

Tennis Court Hop Starts Social Season

'Spring Frolics' Is First Outdoor Dance of Term

Kwama Sponsors All-Campus Caper At 4 o'Clock Today

Dancing on the new school tennis courts will be Oregon's salute to spring today, when returning students attend the first of the 1940 4 o'clock no-date "spring frolics." Today's dance is sponsored by Kwama, sophomore women's honorary.

A lengthy stag line was indicated by fraternity spokesmen last night to 'be "on deck" this afternoon when Bob Calkins' orchestra provides the swing for the first dance of the term.

An old-fashioned "soda pop stand" with white-uniformed Kwamas in attendance will replace the traditional punch bowl at today's dance.

Admission will be 10 cents for each person, with every dance a tag. "Forget about dates—just come over and talk to everybody again," Chairman Elna Johnson urged last night. "We want this afternoon's frolic to be a get-together for all those people who are plenty glad to be back to Oregon and to have spring term here again."

Although Kwamas last night "hoped for sunshine" they have made arrangements for the outdoor gym of Gerlinger hall in case dancers are rained out of the law school courts.

Infirmary Gets Opportunity to Recuperate

Competition for the position of chief - infirmary - holder - downer rests between Bill Barlow and Ross Hargis, who held the fort during the entire spring vacation. A last minute entry was Robert Deiz, who was admitted last Saturday.

Unusual quietness was the theme for the holiday period and funeral silence reigned. Business on the whole was very slack and the establishment is rested and ready for the spring term opening.

Dr. Marion Hayes, infirmary physician, was the only casualty on the infirmary staff listed for the vacation. Dr. Hayes played hostess to a cold for a few days but is now ready for duty.

Dr. Staples Shows Geological Slides

About 50 people looked through rocks instead of at them when Dr. L. W. Staples, geology instructor, showed a number of slides made from thin sections of agates. Dr. Staples spoke before the Condon club in the general geology lecture room.

Dr. Staples was given the slides by William Pitts, a retired business man from California, who makes these thin sections as a hobby. It is a very difficult job but the beauty and design of the agates is brought out more clearly.

Many varieties of agates were shown including moss, airplane, landscape, and banded agates.

Krazy Krawl to Introduce Spring Social Season

Informality to Be Keynote of Annual ADS Dance

A setting of informality and fun-making will usher in the spring term social season Friday night when Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising honorary fraternity, sponsors its annual Krazy Copy Krawl in McArthur court for all Oregon students.

A "School for Musical Knowledge" intermission feature will include a contest similar to that on the Kayser musical show, according to Wally Rossman and Jack Saltzman, co-chairmen of the dance. At that time musical questions submitted by dancers upon entrance will be answered. Members of the dance committee stated last night that special prizes will be awarded those answering questions correctly. However, if the person is unable to answer, the one who submitted the question will be the prize winner.

Advertisers will display giant advertisements on the interior of McArthur court. An informal atmosphere will prevail with short silks being in order for coeds.

Committee members will include newly initiated members of Alpha Delta Sigma, Les Harger, Fred May, Fred Ehlers, Dave Compton, Bob Calkins, Jess Shinn, and Bob Milspaugh.
