Such a conference is very suggestive of increased Anglo-American cooperation in the Orient. Would that be necessary if Japan has only nuisance value?

Awful Mess

The world is in a God-awful mess, with immense economic-political blocks struggling for trade advantages and raw materials. One economic bloc—the Axis—has inculcated an ideology of force and terror and hate by which they hope to keep their soldier population in a fanatical frame of mind. They apparently hope to conquer the world with the aid of fanatics in uniforms.

The other economic bloc—our country and Great Britain—are fighting to maintain the status quo. So far they haven't even tried to fight fire with fire—to make fanatics of our own potential soldiers. But there are straws in the wind.

I would suggest that instead of increasing the fascistic trends in our own nation, that we start doing some propaganda work for democracy where it will do some good—i.e., among the fascists.

I haven't got the technique worked out in my mind, but it sounds like a good idea. Propagandize the propagandists. Undermine the popular support of Hitler, Mussolini, Matsuoka, et al.

RANGERS HELP A STRANGER

Little did Elizabeth Steed, left, and Betty Buchanan, future and present AWS presidents respectively, dream that a villain would cross their trail as they posed for this picture before leaving for the national AWS conference in Texas. Betty's purse was stolen from her in San Francisco. She waits there for new arrangements to be made and "Steedie" is continuing the trip alone to the Lone Star state.
