Frosh, Juniors Set Meetings Tonight

Proposal to Enlarge Students' Committee Comes to Vote Today

University students will vote between 1 and 5 p.m. today in the "Y" shack on the proposed constitutional amendment to enlarge the ASUO executive committee by six members.

The amendment would provide for two sophomores, two juniors, and two freshmen, elected from their classes at large, to serve on the executive committee.

Sing Will Open Four-Day Fete

Entries Due May 3; Music Fest Invites Campus Groups

A new attraction flashed onto the Junior Weekend calendar last night when Bob Deverall announced an all-campus sing as Thursday night curtain raiser to a four-day program of festivities.

The sing will start at 7 p.m. May 8, and will strike the first official note of Junior Weekend. The program, Deverall announced as chairman, will last an hour and a half.

Devoted mainly to group singing by students, the campus-at-large will be "performers" for the program. Joe Gurley will be master of ceremonies, and special numbers will be included as "intermissions," it was revealed.

The women's quadrangle will be location of the sing, and in case of rain the entire program will be moved inside Gerlinger hall. Arrangements for a stage, piano, and lights are now completed.

All campus living groups wishing to participate should contact Deverall by the end of this week.

Last Fete Tickets Go on Sale May 6

There are absolutely no reserved tickets left at the University ticket office for the Junior Weekend canoe fete, Buck Buchwach, promotion chairman, said today.

"Rumors that we are 'holding out' tickets are entirely unfounded," Buchwach said. "All the reserved tickets available were sold out in 6 hours Tuesday, first come, first served," Buchwach continued.

He also explained that there are only 1500 other tickets to the fete available, at general admission prices of 50 and 75 cents. These ducats will go on sale Tuesday morning, May 6, with the "first come, first served" idea still prevailing, Buchwach said.

The proposed amendment reads:

"Two members having an academic standing as freshmen, two members having an academic standing as sophomores, and two members having an academic standing as juniors. These persons are to be elected by the student body at large at the same time and in the same manner as the student body officers."

This amendment would be added to the section of the constitution which provides for members on the executive committee.

Steers Leaps Over Royalty For Life Pix

Holding their breath while a world-beater performed Wednesday were a quintet of royalty, as Les Steers soared up and over the bar and over their heads as well. Les' obstacles in the six-foot-one-inch jump were Annabelle Dow, Junior Weekend queen, and the four members of her court—Helen Angell, Jean Burt, Barbara Todd, and Barbara Neu.

As Les soared over their curls, the cameras clicked, beauties turned pale, and a picture for Life magazine was born. Requested by Life, the picture will possibly be run in an early issue.

Were they frightened? Not to look at the finished photo, they weren't. Five times Les jumped, once slipping just before the take-off, but the queens smiled brightly and photographed their beautiful best. But, when the last camera clicked, their frightened femininity came to the fore, and, making a break for it, they dashed off to a waiting car.

Nominations Divert Frosh

First, Third Year Students to Select Class Hopefuls

Things political at the University will come into the open tonight when numerous classes nominate officers for positions in next year's class governments.

Both freshman "classes" will nominate tonight. Members of the "majority class" of 1944 will meet in Villard at 7:30, according to Chuck Woodruff, president. The "old class" will meet at 7:30 in Room 101, physical education building.

Juniors will meet at 7 p.m. in room 207 Chapman to nominate officers and to discuss class business, Lou Torgeson, junior president, declared yesterday. Results of a petition to determine class sentiment on the "10-cent class card" plan will be presented to class members. Torgeson also said the class would take action toward a constitutional revision "to distinguish a junior from a sophomore." He declared that the present system is unsatisfactory in that a person must have a junior certificate to qualify for membership in the junior class.

Bud Vandeneinde, sophomore class president, revealed last night that his organization would nominate "about the first of next week."

Students also vote today at the YMCA between 1 and 5 p.m. on the proposed constitutional amendment to increase the ASUO executive committee by six members. See story in columns 1, 2.

Appearing before her first Oregon audience last night in McArthur court, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt brought out several points directed toward better Pan-American relations. "Learn More about our South American neighbors," she suggested as a basis for better understanding.

Goodwill in Americas Urged by First Lady

By MILDRED WILSON

Emphatically stating her opinions on many democratic and political issues brought to her attention, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt spoke last night in McArthur court before her first Oregon audience.

In line with her lecture title "Cultural Relations Between the American Republics" Mrs. Roosevelt declared, "If you like people it's very much easier to find a good business basis with them and above all a good political understanding—both of which are desirable in our relations with the Central and South American nations."

A question and answer period after the formal section of Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture brought a variety of queries from the audience, a few of which she adroitly side-stepped. In regard to the Lindbergh situation, the first lady remarked that she did not think that there had been any restriction of free speech put into practice.

"On the contrary it seems obvious that free speech was both recognized and used," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

As to what America's attitude toward both war and defense should be, she suggested "We should be ready at all times to do what we must do—and in the quickest, sincerest, and most efficient manner possible."

Summing up her ideas as to the responsibilities and advantages of the democratic way of life Mrs. Roosevelt asserted, "It requires courage to be a citizen in a democracy, as well as strength of spirit and fortitude of soul—but those are the qualities that have made us a great nation."

Jr. Weekend No. 5

There will be no propaganda said the Junior Weekend band. I thought for sure they meant it. But now on the other hand, They're going to turn the campus into a "Nomad's Land."
