Many Students Get Summer Jobs

Portland Dads, Eugene Union Aid Needy Webfoots

Summer employment for Oregon students has been good throughout the state with a record number of Webfoots getting jobs for the vacation months, Janet Smith, employment secretary, reported today.

Various organizations of dads, alumni groups and business men have been active in securing work for University students. Particularly active have been the Portland and Eugene dads who have placed almost all applicants, she said.

In Eugene union officials have come to the aid of needy students desiring summer employment. Through their business manager, Mr. Ray A. McInnis, the Eugene local of the Construction and Building Laborers' union offered to place 15 students in summer positions along with their men. These students have not as yet gone out, but will probably be placed on the Cottage Grove dam project, McInnis said this week.

Students are working in many different positions, ranging all the way from copy boys on newspapers to jobs in Oregon's many canneries. A large number are working in tourist resorts in Oregon, Washington and California, Miss Smith revealed.

College Costs Given in Chart Prepared for UO

"How much will it cost me to get through college?" and "How much can I earn there?" are perhaps the two most important questions in the minds of many students. To help answer these questions University officials have made the following chart of costs in the various living organizations.

It should be remembered, however, that few of these costs are absolute and that for the most part they vary with individual students. Many students have gone through a year on much less than listed while some students spend more than shown.

In order to help students obtain employment which will help them bear the cost of a college education, the University has employed a full-time secretary, Miss Janet Smith. All inquiries concerning student employment should be addressed directly to her, care of the University, Eugene.
