

Be A Good Chappie, Keep Pappy Happy

By MARY ANN CAMPBELL

This weekend is going to be devoted to the masculine parents of everybody on the campus, if the publicity sent out by the Dads' Day committees can be believed, and you, too, dear reader, will doubtlessly have Papa to entertain and amuse for two or three days.

The whole thing is pretty hard on your neatly planned studying schedule (!) but after all, you don't get to see much of your father ordinarily, because, when you're home, your hours and his are pretty different in a similar sort of way. We mean, you come in when he's going out, and he comes in when you're going out, so you just sort of pass him on the doorstep as it were. Now this weekend, you can see a LOT of him.

His Idea of Fun

Doubtless, his idea of fun will NOT be to perch in any local tavern and inhale cokes and cigarettes over card games by the hour, so you will have to exercise a little brain-work in order to give him a good time.

The most obvious course is to take in all the items planned by the campus committees to take care of any parent's spare hours. "The Taming of the Shrew," basketball, THE gates, and banquets and things can all be on your list. Do be an angel and let him stay away from the art museum and library, especially if he's seen them before. Try not to be so hackneyed as to trot him about, waving your grimy little paw at Distinguishing Landmarks and Famed Bits of Scenery.

Take him, instead, to all your pet eating places, see that he meets most of the people you talk about when you're home, let your studying go hang, and leave him with the general impression that your university career is a sort of combination of college life as he remembers it and College - Life - As-the-Movies-Show-It.

OREGON'S TWO VALENTINE GIRLS

Although they started out to select one Oregon "Valentine Girl," in conjunction with a contest sponsored by Life magazine, the Emerald committee ended up with two—Jean Hoover (left), Life's selection, and Dorothy Havens, the choice of the Oregonian. After Life dropped the contest, the committee asked Oregonian editors to select a "queen" from the seven candidates' pictures. Ten minutes after the Oregonian decision was learned, an air mail special delivery letter from Life disclosed its choice. Tomorrow's Emerald will carry an interview with the twogirls.

Milady's Boxing Gloves Colorful, Not Dangerous

Corinne Wignes pulls her punches in bright yellow leather boxing gloves, but they're not dangerous, they swing from a lapel pin; tee-time fashions are Lora Case's red golf socks; keyed-up is Loraine Peterson in her piano necklace of white and black keys; a whirl of red bands on black was Jule McGirr at the Sophomore Informal in the only dress which showed up well in the purplish light; a rosy outlook has Carol Johnson in her pink jacket, pink plaid skirt, and fuzzy pink socks; springy as strawberries is Dora Olinger's, vari-colored purple plaid skirt with the narrow yellow and green lines in it; suede by public opinion is Barbara Jeanne Lamb's gold dress with the flappy pockets; man of the week is Bill Fendall in his Irish-green sweater, smoking his perpetual pipe.

Krazy Kopy Krawl Looms for Friday

By LOIS HULSER

Dear Readers: Under threats from the May Propaganda Agency, Inc., I am forced to give the usual innumerable details of the inevitable Krazy Kopy Krawl, sponsored annually by Alpha Delta Sigma, men's advertising honorary.

Beginning at 9 o'clock Friday evening in Gerlinger the KKK promises to be the biggest, best, etc., dance held on the campus Friday night. Principal feature of the promotion campaign are the favors to be given at the door.

Wycoff Will Sing

Music will be by Art Holman who promises a popular campus trio as his specialty of the evening. Betty Wycoff, of course, will be featured with the band.

Alpha Os are dining and dancing Friday evening in the Eugene hotel to the music of Eddie Gipson. Gipson will put up his stands in the Eugene hotel again Saturday eve when Alpha Xi Deltas will have their dinner dance there.

Papa Pays

Father pays all the bills but he's going to have some of the fun of today's college life this weekend, when he is honored by a special weekend. Dinners, firesides and such are scheduled in all living organizations.

The dessert list took an after-mid-term slump this week. It was dessert and dancing last night for Kappa Alpha Theta-Phi Gamma Delta; Canard club-Kappa Kappa Gamma; Phi Beta Phi-Delta Upsilon; Theta Chi-Susan Campbell; Zeta Tau Alpha-Campbell co-op; Kirkwood co-op-Orides; Alpha Chi Omega-Phi Kappa Alpha; Alpha Phi-Phi Delta Theta; Alpha Xi Delta-Gamma hall; Phi Sigma Kappa-Gamma Phi Beta; Sigma Alpha Mu-Delta Gamma; Chi Omega-Delta Tau Delta; Sigma Nu-Delta Delta Delta; and Hendricks hall-Yeomen.

Cacti, Horses, Deserts Inspire Spring Colors

With spring will come more proof that Americans haven't realized the riches of their own land. For years women have turned to Paris for styles, but not this year.

Southwestern desert shades such as cactus green, Pueblo brown (the color of New Mexican cliffs), and Palomino beige (named after the horse) will probably be leaders in spring colors for milady. Sun clothes and warm sundown tinges make sagebrush green, Arizona pink (dusty pink), fog grey (greenish grey), and stone blue (greyed blue) spring favorites. As well as the land, the sky, rivers, and ocean are not to be forgotten.

Panama, Cuba, and South America add glamorous tropical hues to the new wardrobes with huge prints and novel play clothes. Daffodil and beige yellow are predicted to be popular in sports clothes and filmy evening wear.

Going American would not be complete without red, white, and blue, which will be brought out in unusual footwear to bring spark to an ensemble, and to the American street scenes.
