

Jose Iturbi to Play in McArthur April 8

Concert Series Begins Monday With Musician

Greater Artists' Performance Free For Card Holders

Jose Iturbi, pianist, conductor, radio guest star, and phonograph recording artist, who in 11 years has seen his name take a definite place in American music circles, will make his first Eugene appearance Monday night when he plays for the ASUO Greater Artist's concert series in McArthur court.

Played on Radio

As a pianist his work has given him places on many radio programs including the Kraft hour, and he has also gained fame in recent years as an orchestra conductor.

In special summer engagements Iturbi has conducted the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra at the Lewisohn stadium and he has also led the Connecticut, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles groups. He conducted the Ford Sunday evening hour at one time.

Get Tickets in McArthur

Tickets for the Monday performance may be purchased at the ASUO office in McArthur court. The performance will be free to ASUO card holders.

Extension Division Plans New Classes

Courses in education, economics, and health are being offered on the University campus spring term by the general extension division of the state system of higher education.

Dean Victor P. Morris of the school of business administration will conduct a Wednesday evening class, "International Economic Policies." Economic problems of the present situation will be analyzed. 107 Commerce is the scheduled meeting place.

Pupil evaluation and determination of educational objectives will be considered in Dr. H. B. Wood's class, "Evaluation of Pupil Growth and Development," which meets Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. This class is primarily for teachers of the vicinity.

A course in "Health Education" will be directed by Miss Ethyl Mealey, formerly a staff member of the department of physical education, and at the present time with the state board of health. Miss Mealey's Wednesday afternoon class will meet at Frances Willard school.

Fisher Chosen as Recreation Director

Thomas W. Fisher, civic director of recreation for the city of Eugene, will direct the administration course in recreation, it was announced Tuesday by the physical education department.

The course will deal with the different types of recreation programs in cities and small towns, their financing and administration, and the relation of the state W.P.A. program to the various civic activities.

Bicyclists who ride without lights at night, and who ride swiftly into the street from a sideroad, are among the chief contributors to traffic accidents.

Dean Sheldon's Book On UO Published

The complete history of the University of Oregon appeared in book form last Saturday when Dean Henry D. Sheldon's "History of the University of Oregon" rolled off the presses.

Starting with a legal conflict which took place before Eugene was finally selected for the site of the University, the book covers the 64-year history of the institution. Particular emphasis on the processes of legislation during the establishment and on through the years is made by Dr. Sheldon, research professor of history and former dean of the school of education.

The volume is 300 pages in length and was published by the Binford's and Mort of Portland. Professor George Turnbull's history of journalism in the Northwest was also published by the Portland concern.

Dr. Sheldon began his work here at the University 40 years ago. During his earlier years he had considerable contact with faculty members who had been on the staff since its beginning and therefore he has been able to recreate their characters.

Libe Has Oregon History Display

A display of early textbooks, newspapers, and other material tracing the history of Oregon will be a feature of the third annual library day, May 3, according to M. H. Douglass, librarian.

Library day will also include a number of other highly interesting displays. Since this year is the 500th anniversary of printing, a large number of early examples of printing, carefully preserved in the vaults, will be placed on exhibition. Newer and more modern examples of printing art, and a demonstration of the newest "streamlined" invention, the use of small film for preserving data, will be included.

The student exhibit will be a part of a display which will trace the growth and development of the Oregon country.

The day, with its many exhibits and displays and other features, has now become an annual event on the campus.

Symposium Team Makes Speeches During Holidays

Members of the symposium made several speeches over the Easter holidays. On March 18, Charles Devereaux and Earl Holmes spoke on "Distribution" before the Chamber of Commerce at Newberg. They orated on the same subject the next day at Sweethome. On March 22, Charles Devereaux spoke on "Distribution" before the Eugene grange. On March 25, Leonard Clark and Charles Devereaux spoke at the Wasco Civic club on "Distribution," and also at The Dalles Chamber of Commerce on the same topic.

Earl Palmer, Frank McKinney, and Charles Devereaux spoke in Seattle on March 28 and 29 on "Distribution." Monday, April 1, Ray Hewitt, Merlin Nelson, and Jack Blankinship filled engagements at Lebanon and Albany. They spoke on "Propaganda." April 2 Charles Devereaux and Leonard Clark spoke before the Portland Chamber of Commerce on the "Hull Reciprocal Trade Agreements."

Trip to Japan Offered Students

Prizes Offered by Nipponese Society In Essay Contest

The opportunity to win a round trip to Japan with a three months' vacation will be open to Oregon students according to rules of an international essay contest announced yesterday by the personnel office.

The contest will celebrate the twenty-sixth centennial of the founding of Japan and is open to persons living all over the world. Entrants will have their choice of three possible subjects—the characteristics of Japanese culture, the cultural intercourse between Japan and foreign countries, or the position of Japanese culture in the world.

Entries must be in the mail by September 30, 1940, and essays may not be more than 8000 words in length. Complete rules may be obtained from the personnel office.

The society for international cultural relations in Tokyo is sponsoring the competition. In addition to the first prize three-month visit to Japan, there will also be a second prize trip for one month. Third prize will be books or other articles totaling 500 yen in value.

Retail Merchants To Convene Here

Oregon retail merchants will meet on the University of Oregon campus Monday, April 8, for the fourth annual conference of the Oregon Retail Distributors' Institute, according to an announcement issued yesterday by Dr. N. H. Comish, secretary of the institute and professor of business administration in the University.

Richard G. Montgomery, president of the institute will preside at the meetings.

Among the many speakers slated are Dr. Comish, Dr. Donald M. Erb, University president; Dean Alfred Powers, general extension, system of higher education, Portland; and Dean Victor P. Morris, of the school of business administration.

Dr. Townsend Will Make Study Tour

On sabbatical leave this term, Dr. H. G. Townsend, head of the philosophy department, left during vacation for the east, where he will study phases of American philosophy.

Traveling through the southern states he will spend some time studying in libraries on the way. He plans to do the major part of his work in the Yale library.

C. J. Sullivan, Jr., assistant professor of philosophy, is taking over Dr. Townsend's duties.

Counsellor Aspirants To Be Interviewed

Opportunity to apply for summer positions as camp counsellors of the Portland Girl Scouts at Camp Wildwood has been made possible for those junior and senior girls interested.

To Desk After Work In Nation's Capital

Dean Wayne L. Morse of the law school returned from Washington, D. C., last week to resume work on the University campus, according to word from the dean's office. While in the nation's capital, Dean Morse worked on a committee under the department of labor to help set a national wage scale for pulp and paper workers. In addition to this extra work,

Dean Morse served as an arbitrator in another San Francisco labor dispute during the spring vacation.

Miss Jones Back

Miss Florence Jones of the English department has returned to her position here at the University after an absence of a year and two terms. Miss Jones spent her leave of absence in England studying and writing, until present war conditions necessitated her return.
