Radio Program Lacks Pep Song

Copyright Difficulty Cancels Broadcast Of 'Mighty Oregon'

The long-awaited permission to use "Mighty Oregon" and other University songs on the radio came too late to be of use on the program advertising Homecoming.

Pat Erickson, radio committee chairman, recently wrote a letter to Melrose Brothers, a Chicago music house, and holder of copyrights to "Mighty Oregon," asking permission to use the song on the Homecoming broadcast. The answer, a scribbled, "Of course," on the bottom of Miss Erickson's letter, arrived after the program had been made out.

Other eastern music concerns sent similar answers in regard to their copyrights of various Oregon songs, but a bit tardy to be of use.

Prior to these events, the radio committee had a half-hour program scheduled over KORE, Wednesday night at 8:15, until the station found it impossible to release the time.

Station KOAC agreed to give 15 minutes to the committee Thursday, so the entire program was switched and presented at that time.
