Juniors Lose One Adviser, Gain Another

Carlton E. Spencer Will Guide Class; Turnbull Resigns

Oregon's junior class lost an adviser yesterday when George Turnbull resigned after 17 years of guidance, but received a new faculty leader last night when the president's office announced that Carlton E. Spencer, law school professor, would fill the vacancy.

Professor Turnbull, journalism instructor, gave up the post because of lack of time, but the resignation will have no effect on his teaching work here. He has been adviser to the junior class since 1923.

"I am glad," Professor Turnbull declared yesterday, "that someone as capable as Mr. Spencer will take over the advisership. I am certain he will be able to do a great deal for junior activities on the campus."

Spencer is director of Oregon's flight instruction work, and has taught here as professor of law since 1929. He will take over his position immediately and assist in plans for this year's Junior Weekend, May 10, 11, and 12.

Iturbi Concert First In Eugene

Spanish Musician Opens Artist Series In Igloo Monday

For all the tours throughout the United States made by Jose Iturbi, internationally famous pianist, Monday night will mark the first time a Eugene audience has been given the opportunity to hear him in person.

The Spanish musician is the first offering on the ASUO Greater Artist series in McArthur court this term.

The concert is free to all ASUO card holders. Others wishing to purchase tickets may buy them at the ASUO office in McArthur court.

Petition Dates Corrected

A typographical error in the Emerald yesterday confused the dates for Emerald and Oregon editorial and business manager petitions.

The dates, as corrected, should read: for Emerald editor, petitions due April 22, interviews April 24. For Oregon and Emerald business managers the dates originally given were correct, April 25 for petitions and April 29 for interviews.

Eschebeck Is Here

Walter Eschebeck, '37, now on the faculty of the Klamath Falls union high school, is visiting friends on the campus this week.

Mr. Eschebeck was graduate assistant in the speech division for two years.

Final Rehearsal Set for Varieties

Final dress rehearsal for participants in the all-campus Spring Varieties floor show Friday night will be held this evening at 7 o'clock in McArthur court.

Les Harger, master of ceremonies, will conduct this evening's rehearsal. Art Holman's band will be on hand to provide the accompaniment.

Friday 11 o'Clock Classes Will Meet This Morning

An organized move to understand the problems and issues of war and peace in the United States will take form on the Oregon campus tomorrow when Kirby Page, noted author and lecturer, opens a two-day University peace conference with an 11 o'clock address before a student assembly in Gerlinger hall.

Mr. Page will speak on "What Should American Patriots Do About War?" and he will review problems with immediate view to the present American foreign policy. Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, announced yesterday that Friday 11 o'clock classes will meet today to provide time for the program.

Governor Given Welcoming Job

Oregon's Governor Charles E. Sprague will welcome representatives of colleges and universities in 11 western states at the formal banquet given the second evening of the Associated Women Students convention, which will be held here April 15, 16, and 17.

Mrs. Sheldon Sackett, member of the board of higher education, will be the guest speaker at the dinner and her subject, "Education in a Democracy," will follow the theme of the convention, "Women in a Democracy," Grace Irvin, general chairman, stated.

At 10:30 Tuesday the delegates will leave Eugene to spend the day at Oregon State, where they will be entertained at a luncheon, tea, and a joint student meeting. Before leaving the Oregon campus, discussion groups will be held to exchange ideas which arise concerning Panhellenic, independent, and vocational activities at coeducational schools.

Dean Calls for Social Listings

All social events for spring term must be scheduled on the social calendar in the dean of women's office by this weekend, Dean Hazel P. Schwering announced yesterday.

The complete social calendar will be made public early next week, she said.

All Friday 11 o'clock classes will meet today instead, at 11 a.m.

Exec Comm To Set Date For Elections

ASUO Leaders Meet at Noon; End Of Work Near

The ASUO executive committee will swing into the home stretch of the year today at noon, in its first meeting of its final term in office.

Among the headline items for the meeting are nominating dates for ASUO elections, the possibility of a student union committee trip to Idaho, and preliminary discussion of the next year's student body membership fee.

With elections only a little more than a month away, the time for nominations is about due to be set, in order that candidates may have plenty of time to prepare their campaigns. Nominations actually are made either by filing or at a nominating assembly. Elections follow nominations by a week.

Mother's Day Head Appointed

John Dick Names Majeane Glover, Others to Positions

Majeane Glover, sophomore in business administration, was named yesterday to head the committee in charge of the Mothers' Day celebration to be held in conjunction with Junior Weekend on May 10, 11, and 12, John Dick, ASUO president, announced yesterday.

"Our committee plans to do its utmost to bring a record number of mothers to the campus for the weekend. Special emphasis is being laid this year to bring back those mothers who are also alumnae, as they can serve in the double capacity as grads returning for the Junior Weekend and visiting mothers. We wish to make a plea to all students to write to their parents urging them to attend the celebration," Miss Glover stated.

ADS Banquet to Be Held in Portland

University alumni from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, and Aberdeen will be among those present when the W. F. G. Thacher chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma holds its annual banquet and conference in Portland's Multnomah hotel Saturday, April 7, according to word received here.

Named as principal speaker of the conclave is Ray Andrews, vice-president of Botsford, Constantine, and Gardner advertising agency, who speaks on some phases of the Jantzen account.

Held alternately in Eugene and Portland, the meeting this year is scheduled coincidentally with that of the Federated Advertising Clubs of Portland and the ad managers' section of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers' association.

'Funny Noises'

Chairman Verdi Sederstrom, who has promised a rare time for all ASUO card holders (and others at 50 cents) at the Spring Varieties dance and floor show Friday night in McArthur court.

Variety Show To Feature Acts

Dancing, Singing, Comedians Slated Free for ASUO

There will be funny noises from funny sources, and interesting acts from interesting sources at the ASUO Spring Varieties show in McArthur court tomorrow night, Verdi Sederstrom, chairman, predicted last night.

In addition to "The March of Term," written, directed, and to be presented by student talent, Sederstrom announced the addition to the program of acrobatic dancing, singing, impersonations, and comic acts. Student body cards—50 cents for non-ASUO members—will enable students to see and hear practically everything that heretofore unheralded campus talent can offer, he declared.

The floor show will begin at 10 o'clock. Dancing is held before and after.

Luncheon Finishes Art School Festivity

A luncheon at the Anchorage Wednesday noon attended by Dean Ellis F. Lawrence of the art school, Dean William Emerson, dean emeritus of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, students, and visitors, wound up the twenty-fifth anniversary festivities of the art school.

Interior decoration students met with Miss Bertha Stewart, Portland interior decorator, for lunch.

A special dinner party for a group of friends was planned at the Osburn hotel for Dean Emerson by two Oregon graduates and their wives who had gone to Massachusetts Institute of Technology. They were Mr. and Mrs. Eyler Brown, associate professor of architecture, and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hudson, instructor in art.

'Stevie' Smith Quits Faculty Position Here

Resignation Ends 14 Years' Service On University Staff

Oregon's Professor S. Stephenson Smith, better known to University students as "Stevie," yesterday turned in his resignation as a member of the English faculty to President Donald M. Erb.

Smith's resignation from his 14-year job as a member of the English department came after a school year on leave of absence from his teaching job.

During the time since he left his professorship here last September, he has served as education counselor for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and has since toured widely for the society. In October he lectured on the campus.

Last year when "Stevie" Smith was still teaching Oregon undergraduates, he was the only Rhodes scholar on the campus, having taken graduate work at Oxford before coming here. He is a graduate of Reed college.

Professor Smith told friends in Portland that he had accepted a position elsewhere after September 30, the date when his resignation becomes effective.

Igloo Try Given Choral Union's 'Elijah' Singers

Recital on Sunday; Chicago Virtuosos Set for Lead Spots

Almost 400 stout-lunged members of the University choral union had a chance to find out how their singing voices would sound in spacious McArthur court last night, when the group moved en masse from the music auditorium for one of the final rehearsals before their Sunday night performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

Also present for the "try-out" hearing in the Igloo were the 70 members of the University symphony orchestra, and Director Theodore Kratt, who returned from Los Angeles Tuesday noon to put the final touches to the production.

Arriving later this week to sing the leading roles will be Helen Bickerton, soprano, and Raymond Koch, baritone, both of Chicago; Melvin H. Geist, tenor, new dean of music at Willamette university; and Madeline Dwyer, contralto, Portland.

An eight-page program will be printed for the concert. It will contain the complete text—although the oratorio will be sung in English; names of the members of the Eugene Symphony association, which is sponsoring the event, and names of the choral union and orchestra members.

Seats will be reserved for the members of the Eugene Symphony association and the Associated Students of the University of Ore-
