

Portland Tipped by Duck Nine, 7-2

Rival Clubs Each Get Eleven Hits

Southpaw Jack Jasper, Newcomer Virgil Haynes Pitch in Oregon Win; Dick Whitman Collects Four for Four

By GEORGE PASERO
Co-Sports Editor, Oregon Emerald

The weather finally gave Oregon's varsity baseball players a break yesterday, and they responded with a pretty fair exhibition of diamond artistry, in handing Portland university's Pilots a 7 to 2 setback on Howe field.

All in all it really was a fine baseball day. Warm sunshine kept the tossers happy in spite of slippery footing and damp turf; a fair-sized crowd was on hand; and even the peanut and hot-dog vendors, welcome personages at any game, were around.

At the Oregon-Linfield contest they were sadly not in evidence.

Coach Hobby's Webfoots, for their part, found their batting eyes in the eighth inning, crashing out five blows and sending six runners across home plate. In the first seven frames, it was horse and horse with each team posting only one run.

Hits Are Even

Both teams collected 11 hits, but vious inning, scoring all three base runners. This time, however, big Cece lumbered clear around to third to get credit for a well-earned triple.

Whitman clubbed out four blows in four times at the plate. Three of his blows were singles, and one was a long triple.

Jack Shaw, a pitcher of the Junk Walters-Cowboy Ed Tomlin type, went the route for Portland's Pilots. A versatile athlete, Shaw can catch and pitch almost equally well, although he is more at home behind the plate. Except for the aforementioned eighth inning lapse, Shaw hurled masterful ball. He also batted in the cleanup position.

Whitey Austin Works

Tall Al Korhonen, Pilot left-fielder, gave Oregon's flychaser Whitey Austin quite a workout. Korhonen pounded out four hits in five trips with the willow, and three of these, two doubles and a triple, and a long fly ball which Austin caught were all clubbed to deep left field.

Both the Webfoots and Pilots managed to push across one run in the fourth inning. Portland scored first when Korhonen tripled and came in on Shaw's fly to Oregon's Bill Carney in right field.

Back came the Ducks in their half of the inning to knot the count. Whitman singled, Carney walked, and both advanced when Tommy Cox, batting for Lloyd Beggs, laid down a sacrifice bunt which Catcher Roy Harrington of Portland mishandled.

Harrington's bobble gave life to Cox and filled the bases. Right here occurred one of the wildest plays of the game. Arba Ager slammed a hot one to the short-stop, Eddie Curran, who whipped the ball to the catcher to cut off Whitman at the plate. Catcher Harrington then fired to second in an attempt to catch the flying Cox, Carney scoring in the meantime. Carney was safe, but Portland did manage to get Cox out at the plate.

Billy Calvert opened the eighth inning with a rap to short which was muffed. Whitman singled, but Carney's attempted sacrifice went wrong when the alert Roy Harrington threw to third to force the Webfoot blows were bunched more effectively.

Big Jack (Sunshine) Jasper, southpaw of last year's team, hurled the first five innings for the Ducks, scattering five blows and allowing only one run. The tall moundsman who came to Oregon from California threw few curves but whiffed six Pilots during his stay on the hill.

Jasper was not the winning pitcher, however. The win was credited to Virgil Haynes, a new discovery of Coach Hobson's, who took over at the beginning of the sixth inning with the score one-all and handcuffed the visitors the rest of the way. The only run scored off Haynes, a right-hander from Southern Oregon College of Education, was tallied in the final frame, after the Webfoots had piled up a commanding lead.

Whitman Slugs

Slugging star of the day was Dick Whitman, sophomore outfielder, but it was the bat of Cece Walden which climaxed the big eighth inning rally. In the seventh frame, "Ox" Walden clubbed the ball to deep left-center but managed to make it only to second base. He came up again in the eighth with Ducks on every bag, and, to the amazement of fans, duplicated his blow of the pre-

Oregon Golfers Head for North To Face Huskies

Captain-Coach Doc Near to Play Top Position on Team

By MILTON LEVY

Oregon's title defending golf team left for Seattle this morning to meet the University of Washington Huskies Saturday in the first conference match for this year's Duck aggregation.

Three lettermen made the trip, and three newcomers on the team will get their first swing at conference golf competition. The match will be a 36-hole contest, with singles and doubles. In the past, visiting teams at the University of Washington have been forced to play singles in the morning and the doubles in the afternoon. This has always made the match a very tough affair for the visiting team as new members who have never played on the course must play their best golf and play it for the first time on the course. The singles matches count twice as much as the doubles.

Near Top Man

Playing in the No. 1 position will be Captain-coach Doc Near. Near shot a sub par 287 last week in the qualifying rounds. Benny Hughes, northern division medalist, will play in the second position. Rich Werschkul, the third returning letterman, will play in the third berth.

Bob Engelke will be in the fourth position. Engelke qualified in the second position but has been shifted as this is his first conference match. Don Cawley, member of last year's frosh team, will be No. 5 man.

Chuck Phipps defeated Chet Keller 2 and 1 to win the sixth position for this match.

Harry Milne has been appointed as senior golf manager.
