

Oregon Mothers To Be Honored With Serenade

Terrace Dance Set as Feature Of Junior Weekend

Plans have been completed, according to Junior Weekend committee heads, to present the University concert band at "Sunlight Serenade," a musical program for Oregon mothers to be held Saturday afternoon, May 11. The Oregon concert band, in the opinion of Rex Underwood, director of the University symphony orchestra, is the best musical group of its kind on the Pacific Coast.

Members of three committees have been appointed, John Cavanagh, promotion chairman, stated yesterday. Doris Ann Neely and Stan Staiger will prepare the program for "Sunlight Serenade." Marjorie McLean and Gleeson Payne are in charge of arrangements for the terrace dance, to be held on the library terrace Saturday afternoon, May 11. This program will be constructed so as to reflect the enthusiasm and gaiety typical of Viennese life, Cavanagh said.

The Junior Weekend Traditions committee is a new committee this year. Their job, Cavanagh stated, will be to inform the freshmen of their "duties" during the weekend, and to inform all organizations taking part in the activities during the three days. The general idea will be to incorporate all the traditions that have become integral parts during 50 years of Junior Weekends into the 1940 program. Don Turner and Herb Barbur were appointed to serve as co-chairmen on this committee.

Musical College

A Kay Kyser-styled musical quiz, based on the musical College of Knowledge program, will also be a feature of the dance. Each person attending may submit questions concerning dance bands, and during the dance five volunteers will test their musical knowledge by attempting to answer the questions.

One dollar will be awarded the entrants for every question they answer. If they do not answer the question, the submitter of the question will receive a dollar.

Billboards and national advertising ideas will provide the decoration theme, and Maurie Binford's orchestra will play.
