

Graduate Student Dies in California

Edwood Swane, 39, graduate in education, died December 22 at his home in Campbell, California, shortly after leaving the University for the holidays.

Friends revealed that Swane contracted flu, and that going home on the train, it developed into pneumonia. This, combined with heart disease, caused his death, they said.

Swane, who lived at 754 E. 11th street in Eugene, was to have become eligible for his master's degree in March. At the University he was doing practice teaching under Joseph Holaday, instructor in education.

Swane was a graduate of Campbell Union high school and San Jose State college, both in California. Active in Sea Scout work and a member of the United States Naval Reserve, he was affiliated with the University of Washington chapter of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Pot and Quill Extend Contest Closing Date

Pot and Quill society is extending its annual creative writing contest closing dates to January 20, Jane Dachtelberg, president of the women's writing honorary on the campus, announced yesterday.

All entries must be mailed to Mrs. Eric W. Allen, 2239 Birch Lane, Eugene, by that time, she says.

Any undergraduate girl is eligible to enter the contest. Top award will be a $5 prize and entries may be anything from poems to a play, Miss Dachtelberg states. Those entries which show that the writer has promise will qualify the entrant to membership in the all-women's University writing honorary.

Noble Reads Papers

Dr. H. J. Noble, associate professor of history, attended the annual meeting of the American Political Science association in Chicago and also the meeting of the American Historical association in New York. He read papers at both meetings.

THEY WANT A BETTER PAPER

Aiming to improve their paper, these members of the Emerald editorial board have called a meeting of the news staff after a luncheon Monday noon. In the picture are Pat Erickson, women's editor; Helen Angell, associate editor; Jimmie Leonard, managing editor; Lyle Nelson, editor; Roy Vernstrom, editorial consultant; Harold Olney, associate editor; and Kent Stitzer, news editor.

PE Sponsors Radio Series Over KOAC

The first in a series of radio programs, sponsored by the University physical education department, will be heard on the air Monday evening at 8:45 p.m. over station KOAC Corvallis, according to Miss Josephine Persicano, instructor in the department.

The "Physical Education Forum" will be presented on succeeding Monday nights until March 3 and will be presented by physical education staff members. The broadcasts will stress four definite phases in its course including physical education, recreation, safety, and health education.

R. W. Leighton, dean of the department, will be the first speaker on the new radio feature, speaking on "Functions and Purposes of the School of Physical Education."

The Forum will be given as a quiz type program with P. R. Washke, professor of physical education, as the interviewer throughout the series.

Weekly Publication Tells of Defense Work

"Defense," a weekly giving the latest information on the defense program in the United States, is a new publication in the library periodical department, announced Willis Warren, periodical librarian and executive assistant. It is published by the advisory committee to the council of national defense.

The department this week resumed its subscription to the weekly indexes of Public Affairs information service, listing books, pamphlets, and magazine articles about current political, economic, and social affairs. The weekly indexes should be of special value to senior journalism students in editing who are writing theses. The library has been receiving the cumulative indexes continually, but the weekly information is advantageous in the rapidly changing world situation, Mr. Warren stated.

New Speech Course To Study Pathology

Development of speech from infancy to adulthood will be studied by students enrolled in the University speech division's new course in speech pathology.

Mr. Jack L. Bangs, instructor of speech, will handle arrangements for this two-hour course, offered for the first time this term. It is a two-hour credit class and will carry on through spring term.

Class meeting hours will be arranged by enrollees. Students interested in speech pathology should contact Mr. Bangs at the speech division as soon as possible so that proper registration can be completed and meetings arranged.

Diagram Ties Local With National News

A special diagram, illustrating the connection between the University geology and geography departments and the national defense program has been drawn up by Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the geology and geography departments. The diagram is being used for illustrative purposes in the general geology classes.

As some of the correlations between the two points Dr. Smith has included the teaching of courses on the geography of South America, Europe, and the Pacific states; membership in local committees on flood control, land utilization, and national defense; collaboration with state departments of geology and mineral interests; service of mineral and rock determination and lectures given by faculty of the department to granges, service clubs, forums and schools on minerals.

New Pledge Names Added to Current Fraternity Rosters

Chester Root and Donald Neal Byars became the first men students on the campus to be pledged this term when they signed up in the dean of men's office yesterday.

Root, pledged by Pi Kappa Alpha, hails from San Francisco. Byars, who comes from Portland, was pledged by Sigma Nu.

Seven students pledged at the close of fall term were R. Weston Mattice, Portland, Sigma Chi; Guldbrand J. Kramer, Eureka, Kappa Sigma; Merritt Kufferman, Los Angeles, Delta Upsilon; George Bernard Logan, Medford, Phi Sigma Kappa; Bob Oliver, Portland, Alpha Tau Omega; Robert H. Laffy, Salem, and L. A. Beckstrom, Jr., Arcadia, California, both Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Education Honorary Will Meet Tuesday

Pi Lambda Theta, education honorary for women, will hold a business meeting Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. at 334 East Fifteenth. Topic will be a discussion of whether education should provide all women with homemaking arts as essential equipment for complete living.

Hostesses will be Marie Tinker, Hazel Stevenson, and Dr. Elizabeth Montgomery.

Ad Staff Announces Gains in Local Copy Over Last Fall Term

The business office of the Oregon Daily Emerald had an increase of 274 column inches in local advertising lineage, over fall term last year, according to Jim Frost, business manager.

Fall term reached a total of 7270.5 column inches from Eugene merchants with the last term's staff chalking up 7554.5 inches sold to local stores.

Business Manager Frost also reported that mailed subscriptions for the current year had exceeded the budget $700 by over $100.

Oregon Economists Attend Convention

Pacific Coast Economics association held its nineteenth annual conference at Stanford university December 27 and 28.

Members of the Oregon faculty who attended the conference were Dean J. H. Gilbert of the college of social science who was on the resolutions committee; Beatrice Aitchison, instructor of economics, who presented a paper on "Elasticity of Demand for Rail Passenger Travel"; Calvin Crumbaker, professor of economics, who was editor of the conference; and Alfred L. Lomax, professor of business administration, who read a paper on "Assumptions Concerning U. S. Foreign Trade, Present and Future."

Lutherans to Meet

Lutheran students on the campus will hold their first regular meeting of the term Sunday at 6 p.m. in the YWCA bungalow. Dorothy Gustafson will be in charge of the program, and will also plan an informal get-together and party afterwards.

Emerald Manager Appoints Thayer, Roper to Positions

Appointment of two freshmen as day managers on the Emerald business staff was announced last night by Jim Frost, business manager. The promotions are quite a distinction as it is unusual for first-year students to get these posts, he revealed.

Jim Thayer, freshman in journalism from Carlton, will be Wednesday advertising manager and will have a staff of about seven people. Fall term he worked on the Tuesday staff, Frost stated.

Warren Roper, freshman in business administration from Portland, was advanced from the Friday advertising staff to Saturday advertising manager.

Anita Backberg, junior in AAA, was appointed classified advertising manager Monday to succeed Alvera Maeder, who was forced to leave school due to ill health.

Miss Backberg has served five terms on the local advertising staff, doing both selling and layout work.

Branton Will Speak

The first meeting of the Canterbury club, young peoples organization of the Episcopal church, will be held Sunday, January 5.

Rev. J. R. Branton will be guest speaker of the meeting which will begin at 5 o'clock.
