

Duck Tracks

About this time of the year all-coast selections become as prevalent as fallen autumn leaves, so it seems logical that mine should be added to the gathering pile.

However, to be chosen on my all-coast team will mean something. I am giving an award to each of the players who are named to it. In other words, each of the football players who are named in this column to my team will receive more than just possible glory to be derived from the selection.

This award is in the form of a free admission to the dunking of four Oregon gridders next Monday. I feel that if several all-coasters are on hand, I will be in a more favorable position when it comes to tossing Dick Ashcom, Marsh Stenstrom, Elliott Wilson, and Jim Harris in the race. They lost to Cal, so they pay the penalty.

But to get on to the selections, the team has four good punters, two exceptional place-kickers, and three outstanding passers. The backfield has no blocking back, but if Stanford's T formation were used this would not be necessary.

Linemen

Ends—Jay MacDowell of Washington and Johnny Leovich of Oregon State. These two are rated the best defensive ends on the coast and both are good pass-snaggers.

Second choices: Dick Horne of Oregon and Al Krueger of USC.

Tackles—Jim Stuart of Oregon and Vic Sears of Oregon State. They are clearly the standouts in the line. Bob de Lauer of USC and Bob Reinhard of California are second choices.

Guards—Ray Frankowski of Washington and Leonard Younce of Oregon State. Younce is our place-kicker de-luxe. Both are fast, aggressive, and good defensive men. We place Ben Sohn of USC and Chuck Taylor of Stanford on the second team.

Center—Rudy Mucha of Washington. He'll be on all-American teams, so he must be good enough for our all-coast selection. Ed Dempsey of USC comes next.

Backfield

Quarterback—Frankie Albert of Stanford. He's our best punter and a good passer. When it comes to carrying the ball, he's there, too. He calls the plays and is replaced by Oregon's Chet Hlaski.

All over but the playoffs. That is the situation on intramural volleyball which concluded league play today. Tomorrow the first playoff games will start with four squads toeing the mark for the final sprint.

The list of finalists in their conferences include the following "A" league winners: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Theta Chi, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Sigma Kappa, and Alpha Tau Omega.

"B" league champions, two of whom were crowned just yesterday, are: Alpha Tau Omega, Delta Upsilon, Theta Chi, Phi Delta Theta, Gamma Hall, Zeta Hall, and Omega Hall.

Playoff Schedules
First round eliminations will see Sigma Alpha Epsilon meeting with Kappa Sigma on court 38 and Theta Chi clashing with Phi Sigma Kappa on floor 43. Both tussles are of the "A" league variety and come at 4 o'clock.

Delta Upsilon's "B" outfit draws the ATOs at 4:45 on court 38, while Gamma Hall and Omega Hall tangle on floor 43 at the same time.

Monday's final "B" league skirmishes saw Gamma, last year's champions, trip up Canard club, 15-6, 15-10. Sigma Alpha Mu bounced Chi Psi, 14-13, 13-15, 16-14. Sigma Chi dropped Phi Kappa Psi, 15-7, 15-13, while Sigma Phi Epsilon bested Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 11-15, 15-14, 15-9.

The other two contests went in favor of Omega Hall over Sherry Ross, 15-12, 2-15, 15-9, and Zeta Hall by forfeit over the Terriers.

ington State. Sewell is rated as the best passer in the nation and is one of the leading ground-gainers on the coast. He's good as a punter and is our No. 1 pick for the East-West game for New Years 1942. Dean McAdams of Washington is the second choice.

Right Half—Jim Kisselburgh of Oregon State. Kisselburgh is the main defensive factor in the mythical backfield. He could have been placed at fullback, but he passes, punts, and runs well, besides being a blocker, so here he is. Buck Berry of Oregon draws the second nod.

Reporter Booted From Webfoot Grid Practice

Passing Offense Noted; Coverage Tip Offered

By JOHNNY KAHANANUI
Any resemblance of this yarn to a news story is purely coincidental. A football reporter covers his beat. . . . Five-fifteen p.m., he enters Hayward field. Five-eighteen p.m., he leaves Hayward field. . . . finis!

Coach Gerald "Tex" Oliver had his Oregon football team grunting through practice for Oregon State this coming Saturday, but that was no concern of ours. So we were politely told by three or four managers who frantically prodded us into making a graceful exit when we trotted out to the field. It seemed they would be "berled in er!" should anything like a newspaperman be smelled around the place.

Passes Flitter
Nevertheless, before we left we managed to sneak a vague glimpse of someone passing the ball here, there, and everywhere to eligible receivers, the opposition, and Yehudi. . . . that is, if he wasn't smothered by the defensive ends in the meantime. It was a wee bit on the dark side—visibility next to zero—and our position way away from the merry jumble of uniforms didn't help matters any.

Via the grapevine we hear that General Oliver and his staff had previously broadcast an SOS for placekickers, some guy who can boot the ball through the posts for that vital point-after-touchdown. And it will be vital in Saturday's game (we're assuming the Webfoots will score), for Oregon State doesn't ordinarily miss when they get the chance.

Sure-Fire Way
Oh yes, some resourceful fellow just gave me a tip on a cinch way to beat these closed practices. He's going to lend me his track suit for a disguise, so I can go prancing about the cinderpath berdering the football field and get a good look while apparently minding my own business. . . . that is, unless something like tobacco heat doesn't floor me after the first 50 yards.

Stanford. He's rated second behind John Kimbrough of Texas A and M as a pro prospect by the pros, and he's terrific. Enough said. John Stackpool of Washington is second choice behind Standlee on our team.

Anyone of the first eleven would hardly disgrace any of the first, second, or third AP or UP all-American teams.

Latest news—Gale Emmons, brother of Oregon's Frank who played in the East-West game, is dropping out of school. He started one of the frosh games at fullback, and it is feared that his loss may be felt.

Andrew G. Truxal, national president of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and dean of men at Dartmouth university, visited the University of Oregon campus recently on a tour of the West.

Hobson Names Eight For East Hoop Trip

By CHUCK BOICE
Eight men were named Tuesday by varsity basketball Coach Howard Hobson as probable members of Oregon's eastern barnstorming troupe.

Hobson named Hank Anderson, Red McNeely and Warren Taylor, forwards; Archie Marshik and Wally Borrevik, centers, and Paul Jackson, Vic Townsend and Porky Andrews, guards, to the tentative squad.

In addition to the three seniors, three juniors, and two sophomores listed, Hobson indicated that one or two more players might be added before the team leaves on its 7500-mile, three-week trip on December 5.

Oklahoma First
The Webfoot's first encounter on their trip will pit them against the strong University of Oklahoma quintet on December 9 at Norman. Two nights later the Ducks will help dedicate Buffalo's new million-dollar Memorial auditorium when they play Canisius, and then on December 14 Oregon will appear in Madison Square Garden's opening night for the third consecutive year.

Moving westward the team will meet Temple at Philadelphia, University of Baltimore at Baltimore, Duquesne at Pittsburgh, and Bradley Tech at Peoria for a total of seven eastern games.

The team returns to the coast December 24, playing half a dozen more games, including one with the University of Utah, January 2, at Eugene before the conference season opens.

Signal Oil Team To Face Oregon In Hoop Opener

Scheduled Game With Dick's Team Postponed

The University of Oregon's inaugural 1940-41 basketball appearance opens Friday night in the Igloo with the veteran Signal Oil team furnishing the opposition.

Coach Hobby Hobson decided to make the tough Signal Oil game the opener when John Dick's alumni team masked for a reprieve from their scheduled game with the varsity last Monday. They were not yet in good enough condition for a full length tussle.

First Competition
The game, the first of two listed for the Ducks before they leave for the East on December 5, will provide the Webfoots with plenty in the way of big-time competition. Always one of the top independent teams in the state, Signal Oil again this year boasts many former college stars in their lineup.

Leading the Oilers again will be Chuck Patterson, smooth-working Negro center and former University of Oregon star, who is generally considered to be one of the top players in any coast league. Frank Mandie and Tony Romano, from last year's champion Oregon State team, are expected to start at the forwards. Two other former Beavers, Art Meryman and Roy Pflugard, round out the starting quintet.

Oilers' Reserves
The Oilers also have plenty of reserve strength with "Wild Bill"

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL
Freshman basketball will start Monday. All freshmen interested are asked to report to Coach John Warren, Monday afternoon.

O'Donnell and Eddie Curran, of University of Portland; Alvin Stitt, Eastern Oregon College of Education, and Bus Rayley, Jim Garber, and Jim Weichmann, outstanding independent players, on the squad. Contrary to the case in many previous Webfoot-independent games, the younger collegians are not expected to have everything their own way in fast break tactics. This very strong reserve power of the Oilers and the fact that league play started several weeks ago in Portland is the reason.

WAA NOTICE
All WAA house representatives please place petitions for intramural basketball manager, for winter term, with Hazel Oldfield by December 9. The manager will be chosen by rules and standards set up by the WAA council.

The game, the first of two listed for the Ducks before they leave for the East on December 5, will provide the Webfoots with plenty in the way of big-time competition. Always one of the top independent
