

Hawaii-Eying Firs Greased by Slick Oiler Crew, 46-41

Two Thousand Fans Watch AAU Champs Take Ducklands; $800 Proceeds Provides For Extra Man Added to Probable Squad

By KEN CHRISTIANSON

Co-Sports Editor, Oregon Daily Emerald

Oregon's Hawaii-bound basketball team was completely out-dwarfed and tossed into the loss column last night in the Igloo by Phillips' Oilers, 46 to 41. Approximately 2000 fans paid over $800 to see the national AAU champion Oiler five and the Ducks.

From the proceeds, Oregon will be able to send one more player to Hawaii, bringing the probable traveling squad to ten, including Coach Hobby Hobson.

The so-called "tall-fir" Oregons were no match for the AAU players. The Oilers simply flipped the ball from one to the other and back again, while the Webfoots stretched vainly to tip the ball into Oregon hands. For the most part, the type of ball played by Phillips was the Oregon State slow-tem-down style minus the rough stuff.

Pralle Leads

It was seldom that the AAU players fast-broke. When they did, Fred Pralle, former Kansas star, led the attack. Pralle also led the individual scoring with 13 points, followed closely by Vic Townsend of Oregon with 12. Bill Martin of the Oilers via Oklahoma tipped in 11; Oregon's Hank Anderson got 10. The Oilers made a high percentage of their shots; Oregon's average was comparatively low.

The Oilers led in rebounds with 39; Oregon nabbed 33. Of these 39 Fred Troutwine, huge 6 foot 8 1/2 inch center, picked off eight. Pralle grabbed seven as did Townsend.

TREASURED ARMFUL

Janet Straubel tests the tone of Ken Sawyer's violin, a priceless instrument with a romantic history, while he listens. The history is linked with the University, because it belonged to a Mr. Brown, the father of the lady who modeled for the statue of the Pioneer Mother. Sawyer plays the violin in the University Symphony. (Story on page 11).

On Finals Week

I'll like it when 8 o'clock finds us all still A'sleeping as soundly as lambs.

I will not object to not going to class
And missing our profs' epigrams.

I won't mind not wearing a coat and a tie
When the road to the dining room jams.

Guess the only thing bad about finals week is
The fact that we've all got exams.

Three-Month Course Offered By Marines

Three months' training at the Quantico, Virginia, United States marine corps base and then a second lieutenant's commission; that's the offer being presented to graduating senior men by Lieutenant Carl Larsen, recruiting officer.

Lieutenant Larsen spent yesterday in the dean of personnel's office interviewing applicants interested in the corps. From here he will continue his duties on the Oregon State campus.

To Philadelphia
After receiving the commission at the Virginia training post, the young officers are sent to another three months' basic school in Philadelphia. On the completion of this course, they will be on active duty for the duration of the emergency, according to Lieutenant Larsen.

Requirements for this training for the marine corps are: college diploma, native born citizen, between 20 and 25 years of age, unmarried, character recommended by dean of men or president of college, not connected with any other army units, and between 66 inches and 76 inches tall.

Passage of a "stiff" physical examination is also required, the lieutenant declared.

Many Apply
"Quite a number of Oregon men have already turned in applications," Lieutenant Larsen reported, "and indications are that this number would increase considerably on my next visit in three weeks."

After completing his advance training at the Philadelphia basic school, Lieutenant Larsen was given the University of Washington, Oregon State, University of Oregon, and the University of Nevada to canvass for recruits.

Lieutenant Larsen graduated from Oregon State last June and was a member of the Beaver boxing team for four years.

Rushees to View Life Of Oregon Collegians At 'Typical' Weekend

Assembly, Duck-Washington Golf Match, Baseball Game, All-Campus Sing Finals, Dance Will Entertain High School Students

High school rushees will be given a glimpse of campus life as it really is when they visit the University Saturday and Sunday, April 12 and 13, for a special weekend celebration sponsored by the Order of the "O" in conjunction with student living organizations.

This is the first time that such a weekend has been planned. Its purpose is to give a truer picture of college life than is shown by "big" weekends like Junior and Homecoming weekends when many prep-schoolers come to the campus.

The entertainment, supposed to be that of a typical Oregon weekend, includes a student assembly Friday, an Oregon-Washington golf match and baseball game Saturday, finals of the all-campus sing, a dance Saturday night, and special Easter services at Eugene churches Sunday.

The Saturday night dance is sponsored by the Order of "O." High school students attending the dance will be introduced to outstanding athletes in football, basketball, baseball, and other sports. The Order of the "O" chorus will sing. Finals of the interfraternity sing will take place at the dance. Dance chairman is Jim Harrison. Les Ready is in charge of the sing.

Members of each house on the campus have been asked to invite high school students for weekend.

Board To Query Would-be Fliers In McArthur

Engineering Course Also Open to Men; Free Physical Test

University men interested in becoming flying cadets will be interviewed Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 6, 7, and 8, in the basement of McArthur court. The interviews will be given from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily by the Northern Traveling Flying Cadet Examining board.

Lieutenant Murray A. Bywater, advance agent for the examination board, emphasized the fact that there is no cost for the physical examination. Applicants must be between 20 and 26 years old, unmarried, and must have satisfactorily completed two years of college work.

This board also has the authority to recommend graduates of engineering colleges or seniors in engineering colleges for a nine-month course in aeronautical engineering. The physical requirements for appointment are less rigid than those required for pilot training.

A birth certificate, three letters of recommendation, and a transcript of college credits must be presented to the board. If currently enrolled as an ROTC cadet a letter of recommendation from the instructor must also be presented.

Municipal, Finance Officials Will Meet

The League of Oregon Cities and the Oregon Finance Officers will meet on the campus March 19-21 in conjunction with the Commonwealth conference. The Oregon Finance Officers will hold a brief training school and will make plans for a regional training school throughout the state next fall.

A discussion of common municipal problems, and special group meetings on airport administration, civil service administration, municipal law, municipal utility problems, and city planning are included on the League of Oregon Cities' program. Special emphasis will be placed on city problems arising from the national defense program.

Document Awaits Senate Approval, Governor's Okay

Representatives Voice Five Nay Votes; Concurrence by Upper House Necessary On Minor Amendments in Building Issue

By J. NICHOLS and K. STITZER

Senate Bill No. 256—the so-called "student union" authorization bill, appeared today almost certain to become law within the next few days.

The bill went back to the senate Wednesday for concurrence on minor amendments after the house passed it Tuesday with only five dissenting votes.

Concurrence on the amendments by the senate (which previously passed the bill unanimously) would leave signature by the governor the only necessary step toward its becoming law.

Sprague Contacted

Governor Charles A. Sprague, contacted Wednesday, declined to make a definite statement until he received the bill from the senate, but indicated that "in all probability" he would sign it.

The measure would authorize the state board of higher education to float a $250,000 bond issue for construction of the student union building at Oregon. A similar provision is also made for an auditorium building at Oregon State college.

Funds for repayment of the bonds would come from building fees, rental from University properties, revenues from use of the student union building itself, and gross revenues from athletic contests and student activities.

Neuberger Explains

Representative Richard L. Neuberger (D., Multnomah), Oregon ex-'35, voted against the bill in the house. In a wire to the Emerald Tuesday, he explained that he had voted against the building measure because bonding companies required that student building fees be pledged as security on the bonds. He had hoped, Neuberger declared, that these $15 annual building fees could be abandoned in order to aid needy students.

"Otherwise, bill is all right and I wish the University the utmost pleasure and success in its new building," he wired.

Plans for the union building as now authorized are still in the experimental stage. It will be constructed in units, according to current opinions, and student needs

Weekend Theme Contest to Open Early in Spring

Cash Prize Offered Student Submitting Most Suitable Idea

Under what guise Junior Weekend will be presented this year will be decided the week after spring vacation, Gene Brown, chairman, announced Wednesday as he set the deadline for ideas on the contest.

A prize of $15 will be offered to the student who produces the most acceptable theme, Brown declared.

The plan should include the idea for the theme, plan for continuity of the script, music for it, description of a few of the floats and suggestions for the rest. Drawings for the floats are optional, Brown said.

Judges for the contest will be announced later, the chairman stated. He also requested that all juniors interested in working on the Weekend submit petitions to him before vacation. Committee appointments will be made immediately after spring term registration.

Keen Asks Orders For Announcements

Samples of announcements for the 1941 graduating class are now on display at the Co-op, and all seniors are urged to place their orders immediately, according to Bob Keen, class president.

The contract was awarded to Crown Engraving company, Portland, by a committee composed of Bob Carlin, Marge McLean, and Frances Bailly.

Income Tax Aid Given

All students who have an income tax return to make out can receive help from the auditor who will be at the courthouse in Eugene until March 15, according to Arthur W. Lamka, field supervisor of the state tax commission.

Reading Discussed

Dr. Elizabeth Montgomery, assistant professor of education, will conduct a conference on reading problems at Tillamook Saturday, and at Oregon City Monday.

Isle Tickets Offered

A few extra reservations on the ship taking the basketball team to Hawaii probably will be available to students at prices slightly lower than the regular rates, according to Howard Hobson, basketball coach. Those interested should contact Mr. Hobson for further information.
