

Dr. Costigan to Discuss England Here Thursday

British-Born Doctor Gives New Insight

Talk Will Expose Causes, Results Of War on Britain

An insight into England as she is today will be given by Dr. Costigan of the University of Washington in the next of the University lecture series Thursday, January 30, in Friendly hall, Dr. Rudolf H. Ernst, chairman of the series, said yesterday.

Dr. Costigan, a member of the history department at the University of Washington, brings a personal knowledge of his subject gathered first-hand, Dr. Ernst declared.

Born in England, Dr. Costigan is a graduate of Oxford university, where he specialized in history. He then came to the United States and received the doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1930. After teaching at the University of Idaho he joined the Washington faculty in 1934.

The address, which will be open to students and public without admission charge, will be entitled "The Evolution of Modern England." Professor Costigan will deal with the causes and effects of conditions that have brought about the England of today.

Professor Costigan is regarded as an authority in his field, and is a forceful and interesting speaker.

Moritz To Appear In Night Discussion

Over a dessert-coffee, sponsored by the World Student Service Fund, Paul Moritz will informally discuss "questions of the day" this evening at 6:45 in the alumni room of Gerlinger hall.

Mr. Moritz will also speak at the assembly at 11 o'clock in the WSSF campaign to raise money for relief of students in the Orient, and in Europe.

Tickets to the dessert are on sale through the social chairmen in each living organization for 25 cents. Each house has signified its intention of sending at least one representative, according to Phyllis Sanders and Jim Schiller, co-chairmen. House mothers and the faculty are also cordially invited to attend, the chairmen said.

Working on the dessert-coffee beside the two co-chairmen are: Jean Burt, tickets; Jim Benson, telephone; Jo Bullis, food; and Eleanor Engdahl, publicity.

The Educational Activities board announced last night that the lecture by Jan Reiner on modern architecture at 4 o'clock this afternoon in room 207 of Chapman hall is open to all interested persons. The lecture will be illustrated with slides of modern homes.

ARMFUL OF GOLD

Again in Hollywood a boy and a girl get a break. These two are playing leading roles in "The Outlaw." The girl is Jane Russell, 19, who was formerly a model and doctor's receptionist. The boy, Jack Beutel, 21, worked in a Dallas, Texas, insurance office.

UNIVERSITY THEATER PLAYERS WHO WILL 'TAME THE SHREW'

This quartet, actor and actresses of the University Theater, will carry roles in the play, "Taming of the Shrew," when it is presented in Gerlinger hall February 5, 6, 7, and 8. Admission to the show will be 25 cents. This production will be one of the several features that will be offered to visiting Oregon fathers during Dads' weekend. The students pictured here are Trudy Harland, Parker McNeil, Jeanette Harbert, and Betty Jane Quigley.

MORE JOBS... US Civil Service Position Open

Exams Scheduled For Government Draftsmen's Jobs

Examinations for engineering draftsman positions are announced in a circular received by the University employment office this weekend.

Students may apply for one of five positions, with the chance of being placed in a higher classification if their credentials are accepted. Positions open are chief, principal, and senior engineering draftsman, engineering draftsman, and assistant engineering draftsman.

Architectural students are those most affected by the announcement. Optional fields include architectural, civil, electrical, heating and ventilating, lithographic, mechanical (machine design), plumbing, radio, structural, typographic, and general (any other branch except aeronautical, ordinance, or ship). Applications may be submitted any time this year, the deadline being December 31.

French pointed out that one of the greatest needs in big city journalism was for accurate reporting on labor problems. This unexplored field of journalism will be one of the biggest fields in the future, French predicted.

BATTLE OF SEXES... Men Take Back Seat To Amazon Warfare

By FRED EHLERS

When Scabbard and Blade agreed to sponsor what it thought would be some good publicity for the chapter, it wasn't known that the girls in the party were to be the featured attraction.

Eleven members of Scabbard and Blade drove to Hoodoo Ski Bowl Sunday to take part in a shot of a ski patrol in action by, Universal News.

Pulchritude Cameraman Paris Emery said he wanted to "take some shots of girls for a special feature. Eleanor Collier, Mary Booth, Eleanor Sederstrom, Dorothy Horn, Betty Mae Lind, Janice Brogan, Pat Wright, Sue Cunningham, and June Tyler donned long white robes with white hoods, took rifles and started on their picture careers.

Several pup tents were pitched and machine guns set up in front, all in all giving a very war-like atmosphere to the setting. Then, instead of the men going into action, the girls trooped in and took over the camp under the supervision of Mr. Emery.

Gun Action One scene was taken with a machine gun lashed to a toboggan, pulled by two girls, and followed by other members of the patrol. The girls fell into the snow, and went into action, with the machine gun shooting. After several shots of this scene, the boys were called to strike the camp and put the machine guns away.

Still shots by George Godfrey of the News Bureau were taken of all the scenes. Members of Scabbard and Blade who went were Fred Ehlers, Fred Waller, George Mackin, Ehle Reber, Lloyd Sullivan, Nate Coleman, Gene McGee, Dan Mahoney, Bob Rogers, Dean Vincent, and Jack Hannegan. Warren Treece and Johnny Raffetto also took part in the outing.

Mr. Emery wanted some pictures of the boys skiing down a trail after dark with flares. They wore the white costumes of the girls, and after making several trips down the hill toward the camera, they found they couldn't be distinguished.

Emery said that the pictures will be shown in one of the local theaters in the near future. Equipment used in the picture was loaned by the military department. Sergeant Blythe went along as a technical adviser.

Cov Coed Lures Dad

Another interesting feature is the presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew," which you will recall was written by William Shakespeare. Even though he isn't an Oregon alum, Shakespeare has plenty of spice in his style which makes the play another "must see" item.

The final joy comes with the big banquet honoring the Dads and if I know my "Dads" it will be plenty worth while, both in speeches and in humor.

If these events don't keep you "stepping" all the time, the gang will have plenty more to keep you going. Dad, I honestly believe you can't figure out a more exciting or worthwhile week-end, so do let me know when you will arrive.

Affectionately,

SO—'LONG MAY SHE WAVE'

The young lady—named Jerry Adams—shows off a newly contrived flag-waving machine. It consists of a blower motor which sends breezes up the flag pole's hollow shaft. There are small holes at the top, and as the air leaves them Old Glory waves. The idea belongs to the Chicago Merchandise Mart.
