America Is Theme For Spring Colors

By MARY ANN CAMPBELL

Ladies, today we are happy to present to you one of your old favorites, a marvelous standby who has been more or less in retirement for some time now, but now is playing return engagements to packed houses. Ladies, we present Navy Blue!

Navy blue, which has been in the background while her more eccentric sisters held the spotlight, comes forward again in all her glory. Navy appears with rose, with copen, with all shades of green, in fact there is no color, except brown, navy doesn't appear with.

Number two favorite is beige, which appears with lots of emphasis on the American cowboy motif.

In fact, America, both north and south, is the basic idea behind most of the color combinations. Red, white and blue is all over the place, and saddle tan, rodeo beige, warpath red, totem yellow, California sun, palm tree green and Florida pink are just a few of the names.

For the British, we will see quite a lot of RAF blue, which has the gray tinge seen in the Royal Air force uniforms.

Another martial theme is noted in Marine Corps blue, which has less of gray tone.

Island turquoise, a grayish turquoise, is good, and crater blue is another shade of the same theme.

The beige goes all the way from palest coffee-with-cream through bronze to dark brown.

Kelly green pops up frequently, and there is a new blue green, not unlike the teal blue of a few seasons back, that has charm.

Sweaters come in apple green, heaven blue, baby pink, and spring apple red, a rose color that has definite OOMPH.

One of the prettiest color combinations to be seen in the shops around town is a yellow and grey herringbone tweed fitted coat that had a screaming scarlet and gold patriotic emblem embroidered on the arm.

BA School Calls in Seniors' Portfolios

Business administration school seniors' personal portfolios are due in the BA school office in Commerce building March 28, Mrs. Ruth May Thompson, secretary of the school, announced early this week.

Each BA senior should fill out this four-page personal information paper, Mrs. Thompson stated, since the school will be able to use them for job recommendations and for supplying data in years to come concerning its graduates.

Along with the personal pictures required for the portfolios, students must furnish information on such things as biographical history, record at college, ambitions, and more minute personal data.

BYE-BYE FRILLS...

Only Pastels Present Note of the Feminine

By JOEY CHRYSTALL

There aren't so many frilly, feminine touches in evidence this year. Our impression of spring term last year was made up rather largely of bows in the hair, ruffled pinafores, white lace blouses, and so on, with almost always at least one flower. Now all the smartest looking outfits seem to have been made up to a certain extent from a man's shop. There is a decided rise in the popularity of boys' jackets, and lots of people we've talked to have a yen for a boy's sweater, the kind that almost looks like cashmere. Also in this vein, we've seen less Peter Pan collars above sweaters, and more of the type with pointed lapels.

We think the feminine touch is also being replaced by the military influence. Who could help thinking so after a glimpse of the store windows about town? You can have your military influence in a belted coat, like an officer's trench coat, or in a smartly-swinging cape, or by having stars and eagles scattered about on your hat, gloves, purse; you don't have to be particular. Or you can be for the navy, with sailor collars, white braid, and anchors. Having not yet seen anything in the nature of men's jackets in robin's egg blue, we assume, a little defiantly, that women still have pastels. Although the colors of uniforms; Sandringham blue, beige (like khaki), navy, etc., are in great favor, we've seen some lovely pastel plaids and some beautiful pale sweaters and coats, so we haven't yet given up hope for the exclusively feminine fashions.
