

WSC Five Drops Oregon Fourth Time

Webfoots Clipped Again, 50 to 47

Win Gives Washington State Sweep Of Duck-Cougar Series; Hank Anderson Leads Scoring With 17; Townsend Gets 12

Oregon's traveling Webfoots were all but combed out of the northern division Pacific Coast conference basketball race last night as they took their fourth straight licking from the Washington State Cougars in Pullman, 50 to 47. It gave the Cougars a clean sweep of the four-game series.

It was 26 to 22 for the Ducks at half time and the Oregonians were clicking, but after the rest period WSC came firing back to capture the lead.

Hank Anderson, scoring 17 points for shooting honors, Vic Townsend, and George "Porky" Andrews literally ran the Cougars into the floor during the first period but the Palouse lads came back to win the game going away. "Anderson Specials"

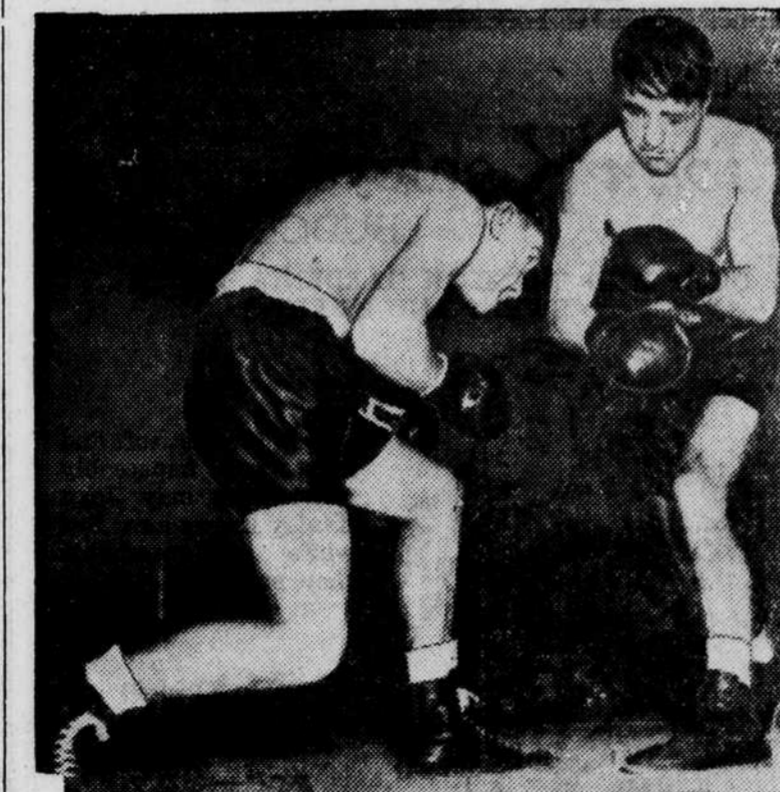

The game was just seconds old when Butts and Dale Gentry pushed in a pair of field goals to put the Cougars out in front, 4 to 0. But Hank Anderson got loose for a pair of "Anderson Specials" to knot the count. From then on to the end of the period the score was tied nine times. Anderson couldn't miss in that first half and racked up ten points. Borchert, checking big Paul Lindeman who scored 19 points in Tuesday night's game, held the Washington State center to nine points.

A scant four minutes after the start of the second period, saw Dosskey tie the score with a howitzer at 28 to 28. Then the Cougars moved up to a six-point lead—their greatest in the game. But shots by Evert McNeeley, Andrews and Anderson tied the score again at 35 to 35. Butts tipped in a rebound to put the Cougars ahead again and from then on they were never headed.

Oregon Becomes Desperate With a few minutes to go in the game, Oregon became desperate. Anderson, attempting to get in position for a shot, jostled Owen Hunt and the two came to blows. A few seconds later Anderson left the game on four personal fouls. Townsend who hit for 12 points stole the ball and dribbled the full length of the floor to end the Webfoots' scoring.

Gloom Hits Duck Matmen

By WALLY HUNTER They're hanging crepe in the Oregon wrestling camp. Reports are coming from the heads of the grappling departments as black as the inside of a Pittsburg chimney sweep's hat.

In the first place the Oregon State Beavers have a place on the Duck schedule on January 31. Secondly, Big Hal Kaschko, ace 175-pounder has pulled up with a game knee that has forced him to curtail training. And to top this all off the intramurals brought to the surface only one man that the wrestlers could really use—and he hasn't shown up for practice—yet. Will Win Marches Although pessimism is as thick as the mats they wrestle on, the Duck sinew stretchers are slaving daily and the sweat and chips can fall where they may. Says Lloyd Koehler, Duck assistant coach. "We don't expect to win any meets but we'll try to win more matches." It would take an old man with a long gray beard to remember when the Oregon grappling squad as had anything to chirp about and the wrestlers of today are working hard for the present campaign in hopes of throwing this

Helliwell Men's Store Cage Quint Drops Ducklings

Pavalunas Scores 13 Points; First Loss for Frosh

The frosh basketball team dropped their first encounter of the season last night when a more experienced Helliwell Toggery team put on a torrid last-half rally led by Matt Pavalunas to push the yearlings under by a 47 to 38 score.

Matt Pavalunas led the independent team with 13 points, most of which he collected in the last half drive. Bob Newland, frosh guard sparked the Ducklings with 11 counts.

The frosh started their "run and score" tactics early in the game and ran up an early 11 to 3 lead. They held the advantage to the half time when they were ahead by a 25 to 10 score.

Veterans Were Too Much The experienced play of such players as Ted Sarpola, Pavalunas, and Jack Butterworth proved too much for the frosh in the second half, and the strong independent team moved out in front to grab a lead which they never relinquished.

Betas, SAEs, Phi Deltas Cop Donut 'A' Hoop Games; 'B' League Action Starts

By PHIL BURCO Beta Theta Pi sent a chill into opposing intramural basketball teams yesterday when its five-man squad downed Sigma Alpha Mu, 40 to 8. Definitely to be a challenger in this year's race, the Beta men started tossing at the first. Large, rugged and fast, the "A" league Betas didn't give the Sammies a chance to shoot, always in possession of the ball, always pushing forward.

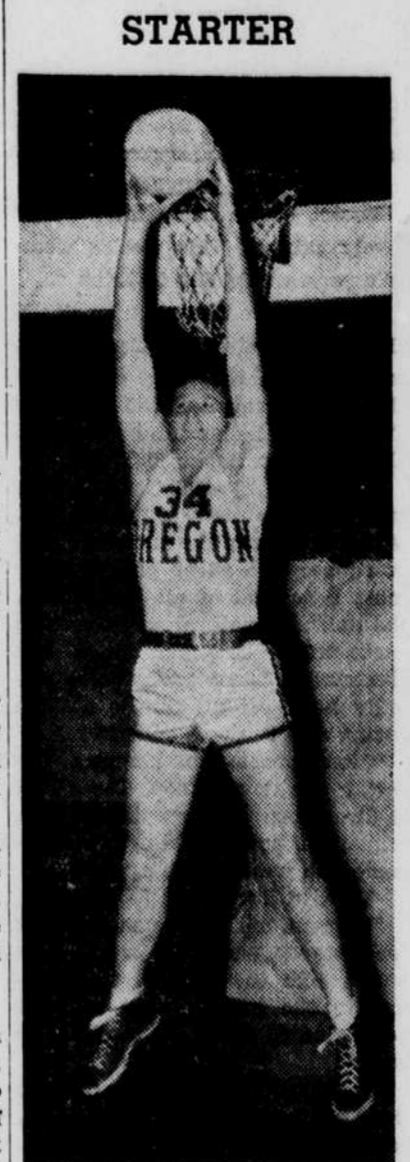

Another team not to be counted out in the 1941 intramural contest, Phi Delta Theta, swept through a tight Delta Tau Delta zone defense to win, 28 to 15. Led by Pete Igoe, the Phi Deltas took a small 4 to 3 first quarter lead and increased that to 12 to 6 by half time.

In the first "B" game of the season, Phi Delta Theta defeated Sigma Alpha Mu, 24 to 20. It was an extremely close game all the way.

By FRED TREADGOLD Three more lop-sided tussles marked Wednesday's intramural hoop action on court 43. Zeta hall fell beneath a ruthless Sigma Alpha Epsilon attack in the lone "A" league contest, 33 to 12. In "B" circuit encounters, Kappa Sigma put on a last period attack to draw away from Canard club, 20 to 14, while the Awful Awfuls soundly whacked Phi Kappa Psi, 24 to 6.

Charles Chifford was the SAE big gun as he flipped six field goals and two foul tosses through the hoop for 14 of the total—more than the entire Zeta team could muster. Halftime score favored the winners, 17 to 4.

Eight Bouts Wind Up All-Campus Slugging

Eight fights today! Clenched fists, padded with leather, will pound and push against painfully yielding flesh in seven final all-campus bouts. The boxing matches start at 4 o'clock in the boxing room of the PE building, and at their completion seven champions will be crowned.

George Thorpe automatically won the 120-pound title when no other contestants signed in that weight class.

Joe Wong and Ward Christensen will sling their best efforts hit or miss, in the 127-pound division.

The 135-pound class will be decided between Duke Warner and Will Heath. Warner punched his way into the finals yesterday by giving Chuck Taylor more than he wanted.

Chet Sergeant runs into tough opposition—none other than Pete Riley in the 145 pound finals. Riley won the state AAU championship last year in that weight. Sergeant earned his try at Riley by beating Dick Anderson yesterday.

Don Vernier and Merle Hanscom take a whirl at the 155-pound crown. Hanscom belted John Detweiler out of the running yesterday, while Karl Zimmerman obligingly forfeited Vernier to the finals.

Vernier is the No. 1 iron man of the tourney. He has also entered the 165-pound finals by out-slugging a bleeding Ed Rodgers. Gil Getzner is the man to take on Vernier in his second fight today.

Patton in Finals Hersch Patton, football center, blasted away at Clay Pond and managed to come out with a decision—and a chance at the 175-pound finals. Buzz Baker and Kern Smith must first battle away for three rounds before the other finals, it is decided.

Those big men—the heavyweights—will provide the end to tourney and possibly the best bout. Jim Bailey and Jim Shephard will battle it out. Bailey chopped away at Ray Marlowe and came out with a close decision, while Shephard put Bill Freiwald away in short time yesterday. Freiwald was bleeding at the nose and mouth when the fight was stopped in the second round. Shephard was awarded a technical KO.

Northwestern university's first five football teams were coached by their captains and the first salaried Wildcat coach was a player.

Hendricks, Suzy Coed Hoopers Win Hendricks hall girls downed a fast-breaking Gamma Phi team, 22 to 14, in a game that marked the Hendricks girls as one of the teams to land on top this season. Ethel Dixon, Hendricks captain, took individual scoring honors with 10 points, while Susan Huffaker, spark of the Gamma Phi team, garnered 7 points. Halftime score stood 14 to 10 for the victors. Alpha Xi Delta forfeited to Susan Campbell.

Sig B's in front of Canard club. All he did was drop in 13 points to seize top scoring honors. Clarence Krueger was Canard's main threat having nine markers.

Duck Tracks

By BOB FLAVELLE, Co-Sports Editor

With the all-campus boxing show now in progress, it seems to be a good time to throw a little light on the pugilistic situation at the University of Oregon.

Up to last season, the slugfests between Oregon and Oregon State were annual sporting events. The teams would meet twice a year, once in Corvallis and once in Eugene to decide which school was superior in the so-called manly art of self-defense. Sadly enough, Oregon State won the matches with disgusting regularity and interest in the squared circle combat took a nose dive at the University.

Oregon Has Yet to Win!

Curiosity led me to take a look at the back records of boxing history between the Beavers and Webfoots and the findings were none too pleasant. With the exception of last year, when Oregon Coach Vaughn Corley kept his men out of competition because they were so inexperienced, the two teams had met every year since 1926 and in each tournament the ringsters from Corvallis walked off with the verdict... usually by overwhelming margins.

It is no wonder that fans have lost interest in boxing. People like to see their favorites win once in a while, or at least put up a close fight in defeat. No one likes to go to a smoker and see matches in which one man takes a terrific lacing because he has been thrown in against a man who is far too strong, ring-wise, and experienced.

Year in and year out that was the case. The Beaver leatherthrowers had the benefit of good coaching and fine equipment. Interest in the sport zoomed high when Jim Dixon took over the coaching duties. Today the Corvallis boxing gym is swarming with young men eager to learn the fundamentals of the game. Well over 50 men are now fighting it out for positions on the Beaver varsity.

Boxing Is on the Upgrade

At Oregon the sport is still in the pioneer stage. Last year was the first that the University boxers had the benefit of a head coach. Before that time, the most experienced varsity man ran the affairs of the squad. The equipment, what there is of it, is good, but there is not enough of it to handle a decent sized boxing turnout.

Despite handicaps of inadequate equipment and disorganization, Assistant Coach Pete Riley took over the coaching duties last fall while Corley was occupied with varsity football, and as a result of a lot of hard work, has molded a formidable aggregation of boxers. Boxers which, in my opinion, are capable of giving the lads from Beaverville a going-over if a meeting between the two schools can be arranged this year.

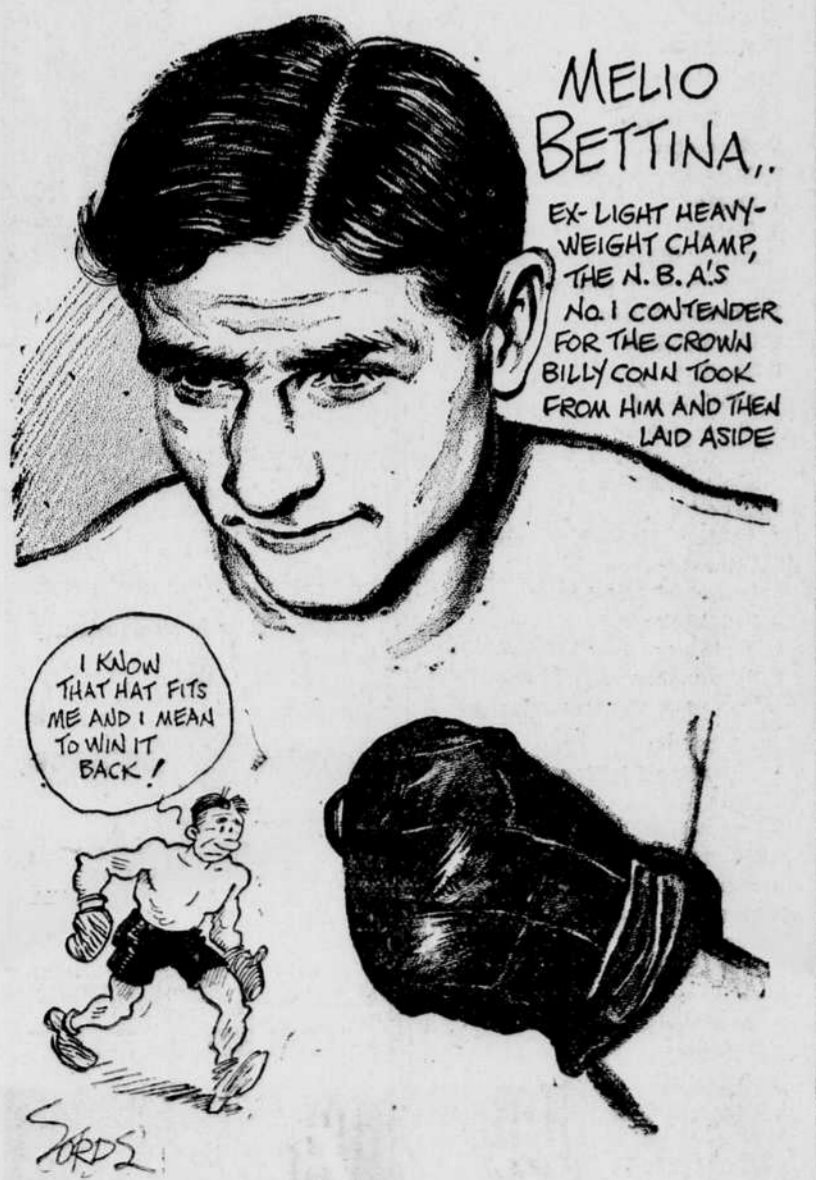

Now that Oregon State is in the big time as far as intercollegiate boxing is concerned, their coach has had no trouble in filling out his schedule for the season. Since Oregon withdrew from competition last year, Dixon did not save a date for the renewal of the annual clashes, but went ahead and booked some of the toughest teams in the nation. As a result, Dixon sends word that nothing definite can be said concerning an Oregon-Oregon State boxing smoker this year. If he has an open date... the Webfoots will most certainly get an opportunity to knock off the Beavers.

All-Campus Ring Finals Today

So that's the situation... we have a good bunch of fighters, with strong men in all classes but the bantam and featherweight divisions... and as yet there have been no bouts scheduled.

With the finals of the all-campus boxing tournament coming up at 4 this afternoon in the PE building, it will be a good opportunity for fisticuff followers to get a look at some of the material that Corley and Riley have developed. The letterwinners of last season have been held out, but such men as Merle Hanscom, Pete Riley, Jim Bailey, and Jim Shephard are scheduled to mix it for three two-minute rounds of fast action... Don't worry, the show won't cost a cent—it's free to everyone.
