

All Committees Of Weekend Meet Monday

Heads to Explain New Plans at 9:30 In College Side

A giant meeting of all junior weekend committees will take place at the College Side Monday at 9:30 p.m. Complete committee reports of progress made will be given.

Jim Carney, canoe fete chairman, will explain a new plan for sending floats down the millrace rather than the use of freshman swimmers. Plans for the all-campus luncheon Friday, May 9, which will replace all house luncheons, will be discussed by Bette Morfitt, luncheon chairman.

Jack Saltzman, Junior Prom chairman, will conduct an open forum on the ceremony to be used in connection with the Igloo's new revolving stage. Gene Brown, general chairman, will make any necessary further appointments.

Bill Carney, director of athletic events, will give a detailed explanation of preparations for free admission of mothers and other guests to all athletic events.

floats. Then they will parade back Fifteenth to Kincaid.

Baseball Game

At 2:30 they will betake themselves to the diamond west of Hayward field, where the traditional baseball game with the BA school will be played off. "Honest John" Hollis will be umpire. "Candid" Kenny O'Connell, better known to the BA school as "Cyclops," will be the base umpire.

Dean Wayne L. Morse as in former years has put up a box of fine Havana cigars against a 95-cent sack of oats for his horses that the law school will lose the tilt.

Four water-warmers, Bob Carmichael, John Winkler, James Buell, and Meyer Kroopnick with Dick Phillippi as alternate will await the queen and his court at the millrace.

Mass Dunking

Newly-elected law school student body officers and the queen and her court will then be ceremoniously dunked.

If recovered from the effects of their strenuous parade, ball game, dunking, etc., the law school will hold a closed dance at the Anchorage at 9 o'clock.

CHAIRMAN

Bette Morfitt is chairman of the committee for the Junior Weekend luncheon.

Ben Allen Speaks To Eugene C of C, Visits Dean Allen

Ben Allen, who is associated with the Herbert Hoover relief drive for small democracies, visited Dean Allen and the journalism faculty Friday.

During the noon hour, Mr. Allen addressed the Eugene Chamber of Commerce forum, comparing censorship in the World war and that prevailing now. The speaker was a United Press correspondent in London in the period covering the first World war.

Mr. Allen has visited the campus several times before and spoke to Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity, a few years ago. He usually accompanies Mr. Hoover on his Oregon fishing trips.

Petitions Due

Nominees for class representatives must also be members of that class as determined by the registrar's office, according to the new provision adopted Thursday by the student body.

Nominations will be made from the floor and nomination speeches should be limited to two minutes, Cavanagh said.

According to a recent change in the ASUO by-laws, candidates not nominated at the Tuesday assembly must submit a petition signed by 50 ASUO members to President Tiger Payne by noon Wednesday to be eligible for the Thursday elections.

Mortar Board Pledging Nears

Activities, Grades Count in Choosing Honorary Pledges

With the pledging of women to Mortar Board, an annual event of the Junior Weekend all-campus luncheon, looming in the near future, junior students are becoming increasingly more conscious and concerned with membership requirements.

At the ceremony, members, dressed in their traditional caps and gowns, form a procession and wend their way over the campus lawns, selecting pledges and giving to each a red rose.

Among the requirements for membership in this national senior women's honorary, the scholarship one is very important, Janet Goresky declared. A minimum accumulative GPA of 2.75 is required. Other qualities having a great deal of weight in the selection of candidates are the number and kinds of activities they have taken part in, service to school, democratic feeling and policy, and membership in the junior class with possession of a junior certificate.

There can be no fewer than five juniors pledged and no more than twenty, the number depending on how active the candidates have been. Honorary members are also pledged. These members are people who have done some service to the school.

The local Mortar Board chapter was organized on this campus on a national scale in 1923, and was formed from a local senior women's honorary.

Lonely Lassie, Nine Lads Find Infirmary Dull

Leading a life of quiet restfulness in the pill palace are 10 inmates, who claim they are slowly dying of boredom. Possible exception to this is Reba Roseberg, who would be very happy, being the only girl interned at the present. Reba, however, says it's not much fun because she never sees the 9 men.

Musketeers Oxman, Hoyt, and Foster claim they have sneak dates with each other every night between thermometers, and make a flying trip out to—well, you know where.

To break the monotony of their existence Clyde Rose and Alva Ray Blaylock would like to start knitting for Bundles for Britain.

Others dozing their lives away includes Harry (Heartbeaker) Prongas, James Kurtz, Barry Campbell, and James Durkenheimer.

The new Oregon youth hostel, located on Central boulevard east of Hendricks park, urges student groups to use their headquarters for hikes and picnics.

Moot Trials Promise Fun

Students Invited To Witness Court Proceeding May 8

John Dunn is seeking to recover the largest judgment ever demanded in the history of University county. Mr. Dunn is suing John R. Hay for damages caused to his reputation and character when he was arrested for trespassing because of certain alleged false representations made to him by Mr. Hay.

Mr. Hay, the defendant, is represented by Dave Rementeria and Floyd Hamilton of the firm of Hamilton and Rementeria and Mr. Dunn, the plaintiff, is represented by Donald Richardson and Wendell Wyatt of the firm of Wyatt and Richardson.

The trial promises to be one of the most colorful in the moot court history of the University of Oregon law school. It will take place in the circuit court for Lane county Thursday, May 8, at 7:30.

University students are invited to attend and those who would like to serve on the jury may hand their names to Hugh B. Collins at the law school.
