Rare Old US Glass
Displayed at Library

| Goblets, compots, spoon holders, all rather rare words in the modern vocabulary were well known to the women of the later $1880^{\circ} \mathrm{s}$, as evidenced by the display of rare glass in the circulation room of the library.  The display was loaned by Mrs. Frank Chambers of 1059 Hilyard street, Eugene. All the pieces in Mrs. Chambers' collection of over 100 pieces have names. Some of the interesting glasses in the 1 ibrary go by such unusual nomen- clature as rose in snow, log cabin, picket fence, shell and tassell, tithes derived usually from the patterns worked in the glass.  Mrs. Chambers said her collection began with old pieces handed down in her family and pieced out by trips to second hand stores and anywhere else the glasses were available.  The collection now in the library is of purely American vin- tage with the lion patterr being tage with the lion patterri being the most rare and the goblets and | glass over 100 years old being some old Mexican glass a French bride's glass. |
