

All Plots Joined In Anderson's Play, 'High Tor'

Comedy, Legends Combined in Next UO Theater Show

Maxwell Anderson has combined all plots which are never-failing "box office" to the American in his play, "High Tor," to be presented May 22, 23, and 24, as the concluding production of the University theater's season.

A boisterous mixture of humor romance, is combined with American legends mixed together with scarcely a hint of a tear is a thumbnail sketch of this comedy which mixes modern times with the quaint century of Hendrik Hudson.

Listed in the cast are: Indian, Adrian Martin; Van Dorn, Fred Waller; Judith, Charlene Jackson; Biggs, Henry Korn; Skimmerhorn, Ethan Newman; Lise, Rose Ann Gibson; Asher, James Parsons; Pieter, Bob Hecker; sailors, Jerry Lakefish and Ludd Schmidt; Deitt, Frank Calhoun; Dope, Gerald Bowerly; Elkus, Charles Boice; Buddy, Don Butzin; Patsy, Parker McNeil; Senior, Major H. L. Barrett; Budge, Jack McCliment.

Infirmiry Has Competition In Junior Weekend

One of the strangest cases of mass recuperation known medical science is now taking place at the University infirmiry. Tuesday evening 20 patients spent the night within infirmiry walls, Wednesday night saw only 14 tucked in, and last night only 8 remained to keep the doctors busy.

Amazed physicians have subjected the cases to close scrutinization and are still bewildered. They have a slight suspicion, however, that the remarkable cure is being affected by a psychological germ known as "Junior's Weekenditis."

Those who still remain uncured are Elaine Grey, Patricia Howard, Bob Skelley, Terry Mullin, Max Frye, Richard Hanen, Jack Daniels, and Bob McAuliffe.

Mothers to Trade Radio Greetings With OSC Moms

KOAC to Broadcast Banquet Programs Saturday Evening

Speakers for the University of Oregon Mothers' Day banquet will exchange greetings with a similar banquet held on the Oregon State College campus by means of radio broadcasts from both places over station KOAC.

The Oregon banquet will commence Saturday evening at 5:30, and is to be held in the John Straub memorial building. However, both affairs are to be on the air only from 7 to 8. The few remaining tickets are on sale in the housing secretary's office on the first floor of Johnson hall.

Highlight of the banquet will be the address by Dean Theodore Pratt of the University music school on the subject of "Music and Youth." Other entertainment events on the program are vocal numbers by students, Virginia Tooze and Robert Carmichael. The visitors will also have the pleasure of hearing numbers by Delta Gamma sorority and sing contest, the Delta Gamma Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Also to be announced at the banquet will be the winner of the attendance contest between the respective classes as to who has the most Mothers registered for the weekend festivities. Mrs. C. C. Wintermute of Portland, president of the Oregon Mothers, will act as toastmistress.

Grunts, Groans To Awaken Late Beauty Nappers

Be not afraid if you are awakened by the issuance of peculiar grunts and groans from the millrace tomorrow morning, for they will only announce the old, old orgy of freshman vs. sophomore in the tug-o'-war.

Following the custom of former years, the annual event will take place at ye old millrace near Villard hall. Ten o'clock has been scheduled as the time, and two squads, frosh and sophomore, composed of 18 members will introduce the free-for-all that always follows the sophomore dunking, as a photographer for Life magazine has field day.

An earlier feature of the morning will be the trek of freshman boys to Skinner's butte for the painting of the "O." They will meet at Villard hall at 8:30, and will be under the supervision of Erling Jacobsen of the Order of the "O."

Hanging around the scene of the "festivities," in case someone goes down and fails to come up, will be Ralph Lafferty with a group of Order of the "O" life-savers.
