Open Letter to Ridgely Cummings:

I believe that the majority of the people who favor the passage of the Lend-Lease Bill are aware of the fact that our aiding Britain may eventually involve us in a war with the axis.

If our material aid fails to reach England under British convoy, the next logical step would be the use of American convoys. Many people shudder at this prospect. But since we have pledged ourselves to aiding the democracies resisting aggression, let us be consistent with that policy.

The next probable step following the use of American convoys would be the sinking of these very ships by the German U-boats. How long the American public can swallow their pride and allow this to happen, no one may predict.

But if the worst decision should be forced upon our American Congress, it is my firm belief that the American public (outside of a few isolationists) would "take it on the chin" and see this policy through to ultimate victory.

We youths despise war with all its death and destruction, but more than that we abhor unprovoked aggression. We are no cowards who cringe at the very thought that we may enter war.

Now that we have officially pledged our utmost aid to Britain, China, and Greece, it would be cowardly to back down meekly in the face of possible war.

If we are prepared to live and bargain under Hitlerism, if we are willing to see our freedom of thought, speech, and religion forever banished, and if we can be contented to live from day to day with the sword of economic and military invasion hanging over our heads, then let aid to the democracies be withdrawn, and let us remain indifferent to the defeat of England.

Paul F. Lee.

P.S. As a challenge, won't you please definitely state your stand regarding aid to Britain? There seems to be a great deal of inconsistency in your reasoning.

HOME TALENT ...

Tenor Praises U.S. Masters

Geist Will Appear In Benet Concert Here Next Monday

Training from American music masters is as good as that from European maestros if it is wide and varied enough, according to Tenor Melvin H. Geist, who will appear in concert Monday night at 8:15 in the campus music auditorium in a program arranged to raise funds for British war relief.

The young dean of the Willamette university college of music obtained his master's degree in voice from the University of Michigan after several years of study under Arthur Hackett. He went to New York City, where he studied with Frantz Prochowski, and at the Julliard school of music under the tutelage of Bernard Taylor.

His appearance in Eugene will mark the first anniversary of his concert here last year as tenor soloist in the University Choral Union's production of Mendelssohn's "Elijah." Jane Thacher, pianist and professor of piano in the University of Oregon music school, will be co-featured with Mr. Geist on the program.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the sponsor organizations, at Russell's store, or at the University Co-op store.

SDX Meets Today
