speeded up this week with the announcing of seven new pledges to University fraternities by Virgil D. Earl, dean of men.

The new pledges are Bion C. Osburne, Beta Theta Pi, Portland; Jack Werschul, Beta Theta Pi, Portland; N. Taylor Bradford, Beta Theta Pi, Saratoga, California; Pete Riley, Phi Delta Theta, Portland; Robert G. Barker, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Great Falls, Montana; Raymond Schrick, Delta Tau Delta, Portland; James G. Richmond, Pi Kappa Alpha, Coquille.

Houses Vote On Displays At Noon Today

Survey to Settle Dads' Day Signs Construction Issue

By JIM BANKS

Under fire for the past week as heads of houses and students argued the issue, the displays for Dads' day question will be settled definitely today noon as Kwama and Skull and Dagger poll all living organizations.

Helen Angell, president of the women's service honorary, is to lead the Kwama committee in covering the men's houses and Jack Lansing, Skull and Dagger head, has a squad ready to tabulate coed opinion. The respective service groups will start action at noon by polling each house to get the general student opinion.

Dads' day chairman, John Cavanaugh, called for an emergency committee meeting last Friday when the interfraternity council ruled against the construction of house signs and displays as incurring a too heavy load of appropriations. Cavanaugh explained that the original idea was to construct inexpensive but colorful signs or slogans to greet the visiting Dads when they come to the campus January 26, 27, and 28.

Opposition Appears

Opposition appeared from outlying houses because it was felt that their signs would not be fully appreciated. Other objectors pointed out that duplication would be inevitable due to the limited theme.

On the pro side, many students feel that the atmosphere of festivity acquired on the campus because of the signs was entirely appropriate for a Dads' day. Today's poll will determine the extent of opinion in either direction and will be the basis of the Dads' Day committee's final decision.

Cavanaugh said that the precedent set by other committees points toward having signs and he believes that they do much in arousing spirit and adding to the atmosphere.

Support or Defeat

"The committee has no intentions of going against the wishes of the student body in this matter," he declared.

The survey will either support or defeat the house managers' protests on the ground that they are too expensive, the difficulty of enlisting the aid of the members in constructing the signs, and the possibility of rain ruining their effect.

Geologist to Visit Here Wednesday

Word has been received by Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the geology and geography departments, that two geologists from the Pacific Northwest regional soil conservation service will visit the geology department Wednesday.

The geologists, Mr. Stewart Twisat and Mr. Hite, were contacted by Dr. Smith at the Northwest science meeting in December and expressed a wish to get acquainted with what is being done in a geological way in Oregon. They will also visit various dam sites in the Lane county area.

THEATRE PREVIEW

That's Right

The radio and the cinema continue to swap talent with about equal advantage and disadvantage to each, depending on how you want to look at it. Kay Kyser and his musical aggregation are today's temporary refugees from a radio show, and instead of being merely an excuse for, Kyser and friends are the reason for "That's Right, You're Wrong," currently screening at the Heilig.

The film acquires its title from one of Kyser's smarty responses on his College of Musical Knowledge and the loyalty of Kyser fans was evidenced at yesterday's matinee. This picture is the best example of the way the movies ought to treat a radio personality, that is spotting Kay Kyser as Kay Kyser, the hero of a radio-to-Hollywood-to-radio story.

Adolphe Menjou as the movie producer, a role which he does very well, shares top billing with the bandsman. May Robson is Kyser's grandma who thinks that he should stay in his own back yard, i.e., on the radio. Lucille Ball is Sandra Sand, the cinema glamor girl, short on brains but long on glamor. Kyser's principal radio helpers are seen as themselves include Ginny Simms, Harry Babbitt, Ish Kabibble, and Sully Mason, each of whom does his or her specialty in a collection of songs, comic and sentimental.

The idea of the picture is that when the Kyser organization comes to Hollywood, they "go Hollywood," except the leader who thinks it's all a sad mistake. So he purposely bungles his screen test by acting as a great lover. The troupe goes back to radio and the final scene shows Kyser in his deep south accent, presiding in cap and gown over a session of his College of Musical Knowledge.

Barricade

Samuel J. Cady, affectionately and symbolically called "Uncle Sam," is the chief character in "Barricade." He is an American consul in China, appointed by President McKinley, and has been there ever since. He refuses to leave his post in a bandit raid because he had no order from the state department who has completely forgotten him.

Alice Faye, a topnotch musical comedy player and a topnotch vocalist of popular songs is sadly miscast as a Brooklyn girl posing as the Russian wife of an American citizen, and who is really a fugitive murderer. Warner Baxter is a hard-drinking newspaper man out of a job. He plays the newspaper man in such a frantic manner under Gregory Ratoff's direction, that you get the idea that he knew what was going to happen to the picture when the reviewers saw it. Even Charles Winninger, the most successful of the cast in his role of "Uncle Sam," is not up to the Winninger standard. The film does have a few good moments and will show at the McDonald with "Night of Nights" starting Wednesday.

Symposium Team Draws Invitations

Men's Group Plans Tour of Various Cities in State

Fifteen invitations to speak at various clubs and schools throughout the state have been received by the men's division of the University of Oregon symposium team with many more on the way but not yet confirmed, according to W. A. Dahlberg, assistant professor of speech, who is in charge of the men's group.

Each year the symposium team travels around the state speaking to interested groups on current topics. The topics to be discussed by the men's section are "Propaganda and Public Opinion in the United States" and "Is the Cost of Distribution Too High?" The purpose of the tours is to provide the people of Oregon with an opportunity to hear important subjects discussed and to show what is being done by the University speech department.

Propaganda will be the subject of talks at the following towns: January 30, the Clatskanie Kiwanis club; February 16, the Sweet Home high school; January 24, the Eugene Grange; February 29, by the high school Parent-Teachers organization of Albany; April 4-6, Corvallis, at the Pacific Forensic league meeting, and April 9, at Lakeview.

The subject of distribution will be discussed March 7, at Toledo Lions club; March 19, before a meeting of Silverton teachers; March 22, Eugene Grange, and March 25, The Dalles chamber of commerce.

"The Hull Trade Agreements" will be the subject February 5 at a meeting of the Portland chamber of commerce.

Smith Visits Library

Xenophon Smith, assistant in the reference department of the Oregon State College library, spent Sunday afternoon at the University library collecting material for a thesis on visual education in the library.
