NUMBER 123

FBI Agent To Address UO Assembly

Peiper Scheduled For Thursday Talk at Gerlinger

Activities and methods of America's Federal Bureau of Investigation in dealing with espionage in the United States will be brought before the University student body Thursday morning when N. J. L. Peiper, special FBI agent, addresses an 11 o'clock assembly in Gerlinger hall.

The announcement was made yesterday by Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, who will direct plans for the weekly program. Dean Onthank stated that Mr. Pieper will talk on "Crime vs. Americanism."

The speaker has appeared on the Oregon campus several times in past years and in 1939 addressed the Oregon Press Conference. He has also cooperated with the University law school on legal affairs.

At the present time Mr. Pieper is in charge of the San Francisco field division of the FBI. He has previously been agent in charge of the Buffalo, New York, office and for over a year and a half was administrative assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, G-man head.

Oregana Interviews To Be Wednesday

Interviews for prospective 1940-41 Oregana staff members will be conducted at the Oregana office at McArthur court from 3 to 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and from 7 to 10:30 Wednesday night, it was announced yesterday by Wilbur Bishop, editor.

Bishop announces that all positions, from assistant editor down, are open. They will not be filled at this time, but applications will be considered.

Pictures of the Junior Weekend committee will be taken for the Oregana at 4 p.m. Thursday. Camera work on all spring sports and activities to date has been completed.

Bureau Receives Appreciation Note

Appreciation was received yesterday by William O. Hall, acting director of the campus bureau of municipal research, from Charles S. Hyneman, associate editor of the Louisiana Municipal Review, for his permission to print a review on an Oregon bureau report.

The portion reviewed was taken from the University bureau's bulletin 33, printed in August, 1939, and concerned regulation of food handlers.

Oreganas Waiting At McArthur Court

All students who have not yet obtained their Oreganas from the office in McArthur court may do so by calling at Dick Williams' office between 9 and 12, and 1 and 5 today.

Tug-of-War Puts Glen Williams In Infirmary Bed

Glen Williams, freshman class treasurer, may have been on the winning side in the annual frosh-soph tug-of-war, but that didn't lessen the physical and mental discomfort that went with his plight as he lay in the infirmary Saturday morning with 10 stitches in his leg as a result of the encounter.

He was still in the infirmary last night, therefore missing the rest of the Junior Weekend activities.

"All for the honor of the freshman class," was his only comment.

Others who were in the infirmary today were Earl Shackelford, Marjorie Montgomery, Frances Sowell, Patricia Howard, Bob Skelley, Douglas Walwyn, Terry Mullin, John Taylor, and Charles Gorsage.

Two Recitals Set Next Week

Woodwind, Violin, Piano on Music Schedule Soon

Two recitals, both free to the public, are on the musical menu in the University of Oregon music auditorium this week, it is announced by Dean Theodore Kratt.

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock Thelma Schnitzer will be featured in her senior piano recital. A student of George Hopkins, the young pianist will play the first movement from Rubenstein's "Concerto in D Minor" and the complete "Sonata in A Flat, Opus 26," as well as several lighter selections.

As an added attraction on the Tuesday concert, a woodwind quartet will offer "Fugue from the Quartet" by Goepfert, and "The Whirlwind" by Pirani. Members of the quartet are Margery Williams, bassoon; Charlotte Plummer, clarinet; Don Scott, flute, and Ralph McKenzie, oboe.

On Wednesday evening at 8, (Please turn to page six)

Tickets for Girl-Date Hop Now on Sale

Mortar Board Ball Set for Saturday At McArthur Court

A dignified formal setting, with McArthur court transformed into a gold and black ballroom, will set the stage Saturday night for the annual girl-date Mortar Board ball, President Jeanette Hafner said last night.

Tickets for the affair go on sale today in all women's living organizations at $1 for each couple. As is the age-old custom of Mortar board balls, coeds will invite boys, call for them, furnish cigarettes, etc., for the evening, and buy the tickets.

Flowers for the tux lapels of coeds' dates will go on sale by AWS members this week, as an added feature of the "it's the girl who pays" program.

Miss Hafner said last night that most women's living organizations have planned preference dinners preceding the dance. Art Holman's orchestra will play.

Holman's band was recently accorded the title "most popular campus band" in a special survey by Band Box columnist Bill Moxley. The orchestra received 74 per cent of the votes cast in the favorite classification for local musicians.

Shinn Chosen Head Of New Art School Advisory Council

Jess Shinn, sophomore art student from the painting department, was last week chosen to head the newly organized advisory council of the art school.

Assistant manager will be Jerry Tripp, also a sophomore. The council has seven other members, each a representative of one department of the school.

Freshmen will edit the Oregon Daily Emerald, Saturday, May 18.

'High Tor' to Sum Up UO Theater's Year

As English pros end the year by comparing romantic literature with that of the modern period, as Dean Theodore Kratt introduces the contemporary composers into his last few classes and compares them to the romantic writers, so does the University theater sum up its year's activities by presenting "High Tor," a combination of the two ages, to its audience.

Maxwell Anderson, the author of the romantic comedy, which will be given May 22, 23, and 24, in his writings has combined the romanticism with the contemporary works with such success as to collect the Pulitzer prize one year and the Drama Critics Circle's award for two years.

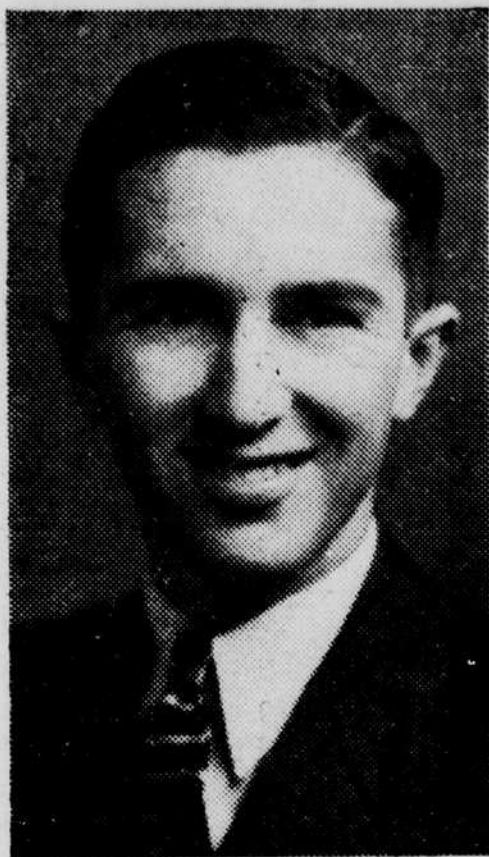

Starting out his career as a playwright, Anderson produced romanticism dramas, "Elizabeth the Queen," and "Mary of Scotland." The influence of the contemporary began to show with the presentation of "Night over Taos" and "Wingless Victory."

The fantasy in the next University theater play production enabled the former newspaper reporter to mix the qualities of the two ages in this tale of land speculators and a plucky lad who refused to submit to the mercenary values of the industrial civilization.

Maxwell Anderson has been the only stage author of the modern day who has been able to use successfully blank verse as a dramatic medium, but he well understands the place of prose, and in "High Tor," the combination of the two arts is predominant.

Emerald Slates Annual Banquet

Staff Selections To Be Made by New Heads May 22

Loyal staff members of the Oregon Daily Emerald will lay aside journalistic cares for an evening, Wednesday, May 22, when the various staffs will meet for their annual Emerald banquet.

George Luoma announced the date of the banquet last night and said it would probably be held at McCrady's cafe.

Appointments to staff positions for the coming school year will be made at the banquet by Lyle Nelson, 1940-41 editor of the Emerald, and Jim Frost, 1940-41 business manager.

The annual banquet will be the anti-climax to a year of publication for the staff members in that one more edition of the Emerald will come out the Friday after the banquet. The publication year will be climaxed by the Emerald picnic May 26.

'Listener's Room' Received by Libe

A book of poetry by Mabel Holmes Parson, professor of English at the Portland center, entitled "Listener's Room" has been received by the University library.

The book was published by Binford and Mort, Portland, and will be placed in the University of Oregon collection in the graduate reading room.

Mothers Set Attendance Record Here

Junior Weekend Big Success, Say Committee Heads

By JIMMIE LEONARD

With another "unrained upon" Junior Weekend a matter of history, committee heads got together to compare notes yesterday and discovered that the annual occasion had attracted more mothers and guests than ever before.

More than 800 mothers registered at Johnson hall, according to Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel. Considering the number that didn't register, it would be a safe estimate to say that 1000 mothers came to Junior Weekend, he stated.

Many Turned Away

All reserved seat tickets for the canoe fete, the climaxing feature of the weekend of festivity, were sold weeks ago. The general admission tickets to be sold at the canoe fete went like hot cakes, and hundreds of disappointed patrons were turned away.

Alpha Phi sorority and Delta Tau Delta walked away with top honors in the float competition, as their "Emperor's Waltz" number was judged the best of the lot. Second place was given to the "Vienna Blood" entry of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Delta Upsilon fraternity.

From Huge Success

The Junior Prom was a big success, both financially and socially, members of the dance committee declared, within the neighborhood of 800 couples attending.

To Queen Betty Buchanan and her court of Princesses Laura Jean Maurice, Janet Foster, Eleanor Collier, and Suzanne Cunningham fell the honor of ruling over Oregon's greatest Junior Weekend. General Chairman Lloyd Sullivan and John Cavanaugh, promotion chairman, voiced their appreciation and thanks to all those who helped with the numerous duties of the weekend, and expressed hopes that future weekends would be even more successful.

And again the sophomores lost out in the tug of war.

Kappas Awarded Chi Omega GPA Cup At Junior Prom

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority was this year's winner of the Chi Omega scholarship cup which is given every year by that organization.

Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel administration, presented the award at the Junior Prom last Friday.

The Frosh Speak

The upperclassmen tell us We can buy our moleskins now. We appreciate the honor. 'Tis swell, we will allow.

We'd like to buy our moleskins But we can't. The deal's no go, Cause after Junior Weekend— Well, we just ain't got the dough. —J.W.S.
