

COURT'S IN SESSION

Junior Weekend Garb Coeds to Go Oriental

By JOANNE NICHOLS

Colorfully carrying out the "Arabian Nights" theme will be the campus coed's uniform Junior Weekend costume, which will consist of a bright peasant skirt with a contrasting sash, a full-sleeved blouse, and perhaps gay costume jewelry to suggest an Oriental atmosphere.

The Junior Weekend court will have two official outfits, an informal one for daytime wear and more formal attire for evening. Dressed in true Arabian style will be the prime minister, escorts, and other important male members of the court, whose garb will out-sultan any Oriental potentate, Indian rajah, or Persian shah.

Phi Theta Upsilon, junior women's service honorary, in charge of the uniform dress, will visit all houses Friday and Saturday noons to explain the tradition and emphasize the importance of conforming to it.

Members of the traditions committee in charge of tradition enforcement and renewal are Mary Schedler and Elliot Wilson, co-chairmen, Boyd Lee, John Schreiner, and Ben Wohler.

A field trip to Mary's peak, near Corvallis, is planned for the general geology class Sunday. The group will leave at 8:30 Sunday and return about 5 p.m.

Anyone interested is invited to go on the trip, but each must arrange for his own transportation. Each student will need a lunch and a pair of rough shoes for the excursion.

Stitzer Would Prefer to See Leap by Court

Kent Stitzer, Emerald news editor, demands "man-bites-dog" news, and nothing less than that impresses him.

When someone commented what a good story it was to have Les Steers, Oregon's famed high-jumper, jump over the Junior Weekend court, Stitzer only grunted.

"Huh!" he scoffed. "The good stunt would be to have the Junior Weekend court jump over Les Steers."

Bill Hayward is being consulted.

Psych Association Schedules Meet

Scheduled for today at Linfield college is the annual meeting of the Oregon Psychological association, which is an organization for psychiatrists, psychology teachers, and anyone else interested in the psychological aspects of society.

Presenting papers at the conference will be Dr. H. R. Taylor, psychology department, Dr. L. S. and Dr. A. R. Moore of the psychology department, and Dr. Homer Barnett, acting head of the anthropology department. Monroe Shelley will present the talk and films for which he was awarded first prize at the student science conference last Saturday. He will be assisted by Ula Weight.

Dr. L. F. Beck, associate professor of psychology, and Abraham Carp, W. A. Cass, and J. M. Leiman, graduate assistants, as well as several psychology students, are also planning to attend the all-day meeting.

The annual YWCA co-edition will be distributed during Junior Weekend this year. It will feature the YW news of all year.

A Greek vase of good cycling can be had around the Youth Hostel "loop." The route covers points both inland and on the coast.

Sophomores Adopt 'Bargain Class Dues For Group Harmony

Class of '44 Nominates Four for Officers; Candidates Include Mary Ellen Smith, Pat Cloud, Frances Cox, Spencer Weills

The sophomore class grabbed the 10-cent class card bandwagon Friday afternoon and voted to adopt the "bargain" class dues proposal. Nominations for next year's class leaders were also made at this time.

The plan, approved earlier this year by the ASUO executive committee, was presented by President Bud Vandeneynde in an effort to "reach a compromise with the independents" and to "establish class spirit and harmony."

Queen Wendy To Start Reign Over Law Fete

Big White Charger Bearing Courtiers Will Head Parade

By MARY WOLF

With pomp, circumstance, and all that sort of truff Wendell Wyatt will officially begin his reign over the annual law school weekend festivities today. The place is the steps in front of Fenton hall. The time is 1 o'clock.

If there isn't a long dry spell between now and 1 p.m., it promises to be a very wet time. After Queen Wendy is crowned and Prexy Charlie A. Phipps inaugurated, the lawyers will line their floats and band in parade formation.

All the court will ride on a big white horse followed by the law school faculty in their floats. Orlando "Honest John" Hollis will be in a special sulky of his own.

March to Refreshments

Led by Drum Majorette Judge Jeannette Thatcher the barristers et al will march down Thirteenth, stop at Newt's Pub for their annual refreshments, and go on up Alder to Fifteenth.

All the sorority houses en route will receive special attention from the lawyers who will be marching in a body with the (Please turn to page two)

We work like fiends
And toil till late
Inspired by the words
"We'll celebrate!"

Two o'clock comes
We're not quite through
There's still a story
And a proof to do.

At last we're done
What was it we said?
Oh, I remember,
"Let's go to bed!"

Wimberly Leads Opposition

Forces opposing lowering the price of voting privileges were led by Bud Wimberly who asked that the measure be tabled until next year.

No opposition was offered to the four names to appear on Thursday's ballot. Nominations were: Pat Cloud, president; Frances Cox, vice-president; Mary Ellen Smith, secretary; and Spencer Weills.

Additional Nominations

Further nominations may be made by presenting a petition signed by 25 sophomores to John Cavanagh by Monday noon, according to the president.

Because of the ample funds in the treasury, President Vandeneynde suggested a class party for sophomores. Complete arrangements will be announced later and the date was tentatively set for "three weeks."

Mass Assembly Set by Cavanagh For Nominations

Nominations for elective positions on the ASUO executive committee, including the six new class representatives, will be made at a student body assembly at 11 o'clock Tuesday in Gerlinger hall, according to John Cavanagh, first vice-president. Elections will be held Thursday.

Candidates for all offices must submit a declaration of intention to run and certificate of eligibility from either the deans of men or women's office to Cavanagh by midnight Sunday.

Eligibility requirements as stated in the ASUO constitution demand that aspirants for student body offices must have a two-point GPA. Candidates for ASUO offices of president, first and second vice-presidents, and (Please turn to page two)

Women Will Attend Sunday Breakfast

By ANN CARR

About 30 years ago, in the home of Dr. P. L. Campbell, then president of the University, the first annual junior-senior women breakfast was held.

Mrs. Campbell, in cooperation with the advisory board of the YWCA, began the tradition, way back while skirts were still long, when she decided to honor the graduating women and their junior class escorts, on a May day morning.

This year, skirts are definitely more brief, but the annual breakfast has grown rather than shrunk, so that it will be held in the Osburn hotel tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Jane Thacher, professor of piano, will be guest speaker, on the topic of "Music as a Part of Our Life Philosophy."

Other speakers on the program will be Lois Nordling, Jean Crites, and Mrs. E. E. DeCou.

Reservations may be made by calling Marilyn Marshall, and tickets may be bought at the door for 50 cents.
