

Mrs. Van Loan Tells AWS Members of Careers.

Students Told Of Qualities Women Need

Speaker Points Out Value of Ability, Interest, Aptitude

Any woman who has the ability, interest, and aptitude can just about take up any career she chooses, said Mrs. Wendell Van Loan, assistant director of the Eugene vocational school who spoke at the AWS assembly Thursday.

Introduced by Betty Buchanan, president of AWS, the speaker immediately began to enumerate the steps that girls should take who are seeking careers. She urged the girls to first take mental and physical stock of themselves, to look within and see what their potentialities were, to see whether they were interested in other people's problems.

Choosing Careers

She said that above all a woman should choose a career in which she will be happy.

"If you're to serve other people well, you must take stock of yourself, and serve yourself too," she emphasized.

There are so many occupations for women today that it is not necessary for them to choose something for which they are not physically able, Mrs. Van Loan declared.

She mentioned architecture and medicine as fields which hold promise for women. "The more the handicaps of a certain field for women, the better her career," the vocational expert said.

'Men's Work'

Fields which are considered men's fields are women's too, she said. Mrs. Van Loan suggested that those who were interested read "Tools of Tomorrow," a new book which tells about inventions, architecture, and the opportunities for women in that occupation.

"If we go into war," she declared, "of course women will have to go into the fields where they are needed. And if a war comes, I'm sure we'll do more than our part as American women always have done."

"After you've chosen your career," said the speaker, "you must think of something else; women have a double career." Home-making is a big responsibility, she stressed. "The women in the home make the decisions in every field, and it is they who form men's opinions on the intelligence of women."

Suggested Courses

"I think that every girl should take courses in home-making from the time she enters high school, and then take at least two years of it in college," said Mrs. Van Loan. "The greater part of wisdom is to be prepared."

After Mrs. Van Loan's speech, the Mortar Board plaque was presented to the three sophomores who had the highest scholarship last year. They were: Leona La Duks, Marjorie Sawyer, and Louise Herling.

The Alpha Chi Omega trio sang at the assembly and Lillian Davis presented the sleep-walking scene from Macbeth.

High School Group Meets at University, Talks Scholarship

Members of the state high school relations committee met in the registrar's office in Johnson hall yesterday to discuss scholarship application procedures to be followed among Oregon high schools in this state.

Those present included representatives from three schools in the state system of higher education, and of the high school association in this state.

E. B. Lemon, chairman, Oregon State college registrar; E. M. Pallett, registrar at the University; J. L. Breckenridge, superintendent of city schools, Hood River; L. B. Mayfield, principal at Medford; Dr. C. A. Howard, president of the Oregon College of Education at Monmouth; Burton W. Dunn, superintendent of schools in Coquille; Martin J. Elle, Marshfield principal, and Don Emerson, from the state superintendent's office in Salem, were at the meeting.

Hoyman Says Ducks

(Continued from page one) However, several new stars shine brightly on Oregon's watery horizon. "Cub" Callis, transfer from Fullerton jaycee, is an excellent backstroke and freestyle varsity prospect according to Hoyman. Stu Randall, who came to Oregon in '39 from Annapolis and thus was ineligible last year, will swim with Jim Marney in the 50 and 100 yard free style event.

Another group of dark horses whose dark coloring may wash off in the hot water of competition, includes Ralph Davis, Bill Spitz, Robert Collinson, Dick Allen, Tom Corbett, and Harold Chung-Hoon.

Dallas, Wetmore Standout The team's co-captains, Sherm Wetmore and Jack Dallas, will bear the brunt of the team's burden with their consistently sparkling performances. Al Sandner and Dallas will dive for the Ducks; Wetmore's events are the backstroke, free style, and breast stroke. Jim Marney and Jerry Huestis will also compete in the free style with Huestis flipping a backstroke fin for the Oregon team.

This year Washington lost no key men and got several good freshmen. Oregon lost the championship last year by one point. Fifteen determined Duckmen are dedicating many a strenuous, watery afternoon to the proposition that this win shall not be duplicated this year.

Schwering, dean of women, phone extension 303-304, and from members of Bundles for Britain.

Phi Theta Upsilon Entertains Women

An old-fashioned Christmas party was Phi Theta Upsilon's salute to the Yuletide season Tuesday night, when members of the junior women's honorary entertained independent University women living "off campus" at the Gamma Phi Beta house.

A quiz contest, Christmas caroling, a reading by Betty Workman and piano selections by Gerry Walker provided the evening's entertainment. Elizabeth Steed, Phi Theta prexy, was in charge of the affair. Assisting her were Janet Morris and Virginia Tyrrell.

Rally Send-off Set

(Continued from page three) Madison Square garden. It's Long Island University vs. Oregon in the Garden, a tilt that should revive memories of last year's thrilling encounter, when LIU forged ahead in an overtime period to squeak out a 55 to 56 win over the invaders from Eugene.

Temple university and the Webfoots clash in Philadelphia's Convention hall on December 17. Temple 36, Oregon 46 was last year's count. The following night Oregon runs up against Duquesne university in Pittsburgh, and the night after will see the Ducks opposing the University of Baltimore in Baltimore, Maryland.

With two days off for a quick hop west to Peoria, Illinois, Oregon plays Bradley Tech in the armory there, the windup game of the tour series.

Third Duck Trek

Third consecutive transcontinental jaunt made by an Oregon hoop team, this year's will be stripped of some of the whirlwind of ballyhoo trailing and stirring up ahead of last year's national champions as they hauled across the country. Two pre-season setbacks mar the Webfoots' slate, a 41 to 45 thumping by a Signal Oil quintet, and a 40 to 47 dunking at the hands of Rubenstein's Oregonians.

However, time, plus experience gained on this journey will probably enable Hobson to mold a "chassis" capable of standing the gaff, bolt on an "engine" with correct firing power, and turn out a product able to hold its own when Pacific coast competition rolls around in January.

Dr. Jewell to Speak

Dr. J. R. Jewell, dean of the school of education, left yesterday for Lebanon where he will speak at a mass meeting of the people. The meeting is sponsored by the Lions' club to create interest in Lebanon's new school project.

Dean Jewell's speech will have as its theme, "Education Then and Now." It will consist of a discussion on the content and curriculum which will be offered to students in the new school.

The theme of the convention, "Developing Catholic Leaders from the Laity," is to be discussed by prominent clergy and students in the Northwest. The national chaplain from Cornell university will also address the convention.

Sidelight of the convention is the problem confronting Bill Loud, junior in business administration from Eugene, who is general chairman for the convention. The delegates from the University of British Columbia are unable to bring expense money out of the country due to war time restrictions.
