

Hoyt Will Speak On Job Getting

Theta Sigma Phi To Hear Publisher At Forum Thursday

With Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the "Oregonian," as leader, many questions pertinent to job hunting will be discussed at the Theta Sigma Phi Job Forum for young women in journalism Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in Alumni room in Gerlinger hall.

Some of the points to be discussed are:

What do publishers want to know about prospective members of their staff? What should one say in a letter of application and what is the best way to say it? What are the rules of etiquette when one is being interviewed for a job?

This year's job forum is the second of its kind held by the women's journalism honorary, the first being held last year with the heads of the Eugene papers as leaders.

The major portion of the time will be devoted to criticism of letters of application written by those attending the meeting, Hoyt making the criticisms. Comedy as well as information will be furnished by two skits, a good

Emerald Business Manager Elected ADS President

George Luoma, winner of the W. F. G. Thacher advertising scholarship this year and for the past three terms business manager of the Emerald, received a new honor yesterday when he was elected president of Alpha Delta Sigma, men's national advertising honorary.

Other officers elected include Bob Rogers, vice-president; Jack Saltzman, secretary; and Fred May, treasurer. Five new pledges were formally initiated as part of the program. They were Jay Stott, Fred Welty, Roy Metzler, Bob Corby, and Bob Lovell.

The meeting was followed by a banquet at the Side. Rogers reported on a recent trip to a national ADS convention and announced that the next year conclave would be on the University of Oregon campus.

and bad interview with the publisher. The interviews will be given by two of the honorary's pledges, Helen Angell and Jean Spearow.

Those wishing to submit letters of application for criticism should give them to Doris Murphy, president of the group, by Thursday morning. "All women in the school of journalism are urged to take advantage of this forum with Mr. Hoyt," she said.

Kwama Pledges To Be Initiated

Ceremony Set for Sunday Morning; Nineteen Chosen

New Kwama pledges who were tapped at the Mortar Board ball Saturday evening, will be formally initiated into the sophomore girls service honorary at 9:30 Sunday morning at the Tri-Delt house, President Helen Angell announced.

The nineteen freshmen women were selected for their "outstanding activities on the campus, high scholastic standing, and democratic spirit."

It will be the duty of the new white-clad members to greet the freshman girls next fall and orient them into campus life.

Summer Program, Courses of French Camp Announced

A list of the complete summer staff of Le Camp Francais, the French camp on Shawnigan lake in British Columbia, has been received by Christian Freer graduate assistant.

An afternoon program of fencing, archery, badminton, croquet, ping pong, volley ball, swimming, tennis, canoeing, boating, bicycling, hiking, golf, horseback riding, and fishing have been outlined for the campers.

Optional courses will be held for an hour each five days a week on French conversation, style, literature, grammar, social customs, and people. French will be spoken exclusively at the camp for the entire season from July 5 to 19.

Additional information may be obtained from Mr. Freer.
