

Junior Weekend Radio Talent Solicited

Programs Set For Early May On KGW, KOIN

Urgent Demand For Entertainment Made by Holcomb

The Junior Weekend committee wants some talent for radio shows to be presented over stations KGW and KOIN in Portland and KORE, and it is wanted in a hurry, according to Jack Holcomb, who is in charge of the preparations.

The programs have been scheduled tentatively for presentation on some half-hour program during the first weekend in May, Holcomb stated. The stations demand that the plans of the program be formulated well in advance. The best type of entertainment for the program, he said, would be musical numbers. "After going to the ASUO 'Spring Varieties' Friday night, and seeing just how good the talent on the campus is," Holcomb asserted, "there is no doubt whatsoever in our minds that we will be able to offer features that any of the stations will be glad to put on the air."

The Junior Weekend committee is contacting all the students they know of who would be interested in appearing, but is eager to have any other students who would like to have their talent broadcast contact them as soon as possible, Holcomb said.

Song Contest Ends With Six in Finals

Three Oregon sororities and three fraternities will vie Wednesday night for the roles of singing champions of the Oregon campus in the final round of the winter term fraternity sing contest at the McDonald theater.

Delta Gamma, Pi Beta Phi, and Gamma Phi Beta have been chosen to compete for the women's $75 prize, and Sigma Chi, Alpha Tau Omega, and Phi Delta Theta will sing in the men's play-offs.

The all-campus contest began last term, with a fraternity and sorority appearing on each Wednesday night's program at the McDonald theater. The play-offs will be held on the McDonald stage Wednesday night at 8:45.

Judges will be Hal Young and John Stark Evans of the music department, and Madame Rose McGrew, former Metropolitan opera singer.

No advance in prices will be made for Wednesday night's play-off performance, according to Wally Rossman, promoter of the contest.

Fansett, Dahlberg On Speech Trip

E. C. Fansett, alumni secretary, left Sunday with members of the speech squad and W. A. Dahlberg, assistant professor of speech, for Klamath Falls and Lakeview.

Mr. Fansett will work with Oregon alumni members there and is scheduled to return to the campus Thursday.

Dahlberg to Head Forensic League

W. A. Dahlberg, associate professor of the speech division of the English department, was elected president of the Pacific Forensic league at the annual business meeting Saturday morning at Corvallis. Mr. Dahlberg held the position of vice-president during the past year.

The Pacific Forensic league is composed of 13 colleges and universities on the Pacific coast, and is open to all similar institutions on unanimous vote of membership. Its purpose is to promote forensics generally and to provide an annual meeting place where student and faculty delegates may discuss problems, hold discussions and contests in oratory, extempore speaking, and after-dinner speaking.

Next year the league will meet at Stanford university.

Geology Students Go on Field Trip

About 30 geology students went on the Sunday field trip to the Sweet Home region. They saw and collected fossils found in Brownsville sandstone and petrified wood, including opalized, agatized, and solisified specimens.

Girls Surpass Boys on Sicklist At Infirmary

In contrast to the old axiom that women are healthier than men, girls predominate on the infirmary sick list for April 8.

Virginia Le Fors, Elizabeth Hanchett, Pat Nickell, Catherine Bates, Dolores Davidson, Jean Romie, Margaret Watts, June Chesney, Shirley Steele, Nancy Stratton, and Virginia Wolfe make up the eleven girl inmates while Vernon Greedy, Don Moss, and Cyrus Nims are the only boys in the infirmary at present.

Hanna to Conduct Discussion Group In Browsing Room

A reading and discussion group will be conducted by Mark Hanna, instructor in speech, in the browsing room this evening from 7:30 until 9:30. Although carried on in connection with one of Professor Hanna's speech classes, this gathering is not a class. The class merely furnishes a nucleus for the group.

Everyone is welcome, but Miss Sawyer, browsing room librarian, asks that everyone come before 7:45, at which time the doors will be locked in order to prevent disturbance to the speaker and listeners.

The object of the group, according to Miss Sawyer, is to present and discuss books and to encourage them as subjects of discussion.

Findley, Stone, Johnson, Dallas Pass Flight Tests

Four UO Students Receive Licenses For Private Flying

Harry Findley, Kneeland Stone, Stanley Johnson, and Nick Dallas passed final flight tests under a civilian aeronautics authority examiner Saturday to receive their private pilot's licenses.

First to complete Oregon's civil pilot training course, they were okayed by CAA Examiner Jack Hunt and Assistant "Buck" Buchanan following Friday night's finals in ground school instruction.

All ground school training came to an end for the present CAA course with the final examinations last Friday, Carlton E. Spencer, air school head, announced. Actual flight tests by official government examiners constitutes the last hurdle before the remaining trainees are eligible for private licenses. Private flight permits allow passenger flying on a non-commercial basis, Mr. Spencer pointed out. Further training is necessary before the pilots can qualify for commercial air activity.

The University of Oregon concert band will go collegiate when it plays the new University fight songs today.
