

DUCK TRACKS

No more football for Oregon's two all-west stars, Frankie Emmons and Bob Smith.

Yes, it's definite now, despite notices to the contrary. Lefty Bob's decision to give up all thoughts of professional ball came last week when doctors advised him that further play would aggravate bone growths on each ankle and necessitate another operation. (Smith underwent one ankle surgical last year.)

As for Frank Emmons, the big 215-pound Beaverton buster, who starred for Biff Jones and Babe Hollingberry's West aggregation in the annual New Year's Day San Francisco Shrine game, scoring one touchdown, said yesterday that it was very doubtful that he would join the pro ranks. Reason—not enough financial remuneration.

Emmons, drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles, negotiated with the club management this month but did not receive what he terms "suitable" contract figures. And unless a very, very favorable document changes Frank's present plans, he will forsake the pro game to attend summer session or return to school next fall in order to complete a few graduation requirements.

Lefty Bob was drafted by the New York Giants and was given a contract which called for $150 per game for 12 to 14 contests. He was all set to accept and send the document back to Giant headquarters when doctors' advice forced him to retire his grid cleats along with the honors he has earned in four years of top-flight college competition.

Incidentally, both Emmons and Smith were given bids to play for a Western all-star squad against the Los Angeles Bulldogs, professional team, in a charity game for the Finnish relief February 11 in Los Angeles.

The bid included all expenses and a sum of $100 cash. Both of the Webfoot backs turned thumbs down, as did a number of other West senior stars, because of interference with school work.

Versatile Buck Berry

Cheering news for Webfoot baseball followers. Word comes from some of the campus baseballers that Arba Ager, transfer from Southern Oregon Normal, is quite an infielder.

Ager is a shorstop. He played high school baseball in Portland and later gave the semi-pros a whirl, swigging a hickory club for the old Hop Gold outfits.

Also, so we've been informed, Buck Berry is an infielder of some note, himself. Pals of his say he has a rifle arm and really murders the ball. What's more, we understand Buck will turn out for the diamond sport, giving up spring practice.

This fellow Berry, by the way, is rapidly establishing himself as about the most versatile young athlete on the campus. Is there anything he can't do? Maybe there is . . . maybe he can't play a good hand of bridge, but maybe he can. And at that, it may be we are sighting Buck and not naming all his accomplishments (which is more than possible!)

Short Shots . . .

Tex Oliver's southern drawl has been conspicuous by its absence up at McArthur court the past week. . . Reason: Tex has been confined to his home with an attack of influenza, a persistent cold, and an ear infection.

Our McArthur court operative gives out the information that a new halfback possibility is on the campus. . . He's Tommy Roblin, speedy boy from San Mateo jaysce. Also back in the fold is little Harold Johnson, a mite of a halfback who looked mighty good in spring practice last year before injuring a knee.

Several ex-Oregon baseball players will be with the Salem Senators, new entry in the Western International league, this spring. One is John Linde, southpaw chucker who won several games for Coach Hobson two years ago and who had a Seattle tryout last year. Another is Bob Baer, an ex-Grant high star who only enrolled, never played, at Oregon.

Coach Rollie Dickie is sporting a rich, and I do mean rich, coat of "snow tan." He acquired it learning to ski at Mount Hood and Hand Lake . . . and of course, supervising the training of his ski aces. This weekend, Rolie and six teammates take a gander at Reno, Nevada, the divorce capital, while taking part in the Reno ski carnival.

Phi Sigs, Zetas, Theta Chi, And Sammies Win 'A' Cage Games in Intramural Play

With Don "Iron-man" Tower doing a lone job of refereeing, two "A" and one "B" intramural basketball games were run off yesterday on court 43.

Phi Sigma Kappa penetrated the Alpha hall zone defense to win 19 to 8. Zeta hall dropped Kirkwood co-op 32 to 8; and the Sigma Alpha Mu Bees won a 6 to 4 sleeper from the Alpha Hall seconds.

Phi Sigs Win

Leading 5 to 1 at the half and 11 to 4 at the three-quarter mark, the Phi Sigs went on to win handily.

Swim Teams Eye Meets

The first of three meets this week for Oregon's frosh and varsity swimming teams is scheduled for tonight in the men's pool at 8 when Coach Russ Cutler's freshman team meets the Aero club of Portland. The frosh put in two hard sessions Monday and Tuesday in preparation for tonight's meet.

Cutler Uncertain

Coach Cutler said last night he was still not certain as to the placement of his men in the various events. Cutler said he would probably use the same men he used against Salem.

Cutler believes this meet will really test his frosh team. Although the Salem team offered formidable opposition most of the capitol boys were younger than the average high school competitor.

Aero Holds Edge

The Portland swimmers will hold a definite edge over the frosh in experience for this season, as the Portlanders have already competed and won several meets this year.

Saturday both the frosh and varsity offer their wares for Oregon swim fans in meets against the Oregon State rooks and varsity. The two yearling teams meet in the morning at 10 and the varsities in the afternoon at 2:30.

Ducklings Tip Roseburg, 45-23

By BILL PHELPS

It was number 11 last night for the frosh, as they squelched Roseburg high school, 45 to 23, at Roseburg.

The Ducklings, towering over the Roseburg five, mercilessly ran the prepsters to the ground, as they continued on a victory march that has given them wins in all except one of their 12 games this season. Jumping into an early lead, they took a commanding 18-12 margin at the half, and then ran away from the smaller Rosebuds in the second period.

It wasn't just another basketball win for Warren's boys last night, though; the game marked the return of Don Kirsch, half of the yearlings' sensational guard combination. With Kirsch back in uniform, Duckling hopes for the first game of the "Little Civil War" with Oregon State's rooks received a decided boost.

Two Out

However, the injury-ridden frosh are still minus Jake Werschul, while Quentin Sidesinger was also out of action last night.

Wally Borrevik, tall Duckling center, took scoring honors for the evening with 11 points. Tuttle had nine and Taylor eight. Wiard with six points was high for the prepsters, with every man on the Roseburg team scoring—only not enough.

With Roseburg out of the way, Warren will begin experimenting with a patched-up lineup as they point for the formidable rooks, whose season record contains only one loss, that to the Westport town team.

Last night Shelton, the transfer from Eastern Oregon College of Education of "tempest in a teapot" fame, started with the four regulars and there is a chance that he may be used against the rooks.

Box score:

Freshmen, 45 23, Roseburg Taylor, 8 . . . F . . . 6, Wiard Shelton, 11 . . . F . . . 5, Finley Borrevik, 11 . . . C . . . 4, Denton Kirsch, 4 . . . G . . . 3, Baker Tuttle, 9 . . . G . . . 3, Sanders Substitutes: Freshmen—Bubalo 5, Oliver 1, Reynolds 4, Fuhrman 3; Roseburg—Hughes 2.

8-6 halftime score yesterday to defeat Pi Phi 24-12. Both teams played a wild game causing the officials to call a dozen fouls.

Lineups:

Theta, 24 12, Pi Phi Kerr, 4 . . . F . . . 7, Vincent Young, 10 . . . F . . . 5, Daggett Latourette, 3 . . . F . . . Tyler Sanders, 9 . . . F . . . Hihaleic Wethered . . . G . . . Foster Fulton . . . G . . . Riesch Substitutes: Thetas—Adlesich, Morris. Officials: Kay Earl and Marilyn Christlieb.

Chi O Wins

Chi Omega marched off with its initial game 32 to 20, stopping the strong Hen hall delegation. Sue West, scoring 18 points, sent the Chi Os into the lead in the first seconds of the battle.

Lineups:

Chi Omega, 32 20, Hendricks Murray, 8 . . . F . . . 4, Dixon West, 16 . . . F . . . 4, Sigel Nelson, 6 . . . F . . . 8, Wolf Bamford . . . G . . . Malloy Lewis, 2 . . . G . . . 2, Frizzell Jackson . . . G . . . Owens Substitutes: Chi O—Bubb; Hendricks hall—Allen.

Donut Ping Pong Begins Monday

Intramural ping pong starts Monday in the restricted room of the physical education building. Games will start at 4 and 4:45.

Balls will be furnished; contestants are asked to bring their own paddles but the department can furnish a few of these in case of necessity. The restricted room is outfitted with three tables and, asserts Intramural Director Rollie Dickie, has "a good fighting system."

Seven leagues have been formed with four teams composing each. A team consists of two singles men and one doubles squad. Dickie is preparing a mimeographed schedule.

Oregon Skiers Leave For Nevada Tourney

The Webfoot ski team will leave today to compete in their first coast tournament this season. The meet is being held February 2 and 3 at Reno under the sponsorship of the University of Nevada.

Oregon's team, which last week placed third in the tri-school meet at Hood, will send a six-man team to Reno. Skiers selected for the trip are, Terry, Hagen, Evans, Wallace, Zeigler, and Bladine. The Ducks will enter in all four of the events scheduled which includes down-hill, cross-country, and slalom racing. Terry and Evans will also enter the jumping event.

Coeds Swim For Cup

Another silver cup is at stake. This time it's the coeds swimming for it. Competition for this WAA trophy will begin Thursday at 7:30 in Gerlinger pool, and will continue some time within the next two weeks.

Any living organization or independent group may enter a team of four members. Fourteen teams have signed up so far. Twenty and forty-yard speed events are planned for crawl, back, side, and breast stroke. A diving and a relay race will also be included, according to Hope Hughes, Amphibian in charge.

"No girl may enter more than two events, excluding participation in diving and relay competition, so every one has a chance in her field," Hope said. Every girl on the campus who is interested should enter. If there are any students who are not affiliated with a group that is entering a team they may call Betty Mae Lind, 1032.

A second meet is being planned and the scores will be kept and added to the results of the next meet before final winners are announced.

The pool is open from 4 to 6 Tuesday and Thursday and from 5 to 6 all other days. Practices for the whole team or any individual may be held during these open hours. WAA representatives in the houses should keep track of these practices as five practices and participation in at least one of the meets is enough for a check.

Huskies Lose To Beavers

Led by veteran Tony Romano, the Oregon State Beavers trounced the University of Washington Huskies in Corvallis last night by a 49-32 score and moved out three full games ahead in the Northwest conference basketball race.

Bob Lindh, sophomore star for the Huskies, scored 17 points to tie for high point honors with Romano of Oregon State. Lindh was injured early in the fourth quarter and had to be taken from the game. Frank Mandic and Jack Mulder of Oregon State and Bob Voelker of Washington fouled out of the game.

Duck-Beaver Tilt May Be Crucial Point

Revamped Oregons Have All-Important Backboard Height

By KEN CHRISTIANSON

After the Oregon-Oregon State basketball game Saturday night in Corvallis, Webfoot followers and fans will have a clearer conception of Oregon's chances to repeat as northern division titlist this year. For at that time the number one and two teams in the league will play what may be the crucial game of the season.

Coach Hobby Hobson, having revamped the lineup which lost to the Beavers once, may have found a winning combination with the added height under the backboards. With six foot seven Hank Anderson at one forward and Captain John Dick at the other, Hobson has a tall scoring combine.

Anderson hit an average of one for three against Washington in the second game Saturday. Dick made one for two chances, accounting for 42 points made by the Duck in the Husky series. Archie Marshik has been loosening up and playing a better game at the center spot. His six foot seven frame accounted for many rebounds.

Pavalunas Shows

One of the greatest surprises of Saturday's Washington game was the showing of Matt Pavalunas, senior guard. Pavalunas played his best game of the conference season, according to spectators. He has been handicapped by an early season attack of influenza.

Vic Townsend, sharp-shooting guard, and George "Porky" Andrews, Canadian guard, have been the starters in the past three games. Pavalunas may replace one of these.

Hobson drilled his squad on offense last night in order to prepare them for the rampaging Beavers. An intersquad scrimmage was also one of the orders of the day.

Ducks Match OSC

Oregon players received a preview of Saturday's encounter when they saw Oregon State dump the Huskies.

It is thought in some circles that if Hobson can devise some method to stop Oregon State's guards, Paul Valenti and Al Hunter, then the revamped Beaver offense will be stopped. In the Husky game it was these two who carried the brunt of the scoring attack. The tall Beavers scored in the key after the Washington team began to tire.

Fight fans get their second chance to see University boxers and wrestlers in action tonight, when Coaches Vaughn Corley and Eric Waldorf pit 30 of their best men against each other in seven wrestling and eight boxing matches in the Igloo. First match is 7:30.

New faces will make their first appearance inside the ropes tonight in a pair of 165-pound boxers, George Smith and Tony Crish. Smith is a husky transfer from New Mexico State and Crish was a frosh gridiron star last fall.

Two freshmen, Whitson Cox and Carl Orcutt, will oppose each other in a 135-pound fight. Both are new to the ring. A pair of footballers, Ray Segale and Bob Beckner, will go at it in the heavyweight division. Frosh grid star, Jim Shepard, makes his first appearance against Jim Manley in a heavyweight bout.

Outstanding wrestling should be the mixed match between 150-pound Waldo Caufield and 175-pound Vic Nuedelman. Caufield, intramural winner, will wrestle against Oregon State this Friday in the 155-pound weight. Nuedelman is the 175-pound all-campus winner. Waldorf says that the reason for the bout is to get Vic in shape for the Friday matches.

Another feature match will pair the varsity heavyweight Harold Kaschko against the promising freshman, Roy Ell. Both weigh close to 180 pounds. Two members of last year's wrestling team, Berger Rorvick, who just turned out this week, and Ray Foster, will be trying for the 165-pound place on the team that meets the Beavers. The winner of the Burton Dake-Paul Logan duo at 135 pounds will represent the Webfoots in Corvallis Friday. Mort Meyers, a veteran of two years, will oppose Stan Watts, a freshman, and also an Oregon Stater this Friday.
