Speech Teams
Present ViewsSymposium Trip
For Winter Term
Opens in Creswell

Members of the men's and women's symposium groups spoke before high school audiences Friday, marking the opening of the regular symposium season.

Creswell student body members heard Michi Yasui, Darleen Warren and Genevieve Working, representing the women's team, present their views of "The Place of Women in Society." Marvin Krenk, symposium director, introduced the speakers.

The men's chosen subject, "The American Way," was discussed by two team members, Merlin Nelson and Len Clark. Acting speech head, W. A. Dahlberg, accompanied the men speakers.

During the fall term members of the symposium discussion groups gathered and prepared information on their chosen topics. The coming season will see this information presented to audiences in the recently-adopted symposium manner of presentation, Mr. Krenk revealed.

Mary Moon Informs

I went to college we all wore uniforms. I remember we went in a body to the president's inauguration one year, all in identical tweed coats and each carrying our lunch in a paper sack. It was unimaginable.

In Style

Far from regulation tweed coats and paper sacks is Miss Moon now. She travels all over the United States conferring with girls interested in entering Vogue contest.

"I love it," she said, "I'm really a gypsy, but I always go home." Home to her is glittering New York.

The young protege of fashion loves to play the pipe organ and dislikes any form of "organized female athletics."

When asked about women's colleges in comparison to coeducational schools, the graduate of casually exclusive Bryn Mawr, answered, "I should hate to dissect a

Rally Setup Altered

4. That claims against either budget be made in the form of requisitions countersigned by the treasurer of the committee in the case of the rally squad or by the yell leader in case of the yell squad. In the case of travel the members shall produce the travel receipts before payment can be secured.

5. There shall be no shifting of funds from one section of the budget to another without the consent of the ASUO executive committee and the approval of the athletic board. (In other words the committee cannot shift any funds from equipment to travel, etc., without getting the consent of both groups).

SPECIAL FUND

6. That any overages in the income side of the budget shall be placed in a special fund. Before this can be spent the rally committee must get the approval of the executive committee and the athletic board.

7. That a complete income and expense account be submitted to the executive committee at the end of each term and at the vote of the executive committee it can be published in the Oregon Daily Emerald.

8. That all methods of raising money be approved by the executive committee.

APPOINTMENTS

1. The rally committee shall be appointed by the executive council during the third week of winter term. The remaining eleven members of the rally squad shall be appointed before the completion of the fourth week of winter term.

2. The yell king shall be elected by the student body during the third week of winter term. The ASUO constitution on yell leader elections shall be amended to allow this.

3. The outgoing yell king, the newly elected yell king, the newly appointed rally committee chairman, and the outgoing rally committee chairman shall act in advisory capacity for the election of the remaining eleven members of the rally squad.

TEMPORARY MEASURE

4. As a temporary measure for this year, the rally squad chairman shall be chosen the third week in February. The remaining eleven members of the rally squad and the treasurer shall be chosen during the fourth week in February with the outgoing rally squad chairman, the new rally squad chairman, the outgoing yell king, and the newly elected yell king acting on the committee.

This clause shall cease to be effective immediately upon fulfillment of these conditions.

Pro-Girls' Colleges

"I mean, we have plenty of dates, and I think every girl should spend at least one year at a girls' college. You get something there you don't get in a coeducational school.

While at college, Miss Moon majored in classical archeology. "It's a study of classical architecture, of old coins, pottery, and street planning," she explained. "I rather liked it."

"I advise every girl to finish college," Miss Moon arched her eyebrows, "you can't even sell gloves at Macy's department store in New York unless you have a B.A."

Dr. Jameson Speaks

Dr. Samuel H. Jameson, professor of sociology, spoke to the Clackamas county league of women voters in Oregon City January 30.

His speech concerned the necessity of the merit system in our state institutions.

Dads'
Day
Doings

By ADGLE SAY

Big things are cooking for Dads' weekend, according to Buck Buchwach, chief supreme—the only man in the household management course, etc.

As chairman of promotion, Buck has been going to town. This week he took a picture of Coach Hobby Hobson's sons, seven and nine years old. He has Davy and Howard Jr. all dressed up in the luscious green satin that the big boys wear on the Oregon varsity. They're going to make Dads' weekend a big success by winning the basketball game.

Speeches Due

There are going to be some speeches at the banquet as spice for the good hot food, too, Buck says. University President Donald M. Erb, for one, will give an address.

Oh—and when the dads come through the gates, they will be led by the Oregon band and a drum majorette—she's majoring in rhythm, this Mary Anderson.

Send Papa One

Buck is urging all the boys and girls who haven't sent papa one of Ruth Green's prize-winning letters, to get in there and stamp.

There are 2200 students who haven't sent letters, so if you don't want Buck, the cook, to make it hot for you—

Tickets are being sold by Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's service honorary, in all men's living organizations for 75 cents. Class card holders will be given a 25-cent reduction if they exchange their tickets at the educational activities office before the dance. Bids may be purchased at the door without additional cost.

One o'clock permission has been granted by the dean of women's office for the informal; Ray Dickson and his Collegiates will begin their theme song at 9 o'clock.

In keeping with the "Joe College" decoration theme, students are invited to wear dressy sport clothes.

Five Townspeople
Gain Literary Fame

Five residents of Eugene, most of whom have been connected with the University, have received literary recognition this year, according to statistics released by the University Co-op book store.

Nina Fedordva, who came to Eugene from Russia two years ago, has written a best seller, "The Family," for which she received the Atlantic Monthly prize for the best novel of the year.

Professor Franklin Walker of the English department has won a scholarship award for his book, "San Francisco's Literary Frontier."

Nancy Wilson Ross, '24, has been acclaimed in literary circles for her book, "Take the Lightning," and is now working on another book.

Edison Marshall, ex-'17, has had his new book, "Benjamin Blake," selected as the Literary Guild book for March.

Professor George Hopkins of the music department has just published a new book, "Piano Playing for Fun," which is selling fast, according to the Co-op.

deal with in-laws, and personal adjustments to love and marriage, announced Dean Onthank.

The next speaker to follow him will be Dr. Jessie Brodie, Portland physician and surgeon, who will discuss the physiological aspects of love and marriage at two assemblies February 12. At 4 o'clock that day she will speak to women and at 7 o'clock to men.

A group of prominent members of the faculty and guest speakers will be in charge of the discussions to be held in the living organizations on the evening of February 18. They will be dinner guests of the organizations before the discussions.

purpose," according to the New York World-Telegram, "is to show a unified China, fully conscious that it is fighting for its liberty and culture, making every effort to preserve not only these ideals but its very life's blood."

Time of the five presentations will be released the first of next week.

Dr. Stovall Conducts Navigation Classes

Classes in aerial navigation are being conducted each Monday and Thursday evening by Dr. J. S. Stovall, instructor in geography. The sessions, which are primarily lectures, begin at 7 and last until 9.

Many of the 55 who are enrolled are members of the Eugene Flying club and are taking the work with the object of obtaining private pilot's licenses.

School Year

Provision is also made to hold elections for yell king during the third week in order to coordinate the work of the two groups.

Several points of the new program require the setting up of a complete budget and a strict system of accounting for all incomes and expenditures. This was provided to eliminate the chance for rumors of misappropriation of funds which often circulate about rally committee activities.

Keller Heads

Heading the rally reorganization group was this year's rally committee chairman, Pat Keller. Others on the committee were Les Anderson and Lyle Nelson. Richard Williams was called in and asked to present some of his points, but he did not vote.

Complete outline of the new program which will be submitted to the ASUO executive committee is printed on this page.

NYA Student Grades
Due This Saturday

All midterm grades not turned in to the registrar's office by Saturday, February 1 will not be included in the midterm reports.

Faculty committee for NYA student aid asks that faculty members report grades for incompletes as soon as possible. NYA assignments are in many cases held up because made-up incompletes have not been reported to the registrar's office.

LEADER OF COLLEGIATES...

Dickson Finds Talent
In 'Pill Palace' Ward

By BETTY JANE BIGGS

He was an invalid in the infirmary, but he found new talent there. A painful infected foot caused Ray Dickson, maestro of the Sophomore Informal tonight, to lay down his baton and spend several days in the campus "pill palace," but on the next bed he "discovered" Charles Weisberg, whom he calls an "ace dialectician."

From his ward in the infirmary, Dickson nursed his bandage-swathed foot and revealed the story behind the band.

"The youngest of the Collegiates is 16-year-old Al Kasmeyer, the take-off trumpet, and I'm the 'grand-dad' of the 12 boys, just past the draft-age," the Oregon letterman laughed.

Studied in Paris

"That doesn't mean we haven't had experience," he added. "One of our musicians studied in Paris for six years and another one has gained experience playing over a Portland radio station."

Webfoots also celebrated their football victory over Oregon State at the rally dance last fall to the tunes of the Collegiates.

Started in Bend

Ray started his orchestra-leading career in his Bend high school days. "About the only time we could really play for a dance, though, was during football season. I always went out for basketball and track," the University high and low hurdle, broad jump, relay, and pole vault man modestly explained.

Dickson received his foot wound on "Berkeley Square" road tour

last week when doubling from his usual role of Vicentio and acting as prop man, he fell from a back drop.

Dr. Richard Martin
Fills Personnel Post

Dr. Richard Martin, former graduate assistant in the psychology department, now holds a position in the personnel department at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

According to Dr. Howard R. Taylor, head of the Oregon psychology department, Dr. Martin received his M.A. degree from Oregon in 1937, after graduating from Reed college in Portland.
