UO Theater To Present Macbeth

Shakespearean
Tragedy to Show
May 15

Not to be outdone by Orson Welles and his striking innovations of play production, the University theater of the University of Oregon will shock the conservatives and the classicists during spring term by presenting Shakespeare's great tragedy, "Macbeth"—in modern dress, styled as of spring, 1940.

As far as is known, this will be the first "modern-dress Shakespeare" offered in Eugene. Both the cast and the director look forward with enthusiasm to this departure from custom, which is frankly experimental, as they have no record of "Macbeth" having been so treated by any producers, professional or otherwise.

For those who prefer their Shakespeare in the conventional manner, one group of players will present the play in costumes of the historical period from which the story is drawn, 11th century England and Scotland. As the production will be given six or more showings, there will be double casting of the roles of Macbeth, Lady Macbeth, Macduff, and possibly of several other principals.

Opening about May 15, the play will be presented by the Guild Hall Players, supported by a large cast drawn from the campus and the community at large.

Also to be presented during the term, opening April 12, will be a state high school championships for the boys under Honest John Warren. Honest John moved right down to Oregon in 1936 and tutored Wally and Bobby on one of the best Freshman teams he ever had.

Individual honors have been many and varied for the duo. Wally was named "most feared" player for the 1935 state prep hoop tournament and varied for the duo Wal-northern division guard at Oregon for two seasons, made the 1938 all-Coast team, and was named the outstanding player of the Oregon A.A.U. tournament for 1940.

Teammate Bobby, captain of the 1940 national champs and a great inspirational leader, was selected as guard on the 1939 all-American chosen by Chuck Talyer, nationally known expert. Bobby was also a northern division all-star and an all-stater for two years.

A truly colorful and great basketball pair is probably separated to never again play together and Oregon sports will miss it.

production of Robert E. Sherwood's "Idiot's Delight." An ultra-modern satire on war, the play was recently made famous by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. The campus production will present a new group of campus actors, members of the technique of acting course. Casts for both productions will be announced later.
