

RE-COVERED . . .

Next Old Oregon To Feature Moll

Following Issues To Picture Student Writer on Cover

Old Oregon, alumni magazine edited by Roy Vernstrom, will sport a new type of cover this month.

A large picture of Professor Ernest G. Moll, writer of the prize-winning book, "Cut From Mulga," will be featured on the sepia brown cover, and up in the corner will be a picture of Ray Schrick, who wrote the leading student article in the book.

Godfrey Writes The article to accompany professor Moll's picture will be "Honors from 'Down Under,'" by George Godfrey, head of the University news bureau.

Other articles will include "Employment Assurance," by Miss Janet Smith, secretary of employment. In it she discusses the opportunities for graduates of getting jobs.

The usual news of past classes will be written by Rosalind Grey.

Students Listed

There will also be a list of the students whose parents attended the University along with the parents' names and the years they attended.

Roy Vernstrom, editor, stated that from now on the picture of the student who contributes an article will be featured up in the corner of the magazine cover along with the main feature.

No Visitors Still Infirmery Rule As Colds Reign

Communique No. 1 from the campus infirmery states: Absolutely nothing. Things have still been shut up over at the pill palace, and no one is allowed to do any gadding about. Consequently about the only news that we can state is that the infirmery is getting to the capacity point rapidly—everyone seems to be coming down with the January clearance sale on colds.

A total of 22 are now listed on the roster: They include: Don Selby, Doris Johnson, Eugene Bennett, Billie Wade, Ruth Merritt, Thema Nelson, Ellie Engdahl, Annette Turn, Marty Glover, Mary Beltz, Miss Trimm, ald Bowerly, Verne Sellin, Al Goodwin, Tel Philip, Bob Roberts, Harry Bergholdt, Bob Lovell, Ernie Wilson, Ed Leonard, and John O'Brien.

Andrew Fish Greet Phi Bete Members

Oregon Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa held its winter initiation in the Palm room of the Osburn hotel Thursday evening.

Andrew Fish, president of the chapter, welcomed the initiates. Expressing the gratitude and humility of the senior six at being elected to membership in the oldest Greek letter fraternity in the country was Perry John Powers.

Other initiates were Aida Brun, Ray S. Hewitt, Florence Alice Kinney, Benson Mates, and Nanette Schmuiki.

Professor Harvey Townsend of the department of philosophy gave the Phi Beta Kappa address, "Of Ivory Towers."

Among guests present were Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Erb, and Mrs. V. V. Caldwell of the general extension division in Portland, Dean and Mrs. John H. Carlin of Salem, a Phi Beta Kappa, who was elected at North Dakota.

SYMPOSIUM . . .

Speech Groups To Meet Here

January 25 Set; Members to Elect, Discuss Athletics

Speech division faculty members and the University symposium teams will be hosts to members of the Lane county speech association January 25, according to a recent announcement by W. A. Dahlberg, assistant professor of speech.

This session marks the first meeting of the organization which has as its basic purpose "the regulation and promotion of interest in speech and speech activities in the county high schools." The smaller schools of Lane county are participants in the association.

The group is the outgrowth of a plan and constitution drawn up by two members of the speech division faculty, Marvin Krenk and W. A. Dahlberg at the request of school officials of Lane county.

The University symposium department will put on a demonstration panel discussion during this meeting. The group will discuss the question, "Are the high schools of the state guilty of over-emphasis of inter-school athletic functions?" Elva Jane South will preside during the discussion which will be led by June Hooker, Earl Holmer, Darleen Warren, and Len Clark.

Association faculty members and students will elect officers, and a faculty advisory committee from among the participants in the meeting.

Sidelights On

(Continued from page one) Phil Bladine, Oregon grad, was too busy helping get out the Telephone-Register to accompany his father, Lars E. Bladine, former conference president, to this conference. Phil is soon to go east and finish his naval training course which will give him a commission in the naval reserve.

Spencer Visits Major Carlton E. Spencer, assistant director of the selective service system in Oregon, came down from Salem with his chief, Lieutenant Colonel Elmer V. Wooton, who was the speaker on the Friday luncheon program. Major Spencer is taking a year's leave from the University, in which he is professor of law.

The other speakers in the discussion panel yesterday afternoon covered all the ground in the notes of W. M. Tugman, managing editor of the Register-Guard, who was the last speaker.

State Assistant Miss Alene (Peggy) Phillips, who helps run the secretary of state's office, was here again from Salem for the conference. Miss Phillips is a former student in the school of journalism.

Ralph Vincent, Oregon Journal staff photographer, who was here two or three weeks ago making pictures for a roto feature on the school of journalism, was back yesterday photographing editors and publishers at the conference.

Ninety Journalists

Prof Finds Moon More Punctual Than Students

The students were late, and the moon couldn't wait. Of course they would like to look at the moon, the 40 members of the physical science survey class had declared. But clouds and fog had covered the moon by the time the 12 students who did come to the Evergreen observatory last Wednesday night finally arrived.

Professor J. Hugh Pruett, University astronomer, and his two assistants had the three telescopes ready for the moon-gazers at 7 o'clock sharp. The first two students appeared 20 minutes late, the last few just as the clouds and fog were ready to obscure the moon completely. Those who came when the sky was clear, the class instructor said, will receive A's, but those who came when the sky was cloudy will get flunks.
