

Duck Tracks

Remember the Bob Anet-Wally Jo combination that played basketball for some 13 years? Of course, no Oregon fan could forget that so quickly. Anet and Johansen started playing around with a basketball in grade school—about the time playing hooky was appealing. Through grammar school, junior high school, and high school, went these two guards, sparking their teams to championship. Both came on to Oregon and won a national crown with the help of a couple of all-Americans and an all-coast player. After college the combine continued in AAU ball until it was split a couple of weeks ago with Anet going down south, and Johansen going to Astoria to be a sports editor.

Oregon has a new guard combination—a unit which has been playing together since the two were in junior high school pulling little girls' pigtails. Bob Newland and Walt Kresse, Oregon freshmen basketball players via Medford high school and junior high, are the duo. To date Kresse is tied with the center, Lloyd Jackson, for high point honors in two games with 15 points. Nine in the Lebanon game and six points in the Dallas game makes the 15. Newland had 11 in the two tilts. So, if these two continue their present paces, it looks as if John Warren scores again.

Newland and Kresse played three years in junior high and the same amount in high school. Both cracked the starting lineup as sophomores at Medford and made the trip to Salem for the state tournament. It was unfortunate that Len Gard and University high of Eugene was also there. Medford lost to UHS, but Newland scored 15 points in the game—Gard who set the new scoring record got 14. Newland got honorable mention at the state tourney last year.

Kresse specializes in a hard-to-guard shot. Newland on the other hand is a fast and hard driver. He's a clever ball-handler and made life most embarrassing for some of the varsity in the recent frosh-varsity scrimmage.

Basketball, Football Analyzed

This game of basketball comes to bear a greater and greater resemblance to football. Only yesterday on the "Lane county thinks" program, listeners broke out in hoarse guffaws as one interviewee was questioned.

"Do you think Oregon will beat Oregon State Friday night in Corvallis?" asked the announcer.

"Well, I don't know. I don't follow football much," fenced the one asked. Of course, this could be a slam at Oregon State's ball game, but it seems unlikely.

The other resemblance comes from the attitude of the coaches. Tex Oliver used to invite me out for practice. Hobby Hobson boasts me out as regularly as I get my Wheaties. But yesterday before the manager invited me to enjoy the rain outside, I noticed Wally Borrevik and Bill Borecher substituting for each other at center. George "Porky" Andrews and Vic Townsend were at guards, and Hank Anderson and Warren Taylor were at forwards.

Hobby gave Andrews the job as floor captain for the game Friday. Hobby says, "Andrews wins the job on the basis of his play in pre-season games and also in the Washington State series!" He really drove in the games against the Cougars and may have what it takes to spark the Ducks to a win over Oregon State. Porky has the bulk and plays the game to encourage his teammates.

Crying Need for Runners

Just as if a fluttering heart were not enough to worry Colonel Bill Hayward, loved and respected Oregon track coach, it's now his track team and the approaching running season which will discourage him. Rea Kleinfeldt, promising distance runner, has responded to his "calling." He's now enrolled at the Northwest Christian college to be a minister. Kleinfeldt took a fifth last year in the coast two-mile event. His old teammate at Bend, Ray Dickson, has found the baton and drums a job of more lucrative return, so now he plunks out melody rather than going over the hurdles.

As for Bob Diez, former sprinter, who has one more year of competition, he's holding down three jobs in Portland. He's baggage master at the station, a waiter, and handles the bass viol in an orchestra.

One trackman put it—"we'll probably have high jumpers and broad jumpers."

Andrews Named Captain For OSC Hoop Tilt

'Buck' Berry Works Out With Ducks

Borcher, Borrevik Ready for Action Against Beavers

Despite Oregon's basketball team being wrapped in a virtually impenetrable shroud, as it laboriously prepared for Friday night's Corvallis tangle with Oregon State, snatches of two developments managed to trickle out of the Igloo last night.

Porky Andrews, who did yeoman's duty last Saturday evening a ravaging influenza attack, was named game-captain for Friday's encounter. John "Buck" Berry of football renown donned togs and jersey yesterday to join Hobby Hobson's boys in further cage exploits this season.

As tough as they come, Berry will be, if he can get into the groove, a prize addition to the Oregon team . . . especially for the OSC tilt. No green-horn on the maple floor. Berry is merely picking up where he hopped off a few years ago down at Compton Jaysee as an all-conference hoopman.

Andrews Earned It

It wasn't a sudden surge of sentiment that prodded Hobson into delegating Andrews as a game captain for tomorrow night. The dynamic Canadian "Brick" earned that one himself. Fatigued to the nth degree, he was hauled out of the final WSC game after sticking it out a bit more than half the time and driving through for 14 points, one less than Cougar Paul Lindeman who copped top honors.

Chief cogs in the milling are "Hawkeye" Hank Anderson at center, Evert McNeely and "Big Bill" Borecher at forwards, "Slick" Vic Townsend and Andrews at guards.

The Webfoots will probably tone down their rehearsal this afternoon before entraining for Corvallis tomorrow.

Amphibians Discuss Plans for Pageant

Dues and suggestions for the annual pageant will be called for at the short Amphibian business and swimming meeting at 7:30 tonight.

Petitions for inactive membership are now available from Hope Hughes. They must be filled out, approved by the president, and passed on by the club at the beginning of each term. Any unexcused absences will automatically eliminate the girl from membership.

House Heads Ask Campus Celebrities To Formal Banquet

A formal dinner for house-mothers, house presidents, deans, and other people on the campus was planned at the heads of houses meeting Tuesday in Westminster house.

The dinner is scheduled for an open date in the coming week and will be announced later in the Emerald.

The group discussed taking part in the silver tea which Eugene organizations are sponsoring for the Bundles for Britain. All houses were asked to schedule initiation dates in the dean of women's office immediately. Punch and cookies were served under auspices of Westminster.

Godfrey To Serve

George Godfrey, director of the Oregon news bureau, has been asked to serve on a committee which is being formed to arrange plans for the silver anniversary of the American college publicity association, in 1942. The invitation was extended by W. Emerson Reek, Colgate university news director, and president of the association. Godfrey has been a member since 1927.

Pictures Shot Today

Students who have not had their required pictures taken for their registration material should report to Room 3, basement of Johnson hall, between 1:30 and 5 o'clock this afternoon. It was announced yesterday.

Disgruntled Heroes Work for Atherton

By JEAN SPEAROW
Just so many deglamorized heroes, working out their Atherton-imposed hours for football scholarships . . . that's what has happened to last term's football players.

Curiosity to see just how the "big, strong men" are taking it, led your reporter over to the Igloo this fine afternoon to look the situation over.

The walk to McArthur court was lightened, by the company of Bob "Red Dog" Davis, stalwart guard of the lemon and green line last year.

Varnishes Floors

Bob's succinct comments on the set-up which requires football scholarship holders to put in 144 hours of work this term, can be summarized briefly without leaving anything out:

"Tell 'em I've gotta varnish floors from 1 to 3 in the MORNING . . . from 1 to 3 . . ." This muttering continued with much repetition, ending finally, with "Gotta varnish floors . . . in the MORNING." (Wonder how many taxes will be varnishing floors . . . from 1 to 3 . . . in the morning.)

Boxing Mixes Get Week Delay

Change Puts Dates On January 21, 22; Lettermen Barred

Contestants will not be considered eligible if they have won a varsity boxing letter. Ducklings Defeat Dallas Hi, 40-28 For Third Win

Sheridan Leads Yearling Scorers

The University of Oregon freshman basketball team made it three in a row last night as they handed the Dallas high school quintet a 40-28 lacing at the Dallas gymnasium.

Bob Sheridan led John Warren's Frosh in their second win over the Dallas by dumping in 11 tallies to take high-scoring honors. Walt Kresse was next in line for the Oregon Ducklings with eight counters.

The Frosh dropped 15 field goals through the netting while the losers were hitting 10. Oregon sunk 10 of their 17 foul chances in comparison to Dallas high's eight out of 14 tries.

The lineups:
Fresh Sheridan (11) Dick (4) Jackson (6) Newland (6) Kresse (8) Wren (4) Simonsen (1) Christensen
Dallas McMorris (6) Boyston (2) Croeker Richardson (10) Blackley (10) Heibert Dunn Woods
Officials: Beard, Williams, Hawke.

Emerald 'Lemons' Use 'Tea' Formation

The Oregon Emerald's strong basketball aggregation pulled the surprise of the current basketball season Thursday, by blossoming out with a hoop variety of the "T" formation during their afternoon practice.

Concocted by the fertile brain of Coach Ken Christianson, the new offense is expected to completely baffle a befuddled group of Barometers, if they are not already confuted.

Hobson Eyes System
The remarkable new system cannot be explained in detail for obvious reasons, but suffice it to say that without a doubt it will be the most spectacular bit of basketball legerdemain ever to grace the Men's gymnasium in Corvallis.

Coach Howard Hobson, upon hearing of the unique system, sent three men to take down copious quantities of notes in order to utilize the attack for varsity purposes, but U. S. government agents, there to protect the patent on the style of play, prevented them from entering the gymnasium. Hobson was promised a preview of the system Friday afternoon, however, with Coach Slat Gill also expected to be an interested spectator along with thousands of fans sure to jam the Corvallis basketball court Friday afternoon at 4 p. m.
