

Editor Knight Issues New Oreganas

Yearbooks Now Ready For Delivery

Books Prepared For Students at McArthur Court

Climaxing a year of concentrated and steady work for Editor George Knight, Activities Manager George Root, and the whole Oregana staff, the first copies of the 1940 edition will be distributed from McArthur court today.

Starting at 8 a.m. Dick Williams, business manager, will supervise the work of delivering the 2300 books to those students and faculty members who have already placed their order.

Distribution will continue to noon and then from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Those that do not pick their books up today may do so on Thursday during the same hours and from the same place. After Thursday, no books will be given out until the following Monday.

The book this year has included in it most of the features that were displayed in last year's edition. The cover is decidedly different, though, and those that have previewed the book say that it is the most beautiful ever to be produced by an Oregana editor.

Orders are being taken every day from those that have not yet purchased the book. The full price of $5.50 must be paid to order an Oregana at the present time, and the purchaser must go on a waiting list. If the order cannot be filled, the money will be refunded. Those wishing to place their order may do so today by contacting Dick Williams at McArthur court.

Research Done By Dr. Sheldon

Gleanings from newspapers such as the Portland Oregonian, the Oregon Journal, the Eugene Register-Guard, from magazines and official sources of information which would take months or years for an individual to find are being classified by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, research professor of history and education.

The author of "The history of the University of Oregon," Dr. Sheldon is arranging his source material, as copied verbatim, by years and sources of information. It will be put in the files on the third floor of the library this summer.

"If anyone should want to work up any point of history, they'll know just where to find the information. It is a very valuable piece of local history," said Dr. Sheldon in explaining the object of his classification.

Three Take Trip To Wallowa Peaks

Three men under the supervision of Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the geology and geography departments, worked three days last week compiling a research bulletin on the Wallowa mountains.

The men are from the state department of geological and mineral interests and include Ray Treasher, located in Grants Pass; John Allen, located in Portland; and Wayne Lowell, also of Portland.

Plans for Recital Nearly Completed

Plans for the Master Dance recital to be held Friday evening have been completed with the appointment of committees, and rehearsals are being held every day by individual groups.

Committee members are as follows: stage manager, Janice Jones; costumes, Marial Patterson and Margaret Van Matre; lighting, Virginia Utley; programs, Lois Masters and Nancy Ann Johnson; ushers, Mary Thatcher; invitations, Nancy Ann Johnson; publicity, Martha Wodaege and Miss Ethel Sawyer.

A dress rehearsal Wednesday evening will bring the entire group together for the first time. The dances are performed by Master Dance members, members of the dance classes, and the Eugene high school dance class.

Faculty Handicap Golf Tournament Now in Semi-Finals

Games in the faculty handicap golf tournament have been played off up to the semi-finals in the championship flight and all games are expected to be completed on schedule by May 18, according to Dr. Johnson, professor of Romance languages.

Those entering the semi-finals are W. P. Riddlesbarger, assistant professor of the business administration school, who will play E. H. Moore, professor of sociology, and W. H. Dahlberg, assistant professor in the speech department, who will play Lawrence Hartwig, assistant professor of law. Winners in this group will enter the finals.

Handicaps appear to be equal and the games have been very close, some members having to play over 18 holes before a deciding score has been reached, Dr. Johnson declared.

Shea to Run Pool

Harry T. Shea has been appointed new supervisor of the University swimming pool, it was announced yesterday by men's physical education department. John Boettcher, former supervisor of the pool, has been transferred to the physical education building.

Opera Singer Is Guest Artist

Music Honorary Concert Features Austrian Virtuoso

An opera star of the first magnitude, Mme. Gertrud Bender-Rosenstock, will be guest artist for members of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honor society for upper-class women in music, when they present their annual concert Thursday night at 8:15 o'clock in the music auditorium. No admission will be charged.

Mme. Bender has been in Eugene for three months, having come to the United States from Berne, Switzerland. She left Austria with her husband, Josef Rosenstock, when the Anschluss came to Vienna. Her colorful career includes starring roles in the European premieres of almost a score of modern-day operas.

Because her song favorites are from Puccini and Mozart, she will sing an aria from each of their operas. Outstanding among these is expected to be "Un bel di vedremo" ("One Fine Day") from "Madame Butterfly," the Puccini opera she sang in a command performance before the American forces during the occupation of the Rhineland after the war.

From Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" Mme. Bender will sing the recitative and aria from Act 3, which begins "Yes, at length is the moment." Other numbers will be "If there were Dreams to Sell" by John Ireland, "Moonlight at Night" by Robert Schumann, and "How Much I Love You" by Frank La Forge.

Mu Phi Epsilon members also taking part in the concert will be Catherine Miller, Charlotte Plummer, Mollie Small Hardin, Jane Hall, Madge Conaway Chilcote, Mary Booth, Marjorie Scobert, and Lora Teshner Ware, professor of cello.

Tiger Payne -- Home Town Boy Succeeds

By RAY SCHRICK

An unknown college freshman with $30 in his pocket and the idea of a college education ahead of him—that was Tiger Payne three years ago when he arrived at the University of Oregon. Yesterday, Ty was elected to the highest ASUO post on the campus—the position of student body president for the 1940-41 school year.

Payne ascends to office following a home-town boy who also made good—John Dick, basketball star from The Dalles. And it was largely because of Dick that the new president came to Oregon—for he followed Dick to the campus and to the same fraternity house.

For three years Payne has paid his own way after receiving a University loan that enabled him to pledge his first year and he spent little time opening a place for him in school activities.

His first term on the campus, Tiger entered the political circle as president of the freshman class. Since then his time has been one round of University work after another.

For two years he has been a member of the Co-op board and last fall directed ASUO card sales as drive chairman. Payne is a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising honorary, Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's honorary, and he is in charge of a terrace dance for this year's Junior Weekend.

Grad's Books Here

Two books by Richard L. Neuberger, who formerly attended the University of Oregon, are now available in the browsing room of the University library. "Our Promised Land," his third book, deals with political, social, and economic development in the northwestern states. "Integrity—The Life of George W. Norris" is a biography written in collaboration with Stephen Kahn.
