Quite a fuss was raised last week when it was discovered that George "PeeWee" Bujon, then third-string quarterback on the University of Oregon football squad had suddenly left Tex Oliver and gone off to Washington to play football for a semi-pro outfit for $7.50 a week as reward.

For several days sports writers wrote bitter stories telling of the "gridiron scavengers" who were "threatening the ranks of the Pacific northwest college, preying on college boys" with the offer of jobs and "expenses" for playing Sunday ball.

But "Pee Wee" read the accounts of his kidnaping in the Seattle papers and, realizing that his decision had caused much excitement and hard feelings, he returned to the Oregon campus last Friday to explain his actions to Oliver and straighten out the story that made him look like a "poor sport"—(fans believed he had quit because he was only on the third string).

Low in Money

It seems that Bujon comes from a not-too-prosperous family back in Illinois and as a freshman at Oregon last year was given the usual athletic scholarship and in addition he worked outside for extra money. He was entirely self-supporting and had no one dependent upon his earnings. This year Pee Wee came back to school and his athletic scholarship was continued but he discovered that he no longer had the downtown job. His family circumstances had changed considerably since last spring and Father Bujon, who is an old man, had lost his job, placing the family in a precarious position.

Pee Wee felt that he should take a little of the burden off his brother's shoulders and give financial aid to the family, but it was impossible to do that and go to school also. Then the Washington semi-pro offer came and he saw a chance to be of some assistance to his family. So without telling anyone, he pulled out for Washington and the $7.50 per day job.

Respects Tex

There were no hard feelings on his part toward Tex Oliver or the Oregon squad. He left abruptly, without consulting with Oliver because, to use his own words, "Tex is a smart man and a brilliant talker, and I knew that I wouldn't have a chance if I tried to tell him about my situation. I went away and had my arguments all figured out, and then came back to face him."

Forty-Nine Frosh 'Hopefuls' Report to Coach Warren

Men of '44 Show Football Wares

Newquist, Boe Head Lengthy List of Prep Big Names; Many Stars Turn Out for Fullback Position

By LEN BALLIF

The men of '44 met en masse yesterday on the frosh field under the experienced eye of Coach John Warren for the first time and began training for a season of freshman football that may someday land them berths on the Oregon lineup.

Forty-nine tinpant candidates turned out for the first practice, most of them backfield men, and Warren will soon have to transfer some of the heavier backs up to line positions to fill the many gaps there.

Oregon Booked For Third Season At Madison Square

Twenty-six candidates reported to varsity basketball Coach Howard Hobson yesterday for their initial instructions of the season. Hobson announced that regular daily practice will start on October 28.

Discussing the early date—December 6—set for the eastern trip, Coach Hobson asked the taller boys to report to Bill Hayward, track coach, for practice on starts and sprinting and stated that all the men should work to improve their endurance and wind. He discouraged practice on the court itself with the exception of a little goal shooting.

"We want you to learn the kind of fundamentals we teach; we don't want you to scrimmage unless you know our methods—not the bad habits you might pick up by yourselves," he stressed.

Except for the New York teams which are "at home" there, Oregon is the only team to be picked for three successive opening night cards in Madison Square Garden. Hobson said that this year's material was as good as that in previous years and could become championship contenders themselves with the right spirit.

Outlining the eastern trip, he named Oklahoma, Duquesne, Bradley Tech, and possibly Canisius at Buffalo as the teams definitely on the schedule. The athletic department, he went on, is trying to arrange for at least two more contests on the road. Also slated for the pre-conference period is a clash with Utah on the Webfoot court after the trip. Present plans call for the squad to leave Eugene on December 6 and return on Christmas day.

Those reporting included the following: Ralph Fuhrman, Quentin Sidesinger, Vic Townsend, Wally Reynolds, Archie Marshik, Paul Jackson, John Bubalo, Hank Burns, Warren Taylor, Hank Anderson, Bud Walker, Joe Hollowell, Clifford Anet, Leonard Gard, Don Kirsch, Earl Sandness, Evert McNeely, Cecil Warner, Don Beckham, Toivo Pippo, Bill Borcher, Wally Borrevik, Lowell Dick, and George Andrews.

Primed for Stanford

Ray Segale, junior guard, appears set for the revised Stanford Indian attack. Segale, a starter in Friday night's game with the Marines, is teamed with Jim Stuart and Dick Horne on the strong left side of Oregon's line. Tex Oliver's Ducks meet Stanford Saturday in Palo Alto.

Oliver Pulls Curtain Over Grid Practice

By JOHNNY KAHANANUI

Enthusiasts who hiked out Hayward stadium way for a peek at Webfoot gridders in practice maneuvers got no more than a casual glimpse of Jim Stuart, Buck Berry, Chet Haiski, and company prancing about on the turf, as Coach Tex Oliver pulled the "shades" while drilling his men for the Stanford clash Saturday coming.

Oregon backers well remember last year's Webfoot-Indian battle, for when the sawdust and pompons were raked off and the players untangled in Multnomah stadium, the Ducks were sporting a 10-0 win. That this year's clash would be a repetition is hoped for by Webfoot enthusiasts but not at all taken for granted.

Stanford Shows Stanford boomed into prominence guard posts are Russell Anderson, North Bend; Fred Beaver, San Francisco; Jeff Hodges, Eugene; Clayton Pond, Newport; Henry Steers, The Dalles; and Vernon Wadsworth from Salem.

Only two center candidates on the roster—Andy Jones from Grant high school in Portland, and the other half of the Steers' twin, Howard.

Tennis and Golf First on Campus Sports Calendar

Intramural sports for fall term get under way Wednesday, October 2, the physical education department announced Monday. Tennis and golf matches are slated to commence at that time, while touch football will follow shortly. Volleyball "A" and "B", the other fall sports, are booked for airing later in the term.

Five men participate in the tennis playoffs—one singles and two doubles teams representing each living organization. Golf, as well as tennis, will be on the elimination team basis.

Touch football and both divisions of volleyball will be on the round-robin plan. There are six men to each volleyball team, while touch football will be of the seven-man variety.

Managers Meeting

A meeting of all intramural managers is to be held October 1 (today) at 5 p.m. in the physical education building.

Following are sports with the number of points given for team entry and the total winner's points:

	EP*	TWP*
Tennis	35	100
Touch Football	50	150
Golf	25	75
Volleyball "A"	50	150
Volleyball "B"	25	75

(*EP—entry points, TWP—total winner's points.)

The deadline for intramural entrance slips is set for today at 5 o'clock. All men's living organizations who neglect to turn in their entrance slips will be ineligible to compete in this year's intramural sports activities.

Skiers Must Pick Leader

Oregon ski enthusiasts who desire to compete for the University this year will have to pick a coach from among their senior members, it was announced yesterday by Anse Cornell, Oregon's graduate manager of athletics.

Rollie Dickie, coach of last year's team, is not on the campus this year and the $100 budget allotted the slats-wearers will not cover the cost of hiring an outside coach. According to Cornell, a senior chosen by the skiers should report to the athletic manager's office in McArthur court to obtain information relative to finances.

Last year's squad took daily workouts in the gymnasium, supplemented by trips to Mt. Hood, Hand Lake, and the Sisters. Road trips included jaunts to Mt. Rainier, Yosemite, and Reno.
